MACDONALD DEPARTS FOR VISIT TO HOOVER; HAILED BY THRONGS

King's Farewell Says Voyage Is Contribution to Happy Relations of Two Great Peoples.

WOULD 'NARROW ATLANTIC'

Premier Seeks Personal Contacts in Solving Disarmament and Many Other Problems.

ON LINER AT SOUTHAMPTON

Berengaria Will Sail Today With Prime Minister, Daughter and Small Official Party.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 27.—Premier MacDonald boarded the Berengaria here at 10:30 tonight for his trip to Washington after an enthusiastic farewell from crowds at the pierhead and on the station platforms along the route from London. At Winchester and other stations hundreds gathered on the platforms in the hope of catching a glimpse of the Premier, but the train flashed past without stopping. Mr. MacDonald was able to hear the shouts of the well-wishers as the train sped along.

"Good old Ramsay!" "Good luck!" roared the crowd as the Premier walked up the liner's gangplank. He waved his hat at the well-wishers and then went to the luxurious imperial suite which was built for the Kaiser when the ship was the German Imperator. Mr. MacDonald was tired after a crowded last day in London and went to bed early.

The ship will remain at the dock until 7 tomorrow morning, when she sails for Cherbourg to pick up more passengers.

To friends on the ship the Premier spoke in optimistic terms about his coming visit. He said he felt confident Anglo-American relations would be closer as a result of his journey. The real purpose of the trip, in Mr. MacDonald's mind, is not simply the question of cruiser strength but the much broader problem of achieving closer understanding between Great Britain and the United States.

Stirring Farewell in London.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Prime Minister MacDonald, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ishbel, left London tonight with the good wishes of the entire British Empire for the success of his mission to America, a mission which he described at the moment of departure as one in which "I hope to be able to do something to narrow the Atlantic."

The godspeed which may be considered as from all the people came from the King in this message:

To the Prime Minister,
10 Downing Street.

On the eve of your journey I wish you godspeed. It is a departure that will be surrounded with good wishes, for it is a contribution to those happy relations between two great peoples which must be an article of faith among all men of good-will.

GEORGE R. I.

Will Represent Entire Nation.

Mr. MacDonald goes as Prime Minister of Britain, not as the "Labor Prime Minister," not as the leader of a political party.

If ever the American axiom that party politics cease at the frontier had a vivid exemplification it was tonight, when Tories, Liberals and Socialists by the thousands crowded into the old Waterloo Station to cheer the head of their government on his way. Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister in the late Conservative Government, went to 10 Downing Street this afternoon to say good-bye to his successor and wish him success on his errand of international good-will.

The crowd at the station cheered much, but they sang more, and the song that reverberated most frequently from the huge circular roof of the train shed was "Auld Lang Syne."

The crowd was too vast and there was too much confusion of rushing baggage over the platforms for the Berengaria's boat train to Southampton for Mr. MacDonald to be able to make a speech. But just before the train pulled out he did make a statement to a group of gloomy correspondents who had not been assigned to make the voyage with him, while the correspondents with Berengaria reservations stood by with the happy aloofness of fellow-passengers.

Doubts Spectacular Outcome.

"I am looking forward very much to my visit to the United States and Canada," Mr. MacDonald said, "and to renewal of the old and to the making of new friendships there. But, of course, this is an official visit and is concerned with public affairs.

91 a Day Were Killed by Autos In August, Setting a Record

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—An average of ninety-one persons a day, equivalent to a rate of 33,215 a year, were killed in automobile accidents in the United States during the past month, statistics of the National Safety Congress showed today. This was the highest average in the nation's history, the report said.

A means of preventing a still further increase in the death rate will be a question of major consideration by the industrial engineers and safety experts at the eighteenth annual congress which will convene here next week.

WILL CALL NAVY MEN IN SHEARER INQUIRY

Senate Investigators Want the Testimony of Four Officers on Geneva Staff.

BORAH FAVORS SUMMONS

Brookhart Talks of Extending Inquiry to "Social Lobby" at Washington.

Specials to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Four and possibly all members of the staff of naval experts attached to the American delegation to the armament conference at Geneva in 1927 will be called before the subcommittee of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee in its investigation of charges that an American lobby was responsible for the failure of the conference.

The committee will meet tomorrow to plan the future course of the inquiry and to compile the list of the witnesses to be heard after William B. Shearer, the self-styled naval expert and "observer" for American shipbuilding companies, who has been accused of wrecking the conference, is questioned on Monday.

The four naval officers who it is believed will be called on to testify are Rear Admiral J. M. Reeves of the general board, Rear Admiral Frank H. Schofield and Commanders H. H. Frost and H. C. Train.

The officers were named by Drew Pearson, an American newspaper correspondent at the conference as having been "sympathetic" to Mr. Shearer's aims, and Admiral Reeves was charged with being the "man who most frequently expressed the hope that the conference would not succeed."

Borah Wants Officers Heard.

Senator Borah, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who was the first to demand an inquiry into charges that an American naval lobby had much to do with the failure of the Geneva conference, said today that he had seen the testimony before the subcommittee yesterday to the effect that Mr. Shearer "was in close touch with certain Admirals in Geneva."

"This inevitably points to the proposition that they must come before the subcommittee and testify," Senator Borah testified. "I know all along that most of the Admirals in the Navy were opposed to disarmament and that a number were using their influence against it."

It is believed that other members of the naval staff of the American delegation will either be asked or will volunteer to testify before the subcommittee. Among those likely to volunteer their testimony will be Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, the naval delegate for the United States at the conference.

Foundation of Examination Laid.

The foundation for the examination of Mr. Shearer as to his activities at the Geneva conference and after his return to the United States in behalf of American shipbuilding companies has been laid in the testimony given by officers of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, who told of employing him to conduct campaigns for the merchant marine, to visit Geneva, and, after his return from the conference, to continue his efforts for the merchant marine.

The committee thus far is said to have given no thought to the nature

SIMMONS MOVES TO STRIP PRESIDENT OF TARIFF POWER

Tariff Amendment Would Also Reduce Board to Fact-Finding Body.

VOTE PROBABLE ON TUESDAY

Battle Lines Are Tightly Drawn, With One Poll Indicating a Tie Is Likely.

FARM GROUP BACKS CHANGE

Fess, in Debate, Upholds Hoover's Statement Urging That Rate Authority Be Retained.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Planning to bring the issue over the flexible provisions of the tariff law to a conclusion early next week, Senator Simmons, leader for the Democratic-Progressive coalition, introduced in the Senate late today an amendment to repeal the flexible clauses, strip the President of all powers to proclaim rates, and to convert the Tariff Commission into a purely fact-finding body to assist Congress.

The Simmons amendment, which will supplant the proposal the Senator recently made to wipe out the flexible sections altogether, was presented in order to obtain a preferential parliamentary position, and to win stronger support of the farm bloc.

Because of the parliamentary situation, the new amendment will be the first thing voted upon, probably next Tuesday. The other amendment would not have had this strategic status.

The amendment would direct the Tariff Commission, on application of any interested party, to hold public hearings when new rates are demanded, investigate relative production costs here and abroad and report the facts to the President. So far the amendment is more or less close to present laws, but instead of the President being able to proclaim a changed rate, as at present, the Simmons plan would make him virtually only a transmission agency.

Congress Would Set the Rate.

The amendment says the President "shall" send the Tariff Commission findings to Congress, with or without his recommendations. Congress would then make the rate.

"The President upon receipt of any such report of the commission, shall promptly transmit the report to the Congress with his recommendations, if any, with respect to the increase or decrease in duty proposed by the commission," the amendment reads.

Obviously the measure was drawn to appeal to the farm bloc, which wishes to be in position to have tariff rates on agricultural products adjusted, at various times, between regular revisions of the tariff. The farm bloc is generally opposed, however, to allowing the President and the Tariff Commission to control these readjustments. As the Simmons amendment stands, legislation for the benefit of agriculture could come before Congress at undesignated periods, and be quickly disposed of.

Arguments that an opportunity for such "pop-gun" legislation, as it is called, would open the doors for general tariff revision, as President Hoover fears, were met this afternoon by indications that there may be legislation to prevent such a development. On the floor Senator Gillett, old-line Republican, Senator Simmons and one of two others seemed to agree that it would be advisable. There were strong intimations that conservatives would offer a bill prescribing that only the particular tariff rate in question could be considered at the time.

Farm bloc Senators are generally expected to support the Simmons amendment, although not regarding it as altogether satisfactory. Senator Borah, for example, said this af-

Fling at Mussolini Rule Costs Spanish Business House $3,600

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Sept. 27.—A Spanish business house has had to pay 25,000 pesetas (about $3,600) for writing the following to the Italian Chamber of Commerce:

"We cannot enter into commercial relations with you while there is no change in the Italian political régime."

Premier Primo de Rivera announced that the Spanish Government had imposed this fine upon the Barcelona business house "Casa Masport" because Masport had made this statement in a letter.

PEACOX CONVICTED, BUT ESCAPES CHAIR

Jury, Out Six Hours, Brings in Second Degree Murder Verdict for Wife Slayer.

HE GETS 20 YEARS TO LIFE

Judge in His Charge to Jurors Had Advised Them to Rule Out Sentiment.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Earl Peacox was found guilty of second degree murder tonight for the killing of his wife Dorothy on April 21. Supreme Court Justice Tompkins, who presided at the trial, sentenced him immediately to twenty years to life in State prison. The jury, composed entirely of married men, deliberated more than six hours.

The 21-year-old radio repair man, pale when he entered the court room to learn his fate, slumped in his chair as he heard the word "guilty." But when the foreman of the jury added, "of murder in the second degree," he straightened up. Then he bent over and kissed his mother, who threw her arms around him. It was their only show of emotion. The crowd in the court room uttered a short cheer, which quickly subsided when Justice Tompkins sharply rapped his gavel.

It was 10:36 when Justice Tompkins emerged from his chambers and took his place on the bench. The jurors, grave and tired looking, filed into their places. The defendant was manacled to a deputy sheriff.

"Have you found a verdict, gentlemen?" inquired Justice Tompkins.

"We have," replied Edwin C. Rossmassler of Scarsdale, foreman of the jury.

"And what is your verdict?"

"Guilty."

There was a pause.

"Of murder in the second degree."

"You are dismissed," said Justice Tompkins.

No Appeal to Be Taken.

Then as the jurors departed, the judge summoned the young man, who had killed his wife and later burned her body, before the bench.

The clerk took his pedigree. Sydney Syme, chief defense counsel, waived his right to two days in which to make motions. There will be no appeal.

The prisoner gave his age, 21, and his birthplace, Yonkers, in a voice that was so low that even those in the tightly packed room about him could scarcely hear. He looked straight at the judge.

"Earl Peacox," said Justice Tompkins, "I sentence you to prison for an indeterminate term of twenty years to life."

Bailiffs cleared the court room as Peacox was led back to his cell in the Westchester County Jail, where he will remain probably over the week-end before going to Sing Sing Prison.

It was then 10:40. The whole proceedings had taken less than five minutes.

It was reported that the jury had required four ballots to reach its verdict. The same source of information had it that four jurors had been for conviction in the first degree, two for second degree and six for manslaughter in the first degree, on the first ballot. On none of the ballots were any votes cast for acquittal.

The jurors left the court room at 4:14 this afternoon to begin deliberating with a warning from Supreme Court Justice Tompkins to banish sympathy from their consideration.

All day they had listened to the closing pleas of District Attorney Frank H. Coyne and Mr. Syme, the defense counsel.

Court Gives Alternatives.

Justice Tompkins told the jurors they could acquit Peacox only if they believed he had been insane at the time of the killing. The other alternatives outlined by the judge were manslaughter in the first degree, murder in the second degree or murder in the first degree.

After a little less than two hours of deliberation the jurors interrupted their debate and took a one-hour recess for dinner. Returning to their third-floor chamber at 8 P. M., they settled down to their labors, while the crowd in the court room below increased.

At 9 o'clock the jurors asked to see exhibits. They wanted to scrutinize the medical examiner's report of his autopsy on the body of the slain girl and they wanted another look at the piece of yellow paper on which Frances Newman, who had been a

HURRICANE KILLS TWENTY IN NASSAU; GALE REACHES MIAMI

The Bahaman Capital Suffers Severe Damage in Storm—'Not One Building' Escaped.

CITY NOW IN DARKNESS

Small Vessels in the Harbor Reported Wrecked—Sea Wall Broken.

58-MILE WIND AT MIAMI

Isles Off the Florida Coast Are Reported to Be Feeling Brunt of the Storm.

By The Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 27.—Twenty deaths as a result of the hurricane at Nassau were reported to The Miami Herald late tonight in a dispatch received here by the Tropical Radio station.

The dispatch stated that the storm damage was "worse collectively than ever before and that no building escaped injury."

Nassau is flooded and in darkness, with telephones out of commission, the dispatch stated. The water system, however, remains intact.

Boats Wrecked as Wall Breaks.

The sea wall was broken in several places by the force of the windlashed sea, which also wrecked practically all small vessels anchored inside.

Grantstown suffered severely with many houses unroofed and wrecked.

Radio sets on other islands in the Bahama group have been silent.

The dispatch continued with "devastation is whipped to shreds. The Governor's house is badly damaged, as are all churches. The Baptist Church on Shirley Street is leveled, with the cathedral the least damaged."

Nassau's famous hotels were reported not to be damaged to any great extent. The dispatch ends with the statement, "We have had no communication with the outside world since Wednesday."

The dispatch was sent by R. E. Murphy, representative of The Miami Herald at Nassau.

An earlier message from the Superintendent of the Government Telegraphs, sent before a check on casualties, said:

"The hurricane began Wednesday night and continued until Friday morning. Centre, two hours' duration, passed over city 9 to 11 o'clock Wednesday night. No loss of life reported. Property and shipping damage considerable."

Miami Darkened as Gale Arrives.

Miami and vicinity were struck by a fifty-eight-mile-an-hour squall tonight during which the barometer dropped to 29.65, the lowest reading here since the tropical hurricane was reported off the Florida east coast several days ago.

Miami Beach was thrown into total darkness when power lines there were blown down. Electric light service in many sections of Miami also was disrupted, but no serious property damage was reported.

Meanwhile, the hurricane, said by meteorologists to be centred about one hundred miles southwest of Miami and moving westward, brought grave fears to the Florida Keys and the northern coast of Cuba. Government Weather Bureau warnings were broadcast to inhabitants of unsheltered keys.

Just before midnight Key West reported a twenty-five-mile wind from the north gradually increasing. The storm centre at that time was said by the Weather Bureau to be about 150 miles east of the city.

A dispatch from Bimini received here at midnight said that city was being lashed by a seventy-mile an-

Byrd Aide in Antarctic Hears Ceremony Here Bestowing Medal on Him for Service to Radio

A radio message flashed out from the Crystal Studio at the Radio World's Fair in Madison Square Garden last night to carry word to Malcolm P. Hanson, chief radio engineer of Commander Byrd's South Polar Expedition, 11,000 miles away, that for distinguished service he had received this year's medal of the Veteran Wireless Operators' Association. A few minutes later a reply was received from Mr. Hanson, saying he had received the dots and dashes notifying him of the award.

The ceremony was carried over wires to a short-wave station at Schenectady, N. Y., whence it was broadcast over two WGY short-wave transmitters to station WFA at Little America, Antarctica, where Hanson and his comrades were listening. The reply from Hanson was received at the Rocky Point (L. I.) short-wave radio depot of the Radio Corporation of America and relayed over wires to the Crystal Studio. Many guests at the radio show were at the studio to hear the ceremony. The program was also broadcast over WEAF and NBC coast-to-coast network.

David Sarnoff, vice president of the Radio Corporation, made the presentation address before the WEAF microphone in the Crystal Studio. Mrs. Hanson received the medal of honor for her husband, after which Mr. Sarnoff tapped off the message to Little America, using a special telegraph key installed for the occasion. Mr. Sarnoff's code message to Hanson said:

"Honored to inform you that you are awarded the gold medal of the Veteran Wireless Operators' Association as the outstanding wireless operator of the year. Best 73s. David Sarnoff."

The expression "73s" is a code abbreviation for "good luck." Hanson's reply, in code, follows:

"Accepting honor of gold medal award, must say our work is made possible through the foresight of our great leader, and of associates, Mason, Peterson, Burkner and Grenlie, and universal cooperation. The vital nut is still ahead. Thanks and greetings. Hanson."

Hanson also sent a radiogram through The New York Times station thanking Mr. Sarnoff, the City Service Company and the officials of WGY for the broadcast. He said Mrs. Hanson's voice had come in "better than at home on the telephone."

The award is made annually to the radio operator who during the current year most distinguishes himself in performance of his duty.

LA GUARDIA REVEALS VITALE GOT $19,940 ROTHSTEIN LOAN; MAGISTRATE ADMITS IT; BANTON WILL SPEED TRIAL OF M'MANUS

WILL GO TO COURT MONDAY

A Verdict Is Promised Before Election on Murder Charge.

DENIES PAPERS ARE LOST

District Attorney Says Action Is Due to Political Clamor, but Predicts Conviction.

ROTHSTEIN BOOKS SHOWN

His Loan Accounts in Custody of Estate Lawyer—Walker's Friends Criticize Banton.

As a result of the injection of the Rothstein case into the municipal campaign by the opponents of Tammany, District Attorney Joab H. Banton announced yesterday that he would take immediate steps to put George A. McManus on trial for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, and would apply on Monday for a special panel of talesmen from which to select a jury.

Mr. Banton explained that necessary technicalities would prevent him from having the trial next week but that he expected to be able to start it the second week of October, which would make possible a verdict before election.

Mr. Banton's decision to bring McManus to trial without Hyman Biller, who with two other unnamed men was indicted with him, followed repeated charges of neglect and incompetency on the part of his office and the police by former Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, candidate of the Square Deal Party for Mayor, Representative F. H. La Guardia, the Republican-Fusion candidate for Mayor, and Frederic R. Coudert Jr., Republican candidate for District Attorney. Each had charged that the police and the District Attorney's office had protected politicians and Mr. Enright in addition had said that men on the Supreme Court bench and in City Hall had been among those who had borrowed from Rothstein.

Says Rothstein Papers Are Missing.

Mr. Coudert followed by charging that papers had been abstracted from the Rothstein files after they had come into the possession of Tammany and Mr. La Guardia named Nathan Burkan, a well known lawyer and a Tammany Assembly district leader, as the man who now had the "little black books" in which Rothstein kept accounts of money loaned by him.

Mr. Banton's announcement that he would proceed with the trial of McManus was accepted by the political opponents of Tammany as indicating that their criticism had been effective.

"We have forced them to do it," Mr. La Guardia declared.

Mr. Enright also expressed belief that his criticism and demand that McManus be brought to trial had forced the District Attorney to act.

Mr. Burkan, denouncing Mr. La Guardia's intimation that he had destroyed the Rothstein memorandum books as "blackguardly," said he had turned them over with all other Rothstein papers to L. Gainsburg of 35 Wall Street, attorney for the Rothstein estate. The books in question were shown to reporters in Mr.

Banton Says He Never Heard Of Rothstein Letter on Vitale

"Mr. La Guardia has made a statement that there is a copy of a letter in the Rothstein files showing that Rothstein had lent $19,940 to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale," District Attorney Banton was informed late yesterday afternoon. "Do you care to say anything about that?"

"I know nothing about it," replied the District Attorney. "I never heard of it."

The District Attorney was being interviewed at the time on the handling of the Rothstein personal files from the day they were taken into custody at the slain gambler's Fifth Avenue apartment by the Rothstein administrators, soon after the death of the gambler in a hospital. He had previously denied that he knew of any documents in the Rothstein files which would show that a "high official" had borrowed money from the gambler.

VITALE SAYS FRIEND ARRANGED FOR LOAN

Explains Man of High Standing, Now Dead, Got Money for Him Through Rothstein Concern.

NOT A PERSONAL DEAL

Challenges La Guardia to Say It Was and Insists He Then Will Sue for Libel.

Magistrate Albert H. Vitale admitted last evening that he had obtained a $20,000 loan from a corporation controlled by the late Arnold Rothstein, murdered gambler, but denied that there was a "personal transaction" between him and the gambler. He explained that the loan was arranged for him by a friend of high professional standing, who had not told him where he expected to obtain the money. Mr. Vitale said that he had met Rothstein only twice.

Characterizing Representative La Guardia's statement as "despicable," Mr. Vitale said he would consult an attorney this morning as to whether he has grounds for a suit for libel against the Republican nominee. He challenged Mr. La Guardia to state that the transaction between him and the murdered gambler had been a "personal" one.

Friend Is Now Dead.

"If he or any one else says that it was, then I will sue for libel," asserted the magistrate. His story of the transaction was as follows:

"On June 15, 1928, I met a personal friend of mine, a professional man of high standing whose name I do not care to bring into this controversy because he has since died. In the course of the conversation I mentioned that I needed about $25,000 in ready cash temporarily, and he promised to see what he could do for me. I gave him a note bearing my signature but made out in blank.

"On either June 17 or 18, I am not quite sure which, I received by a colored messenger a letter containing a check for $19,940, representing a loan of $20,000 less the interest for two weeks. Either the letter or the check bore Arnold Rothstein's signature, and that was my first knowledge that he was concerned in the transaction.

"I want to make it very emphatic that the transaction was not a personal one between Rothstein and myself. I had only met Rothstein twice in my life and I never went to him to borrow money. My acquaintance with him was only a casual one.

"When the note became due on July 2, I drew my personal check on the Claremont National Bank for $20,000, payable to the Rothmere Mortgage Corporation, and mailed it to them. I have the canceled check in my possession now, showing my repayment of the loan."

Magistrate Vitale displayed the check to reporters. It had been endorsed by the Rothmere Mortgage Corporation with an ordinary business stamp. He was asked if he believed that the Rothstein files would show the transaction.

"Not unless he happened to retain the canceled check made out to me when he got it back," he said. "It may very well have been destroyed when the transaction was completed. It is highly probable that it never came to Mr. Banton's knowledge. I have had no communication with Mr. Banton about it. I don't even know Mr. Banton personally."

The magistrate was asked if he cared to comment on Mr. La Guardia's statement which first brought the matter to public attention.

"I think it was the most despicable thing a man could do," he replied vehemently. "The Major knows me well enough to have called me up on the telephone and asked me about

PROOF IN GAMBLER'S FILES

Secret Documents Show Official Borrowed, La Guardia Says.

CALLS ON MAYOR TO ACT

Asks Him to Support Vitale or Repudiate Him as Active Campaign Aide in Bronx.

FIRST OFFICIAL INVOLVED

Enright Had Charged Solution of Mystery Would Disclose Loans to Public Men.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican nominee for Mayor, declared last night that City Magistrate Albert H. Vitale of the Bronx had received a loan of $19,940 from Arnold Rothstein, the gambler who was murdered last November, in return for his note, payable on July 2, 1928. He added that documents in the much discussed files of the dead gambler would prove his statement to be true.

Mr. La Guardia in his statement called upon Mayor Walker either to "repudiate or support Judge Vitale."

The Bronx Magistrate, according to an announcement that came on Thursday from the headquarters of the Citizens Committee for the re-election of Walker, Berry and McKee, in the Lafcourt National Building, is an aide in the Walker campaign, occupying a key position in the Democratic fight in his own borough. According to the announcement, John J. Freschi, former Justice of the Court of Special Sessions, who has accepted the position at the head of the Italian-American division of the Walker forces, had appointed Magistrate Vitale vice chairman for the Bronx, in charge of the campaign among the Italians in that borough.

The La Guardia statement was the first in the heated campaign discussion of the Rothstein case to contain the name of any person in public office involved in money transactions with the gambler. In that respect it bears out to some extent charges made on Thursday by former Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, Square Deal candidate for Mayor, that persons in public life had borrowed money from Rothstein.

The statement was made by Mr. La Guardia after he had been informed that earlier in the day District Attorney Banton had authorized a statement that no notes or any documents compromising politicians or public men were to be found in the Rothstein files.

Lays Misstatement to Banton.

Here is Mr. La Guardia's statement:

When Mr. Banton said the Rothstein files contained no notes or documents compromising to men in political or public life he did not make a correct statement. His office examined the Rothstein files.

When he states there was no record, no statement, no document indicating any financial transaction between Rothstein and any man in political or public life, he makes a misstatement of the facts. That is significant in connection with this case.

The files will show, in copy, that a letter was sent by Rothstein, transmitting a check for $19,940, being the proceeds of a note due July 2, 1928, to the Hon. Albert Vitale, a city magistrate, at 561 East Tremont Avenue in the Bronx, and expressing the happiness of Mr. Rothstein at being able to accommodate the judge.

Judge Vitale is at this very moment actively campaigning for Mayor Walker, has made several speeches and has announced the formation by him of an Italian-American committee to support the Mayor. I now ask Mayor Walker either to repudiate or support Judge Vitale. I am sure that Mayor Walker at least will call upon a city magistrate to explain a $19,000 check received from a man who, Mr. Banton declares, was a notorious gambler.

My reason for making this statement is Mr. Banton's defiance of me. All I want is action in this case. I have other issues to discuss. But this is a matter involving the proper policing of the city and the proper administration of justice, and as such it is of wide public interest and a proper matter for discussion in the campaign.

Refutes Banton Statement.

The first inkling that Mr. La Guardia might be in a position to supplement the charges made by Mr. Enright, who has held the centre of the stage in the campaign discussion of the Rothstein case, came when Banton had denied the existence in the Rothstein files of any records reflecting upon persons in politics or public life, or involving them in any money transactions with the gambler.

Japanese Cabinet Votes to Accept Invitation To 5-Power Naval Parley, Believing It on Way

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Sept. 27.—Anticipating that Ambassador Matsudaira in London would receive the British invitation to the five-power naval conference before Premier MacDonald sailed for the United States, the Japanese Cabinet approved its acceptance. As Premier Hamaguchi is about to leave for important ceremonies at the national shrines the Cabinet authorized Foreign Minister Shidehara and Naval Minister Takarabe to answer it.

If Premier MacDonald's communication takes up the purpose of the conference, Japan's reply may be delayed till Premier Hamaguchi's return, but if it is a simple invitation acceptance will be immediate.

The reply will express appreciation of the sincerity of the Anglo-American efforts and declare that Japan will participate with pleasure in the naval parley. The point that Japan desires a reduction in naval forces, not only limitation, will be repeated and the government will indicate its expectation that the special defensive requirements of the respective powers will be fully considered.

Admiral Takarabe said after the Cabinet meeting that he believed France and Italy would accept the invitation, as the conference anticipates by only a year the meeting contemplated in the Washington naval treaty. He said he thought it would be wise to have an exchange of views before the conference, but added that the Washington parley had succeeded without that preliminary. He expressed his hope that the conference would succeed, and that appears to be the general sentiment here.

his chair in an intent attitude. Then he smiled.

"That is not so," he declared. "There is one man, prominent in political life and holding public office, one who at present is very active in the Bronx, campaigning for Mayor Walker against me. He got money from Rothstein and the amount was in five figures. If Mr. Banton does not mention his name before you go to press, I will give it to you with the amount. I will make him jump now. Tell Mr. Banton not to make rash statements."

After Mr. Banton had been reached by telephone this message was brought back to Mr. La Guardia:

"Nothing of the kind was disclosed by the Rothstein papers. He (La Guardia) can go as far as he likes."

The Republican candidate was then asked if he did not regard it possible that no record of the transaction he referred to was contained in the files of the murdered gambler; that possibly if such a record had existed it might have been removed from the files.

"Anything that was removed from the files I would have been in no position to get," Mr. La Guardia replied.

He then said that before making public the information in his possession, he would like to have Mayor Walker questioned and if the Mayor would assert there was no record of the transaction he had in mind, he would tell what he knew. Then he consented to talk, asking, however, that he receive time to consider what he should say. He asked for fifteen minutes but it was nearly an hour later that he made his statement regarding Magistrate Vitale.

After he had told his story Mr. La Guardia was asked if he felt convinced that the Rothstein files contained a record of the Vitale transaction. He was reminded of reports current shortly after Rothstein's death, while the District Attorney's office and the police were at work investigating the murder, that documents had been abstracted from the mass of papers before they had been impounded by the court and transmitted to the grand jury.

"The papers that did not reach the grand jury," he replied, "will never be seen by me, no, nor by anybody else—you can bank on that."

Earlier in the day Mr. La Guardia had claimed credit for forcing the hand of Mr. Banton. This was after Mr. Banton had announced that he would place George A. McManus, indicted for the murder of Rothstein, on trial next week.

Sees Tammany Forced.

"We made Banton do it," he said. "I am not interested in the Rothstein case, except in its relation to the proper policing of the city and the proper administration of justice in our courts. We forced Tammany into making Banton take action. If we can do that, with the campaign hardly started; if we've got them on the run now, it should give the people an idea of what we will be in a position to do when we are in power in City Hall and the police and the District Attorney no longer will be under the necessity to refrain from action in order to afford protection to men high up in politics and public life. When we get into power it will not take an election to get the police to function."

"What do you think was the reason for this precipitate action on the part of Mr. Banton to place McManus on trial?" he was asked.

He arose and, turning a couple of leaves on the calendar hanging on the wall by the side of his desk, placed his finger on election day.

"This," he said, "Nov. 5. Another big thing in this case is that for the first time in the history of our courts you have here a man indicted for murder in the first degree who has been let out on bail. If they really go through with this trial there will either be a great deal of fireworks and interesting disclosures or they will fumble the case and it will fall down with an acquittal for McManus."

Frederic R. Coudert Jr., Republican candidate for District Attorney, said that in his opinion it was extraordinary that McManus should be placed on trial before the arrest of Herman Biller, in view of the admission by Mr. Banton that it was doubtful whether a conviction could be had as long as Biller was at large.

"The trial of McManus is designed to divert attention, as was the recent statement of former Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain, the Tammany candidate for District Attorney," Mr. Coudert said. "It all goes to show that there is a lot in back of it."

Another Letter to Banton.

Mr. La Guardia made public during the day the text of a letter he had sent to Mr. Banton, in which he asked the latter to give to the public the contents of the several "little black books" in the Rothstein files, reputed to contain a record of the gambler's extensive loans and other money transactions. The letter said:

My Dear Mr. Banton:

I do not want to appear annoying, but this Rothstein matter is of such great public interest that I expect to discuss it for several days in the course of this campaign.

It is a legitimate and proper issue. Least it may be said that we are simply seeking to discuss it and get no action, I shall, from time to time, present to you clues in the case to sustain the theory of the crime.

The files of Arnold Rothstein would, in and of themselves, reveal some very startling and shocking information. Yet these files, I am informed, are not intact now. However, among these files and papers of Arnold Rothstein there were several little black books which contained memoranda of his personal accounts, particularly money handed out, given and loaned by him. The several little black books are not now in the files in the custody of officials. They were in the possession, I am informed, of R. Burkan, a Tammany district leader, and who appeared as attorney for the estate. These files were subpoenaed by several officials who were looking into the narcotic end of the case. Mr. Burkan admitted to them that the little black books were in existence. These books and other important papers are missing from the files finally produced to the Federal officials.

May I therefore suggest that you make public the contents of these little black books? The information contained in all of them might go a great ways in alleviating public anxiety as to the connection and attitude of officials in this case.

Whether or not you care to follow the clues which I give you, for goodness' sake do something!

Very truly yours,

F. H. LA GUARDIA.

Last night Mr. La Guardia said he had not yet received an answer to his latest communication from the District Attorney.

LA GUARDIA CHARGES 'LET UP' BY POLICE

He Says Tammany Has Ordered Arrests to Cease Till After Election to Avoid Friction.

SEES LEVY ON SPEAKEASIES

Asserts They Also Have Been Told No Action Will Be Taken—Calls Rivals "Rattled" Over Rothstein.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Mayor, campaigning in Queens last night, charged that Tammany had brought about the issuance of a police order to all traffic police officers to "let up" on arrests until after election day.

"Keep your eyes shut and do nothing," was the order which he said had been passed to the police so as to avoid bitterness against the City Administration on the part of private drivers and to allay the grievances of taxicab operators smarting under Tammany "hounding."

Mr. La Guardia also charged that political levies had been made on all speakeasy proprietors and that the word had gone out that there would be no more arrests. He made his accusations at the Richmond Hill and Woodhaven Republican Clubs. He also addressed a meeting earlier at the New Era Club, Inc., 274 East Broadway.

Declaring that the announcement that Monday had been set as the trial date for George McManus, indicted for the Rothstein murder, showed that Tammany was rattled, Mr. La Guardia said:

"Let me give you another instance of Tammany's despair. This will illustrate that the City Government, the laws and ordinances—every department—are all being used not for the protection of life and property, not for the proper administration of government, but solely for political purposes.

"Only a few days ago an order was issued over the desk to all traffic police officers to let up on arrests, not to bother about any violation of any ordinance, to 'go easy,' to be good fellows. The police have been hounding the poor taxicab drivers of this city for the last four years. Will any more? They have not only been hounding them, but down in the cab inspection office the boys always had to 'see some one' to get by with their inspections. They have been harassed by changes, by new meters, everything having a direct connection with Tammany Hall politicians. Now, all of a sudden, on the eve of election, because they know the taxicab drivers and private drivers have smarted under the treatment they have received, the police are told, 'Keep your eyes shut and do nothing.'

"That is not all. The inspectors have been sending their plain-clothes men to all the speakeasies, and the word has gone out that there will be no more arrests. Evidently satisfactory arrangements have been made for the political contributions, and now the inspectors are told to let the word come out that Tammany Hall needs help. Of course, the speakeasies will continue to pay tribute, for that is something Tammany politicians never forget."

Tammany, rattled and confused, was now on the defensive, Mr. La Guardia said, adding:

"Conditions are so bad that some of their own candidates are compelled to repudiate the present administration. Tammany is beaten and is just commencing to realize it."

Mr. La Guardia will make his first speech under other than Republican auspices at the Bay Ridge High School in Brooklyn on Tuesday evening. The meeting has been arranged by the Progressive La Guardia Committee for Social Welfare, of which J. A. H. Hopkins, former Bull Moose leader in New Jersey, is the head. More recently Mr. Hopkins has been head of the Committee of Forty-eight, an organization of liberal tendencies.

It was announced at La Guardia headquarters at the Hotel Cadillac yesterday that daily radio broadcasts from the headquarters would begin Tuesday evening, when Mr. La Guardia will open the radio campaign over Station WPCH. The broadcasts will be between 7 and 7:30 P. M. every evening except Sunday. Irwin Kurtz, fusion candidate for Justice of the City Court, will introduce the speakers.

ARON PICKS QUEENS FOR BERRY DEBATE

Suggests Oct. 3 at Jamaica High School—Controller Indicates He Does Not Approve Plan.

Harold G. Aron, Republican candidate for Controller, made public yesterday a telegram he had sent to Controller Charles W. Berry, his Democratic opponent, inviting the latter to meet him in public debate on a series of questions on the Queens sewer scandal publicly addressed to Mr. Berry some days ago.

Mr. Aron suggested that the debate be held at the Jamaica High School on Oct. 3. Jamaica is situated in a part of Queens where the people were affected by the extortionate assessments for sewer construction under the fraudulent contracts let during the Connolly administration. For this reason, Mr. Aron said, he regarded the Jamaica High School as the logical forum for the discussion. Mr. Aron said that if any other date or place should prove more convenient to Controller Berry, he would consider any proposal made by the latter.

Speaking yesterday at a meeting of members of the Speakers' Bureau at Republican headquarters Mr. Aron discussed the failure of the present Controller to render any public accounting of his settlement of claims and his purchases of land for the city and his disregard of a charter provision making mandatory the publication of reports rendered to the Controller by the Bureau of Municipal Investigations and Statistics. The bureau, Mr. Aron pointed out, is in part an agency for "cost accounting."

"This violation of charter requirement calling for the submitting of annual reports to the people is a persistent flaw in the present administration and is indicative of its palpable disregard for the public's right to be informed on all matters pertaining to municipal affairs," Mr. Aron said. "It is our purpose to make the publication of required annual reports compulsory upon city officials, with a definite penalty for failure to provide such information.

"After my election nothing will have my attention sooner than the effort to find ways and means of complete publicity as to the Controller's office and the full and intelligible presentation to the public not only of reports called for by law but of any other reports which I think will help the people to a better understanding of the business side of their government."

He promised if elected to try to find a way to insure full publicity on matters involving the Controller's office.

In discussing the settlement of claims by the Controller Mr. Aron said that in some years there were more than $1,000,000 of such claims. He said no reports were ever made of claims that had been settled, the amounts and other details involved. The $350,000 claim of former Controller Charles L. Craig, but for its size and the public interest in it, Mr. Aron declared, probably would have been settled in camera.

He asked a series of questions of the Controller, including whether he admitted having the powers attributed to him in the settlement of claims, whether he ever had rendered a public report of such settlements and whether he at this time was willing to make public a list of settlements made during his administration, with the amounts involved and the details of the settlements.

At the Controller's office it was said that Controller Berry had received no notice of the latest proposal of the Republican candidate for Controller; that he had given the chance to Mr. Aron for a debate soon after the original questions had been asked by offering to appear at a Republican dinner given by the Republican Business Men, Inc., and the Republican Business Women, Inc., Thursday evening; that this offer had not been accepted by Mr. Aron and that the Controller did not feel he should be dragged all over the city "to get some advertising for Mr. Aron."

CALLS WALKER REGIME BEST CITY EVER HAD

Mrs. Hoffman, Candidate for Register, Cites 'Tremendous Public Improvements.'

New York has "never had a better administration than during the last four years under Mayor Walker," Mrs. Rebecca Hoffman, Democratic candidate for Register of New York County, declared at a meeting held last night at the Commodore in her honor by the Women's Democratic Club. The current administration has been outstanding, she held, because, "never before have such tremendous public improvements been accomplished in so short a time."

She went on to say that although being a candidate was a "new experience" for her she was well versed in politics. She expressed gratitude for the honor of her nomination.

Mrs. A. Frank Imhoff, president of the club, who presided, was applauded when she declared that "as women we will put Mrs. Hoffman over bigger than any other candidate."

Sl.. announced that the club would give a campaign luncheon Oct. 26 at the Commodore to which all Democratic candidates will be invited. The greater part of the evening was given over to discussion of plans for the luncheon.

HILLES, BACK, CALLS LA GUARDIA STRONG

Republican Committeeman Here on Aquitania After Six-Week Vacation Abroad.

FINDS GERMANY ACTIVE

Also Praises Housing Development in Amsterdam—F. L. Kohlmann and Dr. Levin on Liner.

Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman from New York, returned yesterday on the Aquitania with Mrs. Hilles after spending six weeks motoring in England, France, Germany and Holland.

Mr. Hilles said that he found Germany the most active of any of the countries. Berlin, he said, was a perfect beehive of industry.

"In Amsterdam, a city of 750,000," Mr. Hilles continued, "I found that apartment buildings to house 250,000 persons had been constructed in the outlying circles beyond the Royal Museum near the River Amstel.

"This does not mean an addition of 250,000 to the population, but that the Hollanders are moving away from the ancient, unsanitary sixteenth century houses overlooking the canals into healthier surroundings.

Talk of MacDonald's Visit.

"In London the people are talking of Premier MacDonald's visit to Washington and believe that the object of the mission is to come to a better understanding with America, principally on naval reduction. I called upon Ambassador Dawes and requested that he extend to the Premier an invitation to be the guest of the Ohio Society of New York for a luncheon while he is in this city. I received a reply through the embassy that Mr. MacDonald's official engagements over here are in the hands of the State Department and his unofficial program is to be taken care of by the British Ambassador."

When asked about his views on the political situation, Mr. Hilles said he had not seen an American newspaper for six weeks until the ship reached Quarantine.

He said that he would support La Guardia for Mayor in the coming election because he believed him to be a strong man and "full of fight."

Another passenger was Francis L. Kohlmann, corporation lawyer of 27 Cedar Street and head of the firm of Kohlmann & Austrian.

"The industrial situation in England is much improved since last year," he said. "The total number of unemployed in England on Sept. 10 was 1,147,505. This was 2,192 fewer than the week before and 145,159 fewer than the year previous. In the last five weeks unemployment has been reduced 21,800, and so far the press and public are solidly behind the Labor Government, which has not done anything wrong yet."

Dr. Levin Arrives.

Dr. Sharya Levin, a member of the General Council of the Zionist Organization, who spends the greater part of each year in Palestine, arrived on the liner. He was at the World Congress in Zurich when the rioting in Jerusalem occurred. He said that the Jews had always got along well with the Arabs in Palestine and the recent riots would not have occurred had the British officials not been too optimistic. They believed there would always be peace between the Zionists and the Moslem population, so that when trouble came the British authorities were not prepared to meet it, he said.

Jacob Landau, manager of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, who visited Palestine last May, was also on the Aquitania.

Others on the liner were Edward H. Butler, president of the American Publishers' Association, and Mrs. Butler and their daughter Katherine; W. J. Brown, publisher of Editor and Publisher of New York, and Mrs. Borwn; Viscount and Viscountess Bearsted, Lord Barnby, Sir Edwin L. Lutyens, British artist; S. R. Guggenheim and Sir John Parsons, surgeon.

DEMOCRATS EXPECTED TO REJECT CALLAGHAN

Naming of Own Candidate for Supreme Bench Forecast at Brooklyn Convention Today.

The Republican and Democratic conventions to select candidates for the Supreme Court in the Second Judicial District will be held today in Brooklyn. The Democrats will assemble at noon in Jefferson Hall, Court Square. At the same hour the Republicans will meet in the court room of the Appellate Term in the Supreme Court Building, Joralemon Street.

The Republican convention, with delegates from Suffolk, Nassau, Queens, Kings and Richmond Counties, is not expected to take up much time, as it is likely that Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan, whose term expires this year, will be renominated by acclamation.

The Democratic leaders have had difficulty in deciding whether to endorse Justice Callaghan and it was reported last night that they would name a Democrat.

Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Mayor, has demanded that John H. McCooey, Democratic leader, give Justice Callaghan a bi-partisan endorsement. Paul Block, publisher of the Brooklyn Standard-Union, after printing one open letter asking Mr. McCooey to endorse Justice Callaghan, followed it with another calling on the Justice to tell where he stood on the La Guardia attacks. Without naming Mr. La Guardia, Justice Callaghan, in his reply, stated that he "emphatically disapproved of any such attacks," and expressed the hope that the judiciary would not be made "a political football in any campaign."

Mr. McCooey has not made known his views but close friends point out that two Republicans were appointed to the Brooklyn Federal bench in the last few months, making five Republicans in all.

Boxing Commissioner George R. Brower was said last night to be leading the Democrats seeking the post. Others prominently mentioned are County Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin, State Superintendent of Insurance Albert Conway, District Attorney Charles J. Dodd and Edward Ward McMahon.

THOMAS DENOUNCES CITY MAGISTRATES

Declares Belief Exists That They Know More About Politics and Pull Than Justice.

City magistrates know more about politics and pull than they know about justice, Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, charged last night in two Brooklyn meetings at the Brownsville Labor Lyceum, 219 Sackman Street, and at the Coney Island Socialist Club, 2,202 Mermaid Avenue. He put the situation squarely up to Mayor Walker, who holds the appointing power and asked the Mayor, as the ninth daily question, what he was going to do to raise the character of the magistrates' courts.

"There is an almost universal belief that the magistrates' courts in general know more about politics and pull than about justice, and this opinion has been strengthened by your appointment of 'fixers' and politicians to the magistrates' bench," the Socialist Mayoralty candidate said. "It has been strengthened by concrete happenings."

Mr. Thomas said that during the strike of waiters in a cafeteria which he did not name Magistrate Hyman Bushel had meted out very stiff sentences to strikers brought before him. While the strike was in progress, he added, Magistrate Bushel temporarily stepped down from the bench, accepted a retainer from the cafeteria owners' association and appeared against strikers before Magistrate Weil.

"Magistrate Bushel was reappointed a magistrate," Mr. Thomas said. "His only claim to the appointment was his standing as a Tammany man."

Mr. Thomas said that although overwhelming proof of fraud had been presented against several election boards following the defeat of Municipal Court Justice Panken, a Socialist, two years ago, the magistrates had refused to hold the election officials for the grand jury. At the time, he said, the court was packed with gangsters to intimidate the Socialist witnesses, who were afraid to leave the court room except in his company.

HARVEY TALKS TO HIS AIDES

Tells Heads of 47 Clubs Backing Him to Stress One or Two Issues.

Borough President George U. Harvey of Queens addressed the presidents of the forty-seven Harvey Clubs, which have been organized to work for his re-election, at his headquarters at Polk Avenue and Thirty-second Street, Jackson Heights.

Repeating his often proclaimed determination to make his campaign on his record, Mr. Harvey addressed his workers as salesmen to the people. He advised them that it was better to implant one or two ideas firmly in the minds of those with whom they talked than to discuss a wide range of subjects without making any impression with any of them.

Others who spoke were Commissioner of Public Works John J. Halleran, Fred Sasse, Mr. Harvey's campaign manager, and S. Bogart Ford, organizer of the Harvey Clubs.

TOLLER IS ADMITTED FOR 3-MONTHS' STAY

German Radical Playwright Is Released From Ellis Island After Special Inquiry.

TREATED KINDLY HE SAYS

Permitted to Enter Because His Crime Was Political—Berlin Press Ridicules Detention.

Ernst Toller, German radical playwright, was released from Ellis Island yesterday and permitted to enter the United States as a visitor for three months. He was detained when the Hamburg-American liner Reliance arrived from Germany on Thursday and was finally granted entry after he had been examined by a special board of inquiry, following orders from Washington.

Benjamin M. Day, Commissioner of Immigration, explained why Toller was held after he had been granted entry by the consulate in Berlin. He pointed out that it was required to hold an alien seeking admission if he had been in prison or convicted of any crime. Herr Toller's crime being, as it was, a political one, the rule was not considered applicable to his case.

Toller, one of whose plays, "Man and the Masses," was produced here several years ago by the Theatre Guild, left the island at noon accompanied by his lawyer, Charles Recht, 110 West Fortieth Street, who represented him at the island. They went to the Hotel Lincoln, where the author will stay while here.

On the Ellis Island ferry Herr Toller said that he had been treated very kindly on the island and repeated the question on which officials based their decision. These referred to his activities as a radical leader in Bavaria ten years ago, and the five years' imprisonment following the Munich uprising.

"Are you still in favor of political assassination?" he was asked.

"No, I never have been," he replied.

"What is your position now in relation to the Bavarian Government?"

"No diplomatic relations have been established yet."

"Are you still a Socialist?"

"Yes, I am."

The officials then questioned him about his plans here, and Toller explained that he was going to lecture on "The New Germany." He said he was not going to talk politics in the United States, as he knew nothing about it and was not interested. One reason for his visit here was to gather material for a book on "The Machine Age," he said.

Herr Toller wanted it emphasized that he was still a radical and had not changed his views, even though not connected with any political organization. He said he was not and never had been a Communist. As to reports that the playwright came at the invitation of the Theatre Guild, Mr. Recht explained that his client had been in communication with the Guild and would discuss the production of his play with its officers.

Berlin Press Criticizes Detention.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—The news of the detention of Ernst Toller, young radical playwright, at Ellis Island, has provoked an assortment of satirical editorial thrusts at American official procedure, especially because he readily obtained a visa from the American Consulate at Berlin. He therefore was entitled to assume that no obstacles would be interposed to his landing in New York.

Toller's detention on political grounds in America seems incomprehensible to a section of the Berlin press, which calls attention to the fact that the poet Toller in recent years has been permitted to appear on the lecture platform of Fascist Italy and "the oldest democracy in the world," England, without having endangered the existence of either State. Conceding the United States the sovereign right to interpret and enforce is own laws, the Vossische Zeitung, nevertheless, believes "the country where every itinerant preacher and numerous sects are permitted to offer their intellectual wares should not suppress free discussion of serious problems affecting the future of civilization." "Exclusion of Toller would expose the United States to ridicule of the whole world," observes the Vorwaerts, which designates him as a poet of European renown. After having granted him a visa it is only fair that he be permitted to land, the Socialist organ observes.

Toller said before sailing from Hamburg that he expected to encounter political difficulties in connection with his landing and even was prepared to make a $500 deposit in case it was demanded by the port authorities at New York. While admitting allegiance to the tenets of Socialism, he has not been politically active since his release from a Bavarian jail for participating in the Munich revolution of 1919, having devoted himself exclusively to literary work.

DEMOCRATS ELECT FOLEY.

Westchester County Committee Makes Him Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Westchester County Democratic Committee held its annual meeting in Grace Church here tonight. The following officers were elected for two-year terms:

HARRY T. FOLEY of Yonkers, chairman.

Mrs. CAROLINE O'DAY of Rye, first vice chairman.

Councilman STANLEY W. CHURCH of New Rochelle, second vice chairman, fourth vice chairman.

HERBERT McKENNIS of Scarsdale, third vice chairman.

Mrs. LOUIS D. BEALS of Peekskill, fourth vice chairman.

Judge LOUIS D. TEPP of Elmsford, secretary.

Controller LESLIE V. BATHMAN of Mount Vernon, treasurer.

Mr. Foley in a brief address attacked William L. Ward, who was elected Republican county chairman for the thirty-third time last Wednesday and predicted Democratic victory in the Gubernatorial election of 1930.

Baltimore Garment Makers Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 27.—Twelve hundred workers in Baltimore garment factories went on strike today. The walkout affected about sixty establishments. Chief among the strikers' demands are a 10 per cent increase in wages and a forty-four-hour week.

TALK OF DORMAN FOR CLERK

Kings County Politicians Hear Fire Commissioner Will Succeed Kelly.

Brooklyn political circles were upset yesterday by a report that Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman would be named to the position of Kings County Clerk, which has been vacant since the death of William E. Kelly a week ago. When Mr. Dorman was asked about the report, he said: "It is news to me."

Much rivalry has developed over the County Clerkship. More than ten Democratic district leaders are candidates. Democratic Leader John H. McCooey has been silent as to a selection. Yesterday it was learned that the executive committee will meet Monday night to designate a candidate and it is expected that Governor Roosevelt will appoint its choice to serve until Dec. 31 of this year. The same candidate will oppose Engelbert Bick, who was selected by the Republican Executive Committee, to run for the unexpired term ending Dec. 31, 1931.

At a meeting of the Scandia Democratic League, at Fifty-first Street and Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, last night William J. Heffernan, Democratic leader of the Seventh Assembly District, was unanimously endorsed to succeed Mr. Kelly. A resolution supporting his candidacy was drawn up to be presented to Mr. McCooey.

BANTON TO SPEED TRIAL OF M'MANUS

Gainsburg's office, but in the absence of Mr. Gainsburg they were not permitted to examine them.

Mayor's Friends Criticize Banton.

Mr. Banton's decision to proceed with the trial of McManus was received with some consternation in Tammany and by the friends of Mayor Walker. Supporters of the Mayor expressed the view that the District Attorney and his assistants had mishandled the Rothstein case from the start. They said that Mr. Banton should have brought McManus to trial last spring and fear was expressed that an acquittal on the very eve of election might have a bad political effect.

It was the general opinion in Tammany that the city campaign will turn on the Rothstein case. Mayor Walker's denial that he ever borrowed any money from Rothstein has been accepted, but there is some fear that Mr. La Guardia or Mr. Enright may have information which will enable them to charge that others prominent in Tammany were listed as debtors in the Rothstein papers.

It was admitted by Tammany men that confirmation of Mr. La Guardia's charge that Magistrate Vitale borrowed money from Rothstein might be damaging to the Walker campaign and that a series of such charges might be serious. Should such charges be made and fail of confirmation, it was the opinion in Tammany that Mayor Walker's re-election then would be made certain without necessity for much of a campaign.

Coudert Charges Speed Action.

Mr. Coudert's charge that papers had been abstracted from the Rothstein files after they had come into the possession of the officials seemed to have been the final one that led Mr. Banton to decide to proceed with the trial of McManus. In his letter to Mr. Banton Mr. Coudert asked the District Attorney if he knew that papers had been abstracted after he had deposited them with the Bank of America and before they were turned over to United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

Mr. Coudert's letter continued:

2. "Have you any information indicating whether the missing papers included promissory notes signed by one or more city officials?

3. "Have you any information as to whether letters addressed to Rothstein by city officials are among the missing documents?

4. "Have you examined the papers now in Mr. Tuttle's possession to determine whether such notes or letters still are a matter of record?

5. "Do you purpose to do anything about these missing letters?

6. "Do you still think that the Rothstein murder was merely a case of one gambler killing another?"

Mr. Banton, who said he did not intend to reply to Mr. Coudert's letter, announced his intention of trying McManus at once in a formal statement. The statement follows:

"George A. McManus was indicted Dec. 4, 1928, together with Hyman Biller and others, accused of the murder of Arnold Rothstein. Biller disappeared before the indictment. Twice he was traced by the police in company with a brother of McManus, once at Havana and once at Miami, Fla. It had been my plan not to try McManus until Biller's arrest, but I have now decided to put McManus to trial immediately.

"We are in the midst of a political campaign and the Rothstein case has been made the subject of public clamor. An organized effort has been made to persuade the public that there is something mysterious about this case and that sinister influences are at work to block prosecution. I believe that the administration of justice is best served when it has the utmost confidence of all of the people.

"I have heretofore frequently pointed out that the trial of McManus without Biller might enable McManus to escape justice by putting the blame for the killing of Rothstein on Biller. But for fear that the organized political clamor may have affected public confidence in their officials I have determined to try McManus at once and satisfy the public that no sinister influences have operated to delay his trial.

Banton Defends His Record.

"I have been the District Attorney of New York County for almost eight years. My private and public life will bear the closest scrutiny, and I challenge any one in politics or out to point to any act of mine that would cause any one connected with me, in a private or official capacity, to blush. I cherish my reputation more than any office. I do not intend to permit any self-seeking politicians to besmirch my good name in the last few days that I am serving as public prosecutor.

"I shall make a motion Monday, Sept. 30, for a special panel, place this case on trial and as soon as this special panel of jurors is drawn I shall present in a public and legal way the proofs in my possession. I never have tried a case in the newspapers and I will not do so now.

"Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers will be in charge of the case, assisted by Assistant District Attorney James E. McDonald and Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora."

Still Hopes to Try Biller Also.

Mr. Banton later amplified his statement in a talk with newspaper reporters. "Win, lose or draw, we're going through with the trial of McManus," he said.

"Have you any idea that Biller will walk in before the trial starts?" he was asked.

"I hope to have Biller before the trial," Mr. Banton replied. "It would be a fine thing if he walked in before Monday."

"Did you say that you could not convict McManus if you tried him alone?" he was asked.

"Certainly not," said Mr. Banton. "I said I didn't want to try McManus without having Biller on trial with him. That is merely the technique of trial work. I am confident that we can convict McManus. I will make every effort to do so anyway."

Mr. Banton added that he did not intend to talk any more about the Rothstein case until McManus went to trial.

"This case will be tried in the open and everything we have will be put out in the open," he continued. "Anything which may develop from now until the day of the trial also will be put out in the open, but I'm not going to try the case in the newspapers.

"I haven't selected a judge for the trial yet. It is not likely that we will be able to proceed to trial before the second week of October, that is, the week beginning Oct. 7. It requires ten weekdays after an application for a special panel before a trial can be put under way."

Tells of Rothstein Papers.

Mr. Banton gave a detailed explanation of just how the Rothstein papers had been handled after they came into the possession of his staff.

"The papers in question were taken from the filing cabinet in Rothstein's home in Fifth Avenue by Nathan Burkan, attorney for the administrators, and Andrew Sheridan, one of the administrators, in the presence of the then Mrs. Rothstein," Mr. Banton said.

"Representatives of some of the Rothstein heirs also were present. The papers were taken to the vault of a branch of the Bank of America at Broadway and Forty-first Street and kept there until the grand jury called for them. Detectives and court attendants went to the bank and brought the papers to the grand jury. On their receipt there each paper was numbered and a list kept. After the grand jury had examined the papers its members consulted me as to their disposition. On my advice the papers were placed in sealed metal boxes, were impounded by Judge Mancuso and sent back to the bank. Later they were sent to United States Attorney Tuttle for examination for possible clues in investigation of the traffic in narcotics. The papers on their receipt were checked by Mr. Tuttle and a Federal narcotic investigator.

"The papers germane to the Rothstein case were separated and are now in metal boxes in the District Attorney's safe. The papers relating to the narcotic traffic also were separated. Other papers which the police believed might have some connection with thefts of stock and bribery in the fur workers' strike also were separated and turned over to the police."

Denies Single Paper Is Missing.

Mr. Banton said that later, to enable the administrators to liquidate the Rothstein estate, he turned over some papers, including the seven "little black memorandum books," to Mr. Burkan. Mr. Banton added that he had just received information that these memorandum books were in the possession of Mr. Gainsburg and were available at any time.

"Not even a little corner of a paper is missing," Mr. Banton declared. "Of course, I cannot say what happened to the Rothstein papers before the grand jury received them, but from the looks of them, they were intact. You usually can tell if papers are missing."

"Wouldn't it be simple to communicate with Mr. Tuttle and ask him if he found any papers missing?" Mr. Banton was asked.

"Mr. Tuttle is over 21. If he believes anything is missing he can communicate with me. We have had a working agreement in matters of this kind. Whenever I have papers I think would interest him, I send them to him. If Mr. Tuttle had any information about any missing papers, he would notify me. He is too good a public official to fail in his duty in such a matter."

Mr. Burkan at his office at 2,451 Broadway denied somewhat indignantly that any of the Rothstein papers had been stolen while in his custody.

"Rothstein died on Nov. 6 and I was appointed attorney to the administrator by the surrogate on Nov. 19," he said. "We went to Rothstein's apartment and took the papers for safe-keeping. It was my duty to safeguard them, and it was my duty to use them in administering the estate.

"Everything I did was by the authority of and appointment by the court. Rothstein left a large estate. The gross estate was more than $3,000,000 and his net estate more than $2,000,000.

"He was engaged in many kinds of business. He was a money lender. His corporation, the Rothstein Mortgage Company, was formed to lend money. He was a gambler, and some of the books and memoranda contained records of personal transactions. He was an extensive owner of real estate with properties in Forty-seventh, Fifty-fourth and Forty-seventh Streets. He was a real estate developer and had 200 acres in Juniper Swamp in Maspeth, L. I., on which 200 buildings were in course of erection.

"He even had a golf course, the Cedar Point eighteen-hole course at Woodmere, L. I. All these businesses had to be carried on, and to carry them on we had to have his records. Rothstein's records were complete. He kept his accounts meticulously. We have turned over every book and paper to Mr. Gainsburg and have his receipt."

Four Books Listed Loans.

Mr. Burkan displayed a sheaf of paper sheets containing an itemized list of books and papers for which Mr. Gainsburg had receipted. He explained that the "little black books," referred to by Mr. La Guardia, were account books kept in Rothstein's own handwriting. Two of the books contained memoranda of various transactions. Four of the books contained the names of persons owing money to Rothstein and one book contained a schedule of money distributed to other persons.

Mr. Burkan said that he believed Mr. Gainsburg would permit examination of the books. A visit to the latter's office resulted in a subordinate producing the books, but no permission to examine them could be obtained because of Mr. Gainsburg's absence.

The books, about five by seven inches, are of the common loose-leaf type with limp leather covers. Slips of paper protruded from the ends, as though they had been marked for reference. Mr. Burkan explained that it had been Rothstein's custom to draw lines through the entry when loans were repaid and to remove the leaf from the book. He said that a number of loose leaves which had been removed were among the papers and had been turned over by him to Mr. Gainsburg.

Tuttle Declines to Comment.

United States Attorney Tuttle said he had obtained certain Rothstein papers from Mr. Banton for use in a narcotic investigation which has not been finished. "All the papers I received from Mr. Banton are still in the possession of this office," he said.

Mr. Tuttle would make no comment upon the charge that certain papers had been stolen before those in his possession were delivered to him.

Mr. Enright called upon the District Attorney to bring McManus to trial an hour or two before Mr. Banton announced that he had decided to do so.

"The police and the District Attorney have said that they know who was in the room at the time of the killing of Rothstein, and the District Attorney has said he has sufficient proof to convict McManus of this crime," Mr. Enright said. "Does he still contend that he has sufficient proof to convict McManus or anybody else? If so, why not proceed with the trial?

"Is it because there is something in this case which seriously concerns men in high political position in this city? Is it because the disclosures which may be made in this case might result in the defeat of Tammany Hall in this fight? Mr. Banton knows very well that there is much more in this case than the mere killing of Rothstein by a gambler whom he had cheated. The press and the public want to know something about the crooked and vicious activities of Rothstein. They want to know who his friends were in high political position in this city. They want to know something about their business and social connections with Rothstein. Who are they and let us have their names, the men who borrowed money in large sums from Rothstein? Let us have the names of some of the lights of Tammany Hall who visited him frequently. Let us know something about his contributions to political campaigns in this city. Let us know something about the peculiar power which he seemed to have in and out of many public offices, and the fact that during the present administration he was permitted to carry on his business unmolested.

"Let us know something about his connection with the illicit drug trade with its widespread ramifications, which is one of the greatest evils now afflicting our social order. Young men and young women, even school children have been brought into this nefarious business, and a large percentage of the young criminals in our penal institutions and thousands of ex-criminals and potential criminals who are at large are drug addicts. Rothstein was mixed up in this business as he was mixed up in thousands of criminal enterprises and in the financing and protection of thousands of criminals in this city.

"Mr. Banton is mistaken. This case is not merely the killing of one gambler by another whom he had cheated. The killing of Rothstein is of little consequence—he was no loss to the community—but a great crime was committed and a great scandal lurks behind this crime, and that is what the public want to know something about."

Enright Answers Banton.

Mr. Enright answered Mr. Banton's charge that Rothstein's fingerprints had been removed from the Police Department record room during his administration by saying that, if this were true, it was without his knowledge.

"I had no reason to serve Arnold Rothstein," Mr. Enright said. "I put him out of business in New York and he opened his gambling establishment beyond the waters of the city. He resumed business in New York the day I left Police Headquarters and remained in it every day and every night until he was bumped off.

"Detectives Walsh and McLaughlin were shot through the door when they attempted to raid Rothstein's crap game in an apartment house early in my administration. Rothstein was arrested, but he never was prosecuted under Tammany Hall District Attorneys."

it, and he knows that I would have told him the truth.

"I intend to see an attorney in the morning and find out if I have grounds for a suit for libel against Mr. La Guardia. The trouble is that he doesn't openly say that there was anything wrong about the transaction. I challenge him or any one else to say that there was a personal transaction between Rothstein and myself, and then I will sue for libel."

His reference to his acquaintance with Mr. La Guardia recalled to the magistrate that a week ago last Saturday night he had refused to introduce the Republican nominee at a dinner at which he was toastmaster. The dinner was in honor of Benjamin Tantillo, a delegate of the plasterers' union, held at the New Winter Garden on Washington Avenue, the Bronx.

"Mr. Tantillo was speaking when the Major came in and was escorted to the dais," said Magistrate Vitale. "I was informed that he had not been invited, and for that reason I declined to introduce him. Moreover, Mr. La Guardia made a very brief, non-political speech eulogizing Mr. Tantillo.

"Small as he is, I should hate to think that Mr. La Guardia is small enough to have tried to get back at me in resentment for that."

Asked what had become of the note to the Rothmere Mortgage Corporation, Mr. Vitale said that he recalled getting it back after he had paid it, and remembered destroying his signature to it. He was uncertain, however, whether he had destroyed the body of the note and promised to try to find it among his papers.

Magistrate Vitale was appointed to his present post by Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert on Dec. 31, 1928, during the illness of Mayor John F. Hylan. Magistrate Peter A. Hatting had resigned because of his election as a justice of the Supreme Court.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA END LONG DEADLOCK

Henderson Agrees to Resume Diplomatic Relations Before Disputes Are Settled.

PROPAGANDA CHIEF ISSUE

England Also Had Demanded Soviet Discuss Debts Before Exchange of Envoys.

COMMONS ATTACK LIKELY

Ex-Premier Baldwin Condemns Labor's Concessions and Threatens Parliamentary Fight.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The deadlock between Russia and England as to when, how and under what conditions diplomatic relations are to be resumed by the two countries apparently was ended today when an communiqué was issued to the effect that Arthur Henderson, British Foreign Minister, and Valerian Dovgalevsky, Russian Ambassador to France, representing the Soviet Government, had come to an agreement.

Taken literally, the communiqué plainly indicates that England has yielded to Russia's insistence that relations be resumed and Ambassadors exchanged before there is any discussion of the various issues between the two countries. England, on the other hand, had been equally insistent that before there could be an exchange of Ambassadors the Soviet Government must give an assurance against Bolshevist propaganda in the British Empire and agree to discuss the matter of Russian debts to British citizens.

Impasse Reached Last July.

That was the impasse on which the negotiations were broken off last July, and there was no change in the situation when M. Dovgalevsky returned to London this week to resume conversations with Mr. Henderson. However, after the two men had been in daily conference the greater part of the week, the Foreign Office issued its communiqué this evening as follows:

"Mr. Henderson had a further conversation with M. Dovgalevsky this morning, which lasted two hours. It resulted in an agreement being reached on the list of subjects to be settled by negotiation on the resumption of full diplomatic relations, including the exchange of Ambassadors."

In other words, the negotiations will follow the resumption of diplomatic relations and the exchange of Ambassadors, which means that technically Russia wins her point. But at least she has agreed to what will be discussed and the list includes, of course, propaganda and debts.

No doubt this is another one of those familiar diplomatic incidents in which one nation apparently yields a point to enable another nation to "save its face." When she withdrew from the negotiations in July, Russia declared that it would be an offense to her national sovereignty and dignity to accept the conditions laid down by England as a preliminary to resuming diplomatic relations. That was an attitude which distinctly called for face-saving later to break the deadlock.

Yielding by Soviet Assumed.

Whatever the formal technicalities of the case may be, the hard facts are that no Ambassadors have been appointed and there have been many hours of discussion of the questions in dispute and more talks are coming next week. Even though these discussions may be off the record it is assumed by London that Foreign Minister Henderson has not done all the yielding in the situation but on the contrary has some unofficial assurance which has satisfied him that official assurance will be forthcoming after a new Soviet Ambassador presents his credentials to England.

Nevertheless, the Russian question has now developed into a situation which no doubt will be seized upon by the Opposition when Parliament convenes next month as ground for attack upon the Labor government's method of handling the case.

Baldwin Attacks Labor Policy.

As a matter of fact, former Prime Minister Baldwin, now leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, intimated as much today, when he made a long statement concerning the general political situation as he found it upon his return from abroad.

Although the Foreign Office communiqué had not been issued when Mr. Baldwin made his comment, he said, "subversive propaganda by Soviet agents is still continuing, and I hope the Socialist party will not weaken in its demands on this point. If it does, it need not expect anything but unqualified opposition from the Conservative party."

'PLANTED' MEN TO GET SUBWAY PAY EVIDENCE

Union Head Tells Trial Carpenters Got Less Than Prevailing Rate but Proof Was Lacking.

Union carpenters were "planted" on subway construction jobs, from March to August, in an effort to obtain evidence that contractors were paying less than the prevailing wage of $1.50 an hour, Alexander Kelso, secretary of the New York District Council of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, testified yesterday at a hearing before Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial. The next hearing will be on Oct. 10.

The house shorers' branch of the union charges that twelve subway contractors employed by the city have been paying shorers from eighty to eighty-five cents an hour since October. This, the union maintains, is a violation of the labor law which requires payment of the prevailing wage, asserted by the union to be $12 a day up to Aug. 26, and $13.20 a day thereafter.

Mr. Kelso testified that although it was generally known in union circles that subway carpenters were getting less than the prevailing wage rate, definite evidence was lacking. For this reason, he said, the union sent men out to work on subway jobs. During 1927 and 1923, Mr. Kelso admitted, no complaints had been made against contractors. The matter at that time, he said, was in the hands of a committee of the Building Trades Council.

Colonel Thomas E. Crimmins of the Crimmins Contracting Company, and Alfred Daybill of Miller, Daybill Company, house shorers, testified that their carpenters received the union rate under an agreement with the Contractors' Protective Association. They were called by Frederick L. Hackenburg, counsel for the carpenters, who rested his case yesterday.

YENCHING OPENS IN PEKING.

Noted Educators Attend Great University's Dedication.

PEKING, Sept. 27 (AP).—Yenching University began its formal opening exercises today in connection with the dedication ceremonies postponed two years ago because of unsettled conditions in China. Many noted American and Chinese educators attended.

The university, which is chartered under the laws of New York and has more than 700 students, is situated on a site of 150 acres several miles outside of Peking's walls and formerly was the Summer garden of a Manchu prince.

The educators attending the ceremonies included Frank Warner, chairman of the board of trustees, of New York; A. J. Stock of Detroit, a board member; Professor James T. Shotwell, representing Columbia; Professor George Black Stewart, representing Princeton, and the Auburn Theological Seminary; Professor Adolphus Miller of Ohio State University; Professors Robert Parks and Quincy Wright, of the University of Chicago; Professor James H. Woods of Harvard, and Mrs. D. V. Lin of Wellesley.

ROBBED AND SLAIN IN HOTEL

Texas Cattleman's Bound Body Is Found in Hot Springs, Ark.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 27 (AP).—His hands and feet securely tied and a gag in his mouth, P. R. Austin, a wealthy cattleman of Victoria, Tex., was found dead in his room at a hotel here today.

A large diamond ring which he was accustomed to wear was missing and this, together with the fact no money or valuables of any kind were found in the room, led to a theory of robbery and murder.

Austin, an elderly man, had been in the city about ten days. He had been a frequent visitor here for several years, but little was known about him.

WARDER WINS DELAY OF BRIBERY TRIAL

Court Postpones It Pending Decision on Demand for Change of Venue.

BOTH MOTIONS ARE ARGUED

Pecora Declares Special Panel Assures a Jury Able to Set Aside Preconceived Opinions.

Frank H. Warder, former Superintendent of Banks under ten indictments in connection with the failure of the City Trust Company which he closed last February, won a preliminary legal skirmish in his defense yesterday. Justice Alfred C. Townley in Supreme Court granted an indefinite postponement of his trial on a bribery charge, scheduled to start Monday, until decision is made on an application for a change of venue.

After hearing argument by James I. Cuff, Warder's attorney, and Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora on the motion for a change of venue, Justice Townley took the motion under advisement and then heard another hour of argument as to whether a stay of trial should be granted pending decision on the original motion. Mr. Pecora declared that the real purpose of the request for a trial in some county outside of New York City was to delay the trial.

Special Panel Selected.

Mr. Pecora, who was assisted by Assistant District Attorney Edwin B. McGuire, pointed out that a special panel had been selected for the Warder jury and said that the legal requirements of a special panel assured men able to set aside opinions based on newspaper reading.

Mr. Pecora quoted the opinion of the Appellate Division refusing to grant a change of venue in the case of Robert Brindell, building trades czar, who was convicted after a lengthy investigation similar to that of the City Trust case.

Justice Townley indicated that his decision will not be reached before Monday.

Cuff's Argument for Trial Delay.

Mr. Cuff argued that to deny a stay of trial would defeat the motion for change of venue if decision was not entered before Monday, which Justice Townley intimated would be impossible because of the volume of work before him.

In his argument that his client could not get a fair trial in New York City, Mr. Cuff recited briefly the history of the investigations since the bank was closed. He said that the newspapers had featured the testimony on the first pages, particularly that of the Moreland act investigation conducted by Robert Moses.

He said Mr. Moses's inquiry was not bound by legal rules of evidence and "he heard everything, hearsay as well as real evidence." Mr. Cuff referred to Mr. Moses's report to the Governor which "also received widespread publicity," and which he called "the most bitter arraignment of an individual I have ever seen;" and added that there was a motive of personal enmity which inspired it.

He said that his client instead of going to court with the presumption of innocence, which the law guarantees, would face the court "presumed guilty" and must prove his innocence.

Judge Francis X. Mancuso, who was chairman of the board of the City Trust, spent two hours before the special grand jury yesterday. He emerged smiling and said he had not been ordered to return. However, Special Assistant District Attorney Hiram W. Todd said:

"Not by a long shot. We will need him a couple of days more, I think, to question him about very important things we did not have time to ask him today."

Judge Mancuso explained his failure to appear the day before by saying that he had felt indisposed, but later felt better and came to his office, only to find that the grand jury had adjourned.

The grand jury adjourned yesterday afternoon until Oct. 7, when Anthony Paiadino, Harlem contractor, who said he lent $20,000 to Judge Mancuso, will be questioned. Next week the Brooklyn grand jury will be in session.

WOMEN ON JURY INSIST ON MURDER VERDICT

Their Arguments Help to Convict Schunck in Second Degree in Jersey City.

A jury on which two women served convicted Philip F. Schunck, 32 years old, of murder in the second degree yesterday before Judge Brown in Jersey City. The verdict was returned after three hours.

Schunck, the son of a Union City policeman, was a postoffice clerk. He shot August Grasser, 34, alleged lover of his estranged wife.

Schunck's 10-year-old son, Donald, calmly described the scene in his mother's apartment last Feb. 10 at 923 Park Avenue, North Bergen, declaring that his father had rushed into the apartment and on finding Grasser sitting on a bed drew a revolver which missed fire three times. The fourth bullet hit Grasser. Schunck then aimed at his wife, but the weapon again failed to fire, the son testified.

Judge Brown said he would impose sentence next Thursday.

Mrs. Evelyn Coffer of 22 Gifford Avenue, Jersey City, and Mrs. Suzanne C. Gage of 61 Duncan Avenue, the two women members of the jury, said they had opposed jurors who had wished to acquit.

"The man committed a murder and the evidence of his guilt was clear; it was therefore our duty to convict," said Mrs. Coffer. "We did not believe his plea of self-defense."

Mrs. Coffer said that serving on a jury in a murder case was "an ordeal" she would not willingly go through again.

TO LESSEN LANDING SHOCKS

Akron Plane Experts Experiment With Devices.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, Sept. 27.—Shock-absorbing devices designed to lessen the fatalities resulting from forced airplane landings are being made by the experimental department of the General Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, according to William F. O'Neil, president.

Among the devices are improved rubber shock absorbers for landing gears, rubber insulators for joints that bear the brunt of shocks in collisions or rough landings, rubber shields for wing tips and for the joints that connect the wings to the fuselage, and rubber motor mountings designed to minimize vibration in the airplane when in flight.

WILKINS DEPARTS FOR THE ANTARCTIC

With Two Aviators and an Engineer, He Sails to Map 2,000 Miles of Unknown Area.

PARTY TO USE TWO PLANES

If Expedition Succeeds It Will Make Valuable Contribution to Geodetic Knowledge.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer, accompanied by two aviators and an engineer, sailed last night for Montevideo on the Prince liner Northern Prince, en route to Deception Island, where he will begin his second trip into the Antarctic. The two Wright powered Lockhead Vega planes which Wilkins and his comrades will use on the expedition are already at Deception Island.

At his hotel last night Sir Hubert told of three plans, any of which the party may adopt in the task of charting 2,000 miles of the southern side of the Pacific Ocean. This long stretch of the coast, never before seen by any human, is about the same distance as that from Labrador to Florida and is a little more than one-fourth the whole Antarctic coastline, Sir Hubert said last night.

One plan which the party may carry out is a proposed non-stop flight from Deception Island to the Ross Sea. Another is to place the machines and their equipment on a steamer at Deception Island and carry them 400 miles south before starting the flight.

Or, lastly, they may fly the two machines 800 miles south of the island to Hearst Land and start their charting work from there in one machine, following the coastline to the Ross Sea. In the latter case, if the plan is carried out, the second plane will return to Deception Island.

Sir Hubert pointed out that the expedition has valuable geographic possibilities. If the engines keep going and the planes keep aloft the charting will be one of the most valuable contributions to geodetic knowledge in many years.

With Sir Hubert are Parker Cramer and Al Cheeseman, pilots, and Orval Porter, engineer and mechanic. Victor Olsen, wireless operator, will join them at Montevideo, where they will be met by the Norwegian whaler Melville, a trawler loaned by the British Colonial Office will be at Deception Island to serve as a floating base and to move extra supplies and equipment from Deception Island to the permanent base.

JOYCE CHARGES BIGAMY.

Chicagoan's Suit Says Wife Was Not Legally Divorced.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Stanley Joyce, at one time husband of Peggy Joyce, today filed an answer in the Circuit Court to the divorce bill filed by his second wife, Mrs. Nelle M. Joyce.

The answer charges Mrs. Joyce with bigamy, alleging that she was never legally divorced from her first husband. In her suit against Joyce, Mrs. Joyce charged cruelty.

ANDREWS ABANDONS ASIATIC EXPEDITION

Won't Meet Chinese Demands for Half of Specimens Collected by Museum Party.

SCIENTISTS CALLED HOME

But Leader Will Stay in Peking—Chinese Had Charged "Theft" of Nation's "Priceless Treasures."

The American Museum of Natural History announced yesterday that it had abandoned the 1929 expedition to Central Asia and that an expedition next year is subject to settlement of a dispute between the museum and the Chinese Society for the Preservation of Cultural Objects.

Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the Central Asiatic expeditions, has reported that anti-foreign propaganda has been disseminated by the society, charging American expeditions with "stealing China's priceless treasures." The society formulated conditions for the 1929 expedition, which included the sending of a Chinese co-director with the party and also a division of the expedition's collection. This demand, museum authorities declared, amounted to a retention in Peking of half the collection.

When Dr. Andrews returned recently to Peking to prepare for the seventh museum expedition, he was confronted by the demands of the society. He cabled Dr. Osborn, president of the museum, who took up the matter with Ambassador Chao Chu Wu, and with Secretary of State Stimson.

Conferences held here in Washington, in Peking and in Nanking, with a view to modifying the terms, resulted in the Chinese waiving the sending of a co-director. However, they insisted on a division of the collection and other conditions. Dr. Osborn therefore instructed Dr. Andrews to abandon the 1929 expedition, to send home the Americans in the party and to remain himself in Peking.

The Chinese Society for the Preservation of Cultural Objects has interfered with the transportation of specimens obtained by the expedition a year ago, according to Dr. Andrews.

Dr. Osborn will take up through the State Department the question of arrangements for a museum expedition next year, it was said. Minister Chao Chu Wu has promised that a bill will be introduced in the Chinese Legislature distinguishing between geologic specimens and objects of ancient art and sculpture.

HURRICANE KILLS TWENTY IN NASSAU

hour wind and that the barometer had dropped to 29.47. No mention of any property damage was made.

180-Mile Wind Swept Nassau.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 27.—Some loss of life, enormous damage to buildings and shipping, with two steamships still unheard from, were reported in a cable to The Miami Daily News from F. R. Rae, its Nassau correspondent, when communication was resumed with the Bahaman capital late tonight.

He estimated the maximum wind velocity at 180 miles an hour at the peak of the gusts and said it was the most severe hurricane in the history of the island group.

The report was received soon after two brief messages from the government Superintendent of Communications had given the first inkling of Nassau's fate. Mr. Rae's message follows:

"Most destructive hurricane and of longest duration ever experienced in Bahamas began in earnest Wednesday 1 o'clock (P. M.) from west northwest and continued till 9 that night, complete lull till midnight, then in greater force from southeast. Kept up till Thursday night.

"Velocity in gust must have been 180 miles. Barometer dropped to 27.90. Still plenty rain squalls, with wind from east.

"Destruction to property and shipping enormous. Only few ships floating. Light tender Firebird a wireless has been turned over to local government. Tug Lindy Cordeaux preparing to go to steamship Domira ashore Abaco. No word from her. Isle of June from Miami and Esshamian from Jacksonville Monday not heard from. Our wireless out of commission since 1 P. M. Wednesday.

"Some loss of life reported. Princess oMntague ashore. All crew safe. More detailed information later. Centre of storm must have passed over Nassau."

Isles Off Coast Warned Miami.

Meantime, borne on a fifty-eight-mile gale, the vanguard of the storm's forces struck at Miami late tonight, crippling the power plant and darkening the city. Warning of its approach had been given toward evening by the islands off the coast.

Bimini, forty-miles due east of Miami, was experiencing a whole gale, with sixty-mile winds increasing in strength at 4 P. M., as the barometer dropped to 29.48 from 29.55 at noon. At West End, off Palm Beach, the barometer had shown a corresponding drop to 29.60 at 4 P. M., and the winds had increased to forty-eight miles, according to reports received by the Tropical Radio Station here.

These drops in barometric pressure were accompanied by a decline from 29.70 to 29.66 between noon at 3:30 P. M. at Fort Lauderdale, twenty miles north of Miami.

As hurricanes follow the line of least resistance in barometric pressure, the possibility was recognized tonight of a northern movement of the storm centre, bringing it closer to Miami and Palm Beach. Such a course had been declared the most probable earlier in the day by Cuban observers, but the Weather Bureau at Miami had not concurred at that time.

Miami's barometer readings reached their low point for the day at 3:30, when 29.67 was recorded, then slipped back to 29.68 and remained steady between 4 and 5 P. M. At this time the barometer at Key West, well southeast of the storm centre, had declined gradually from 29.71 to 29.68, indicating the same resistance to the storm's progress from that side as at Miami.

The steamship Willow Park, about thirty-eight miles north northwest of San Salvador and far east of the storm centre, reported heavy southeast gales even there at noon.

The S. S. Rajah, from the southeastern end of Salt Key Banks and directly south of the indicated storm centre at 12:55, had reported a barometer of 29.58 with only a twenty-four-mile westerly wind.

Barometer Falls at Palm Beach.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 27 (AP).—Barometric pressure here dropped from 29.89 at noon to 29.83 at 3 P. M., according to an unofficial gauge reading this afternoon. A heavy rain was falling and the sea was rough.

The radio marine station WOE at Palm Beach reported at 4:30 P. M. that the steamship Christi Payne, about forty miles east of Fort Lauderdale, radioed barometer 29.60, wind forty-two miles east northeast and rough seas.

Washington Warns Southeast Coast.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—The following storm warning was issued tonight by the Weather Bureau:

"Advisory northeast storm warning continued 10:30 P. M., Miami to Jupiter. Tropical storm centre 100 miles southeast of Miami, apparently moving very slowly westward and attended by strong shifting gales and probably winds of hurricane force near centre.

"Caution advised vessels Florida Straits and off Southeast Florida coast. Wind will likely reach gale force greater part area Jupiter to Key West within the next twelve hours."

Lanza Relocates Storm Centre.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Sept. 27.—Asserting that he had been misunderstood in an earlier press bulletin, Father Gutierrez Lanza, director of the Belen College Observatory, gave the centre of the city of Sagua la Grande in o'clock tonight as "sixty miles north of the City of Sagua La Grande in Santa Clara Province, Cuba.

According to this, the storm has evidently swung further south during the past twenty-four hours. It is a stationary form of hurricane, its centre not moving to any great extent.

The barometric pressure in Sagua la Grande is now 29.58, with a forty-mile wind from the West but no rain.

The storm is expected to move in some direction within the next twenty-four hours, as it is regarded as practically impossible from a meteorological standpoint for the disturbance to remain stationary much longer. There is said to be no danger for Havana for the present, further danger depending on the course the hurricane will take.

Havana Still Fears Storm Path.

HAVANA, Sept. 27 (AP).—The next twenty-four hours were forecast tonight as the most menacing for Cuba. The possibility of receiving a lashing from a hurricane located about 140 miles east of Key West was seen in its deflection to a westerly direction.

Dr. Carlos Millas, chief of the Cuban National Observatory, reported at 9:15 A. M. that he placed the centre of the hurricane at 140 miles east of Key West, with all indications of a deflection in its projectory which would carry it over the Santaren Channel.

He added that should his forecast prove true, the storm would probably move across the Florida Straits toward Mexico, following a southwest direction and threatening Havana.

Dr. Millas said there was no certainty in the report upon which he was then working, but that up to 9 o'clock his observations pointed to further veering of the storm to the south.

At Havana the wind had a force of twenty-two miles from the northwest and drove before it clouds that threatened rain. There had been little change from the conditions that prevailed all day.

Local weather conditions remained unchanged this afternoon. Barometer readings were 29.81. Skies continued murky and rain squalls were forecast. The vortex of the hurricane was then fixed at fifty-five miles southeast of Key West and swerving away from Cuba.

The Gulf of Mexico waters were lashed to a fury. Throughout the forenoon exceptionally high waves broke over the Havana seawall, forcing traffic to back streets. Coastwise shipping was stopped. Fishing fleets did not dare venture out in the choppy waters.

Ten airplanes of the Pan-American Airways, ferried here from Miami Tuesday afternoon to escape an expected storm, were being cleared from Columbia Airdrome this afternoon for Miami. The planes were signaled off at one-minute intervals.

Another Pan-American plane, which was sent to Miami this morning to return with air mail, landed at Columbia Airport after an uneventful flight. Air service, both passenger and mail, were resumed today after a two-day suspension.

Severe Storms at Santiago.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Sept. 27 (AP).—Severe storms prevailed here throughout the afternoon with northwest winds. The storms extended far out to sea.

Meteorological observations have placed the centre of the Bahama storms at 150 miles northeast of the Santa Clara coast.

FLOODS IN GEORGIA FOLLOW DOWNPOUR

Levee Breaks at Augusta Which Is Isolated—Deserted Town Swept Away—Mills Demolished.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 27 (AP).—Torrential rains precipitating 6.88 inches during the past twenty-four hours tonight had sent streams in Eastern and Central Georgia on a rampage and isolated this city and several towns as the flood swept over the countryside, causing great damage to industrial plants and homes.

A twenty-foot break in the nine-mile Savannah River levee encircling Augusta let a rush of water into the lowlands at a point six miles south of the city. City officials dispatched crews to the crevasse and said that in all probability they could control the overflow without danger to the city proper.

The river stage tonight stood at 46.1, with the water still rising slowly. The stream was expected to reach a depth of 47 feet by Saturday morning. The levee was built to withstand a flood stage of 48.4.

Virtually all business in Augusta was suspended, and residents behind the levee began packing household goods and moving their families to higher ground.

Hamburg, S. C., a negro settlement just across the river from Augusta, was virtually swept away. Swirling waters were rushing over the housetops, but an exodus of residents began yesterday and no loss of life was reported.

In the lowlands of North Augusta several manufacturing plants have been wrecked, resulting in damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. The Augusta veneer plant was undermined today and the entire mill was said to be a total loss.

Huge oil tanks of the Atlantic Refining Company, adjacent to the veneer plant, were lifted from their foundations and tossed about in the water.

The city is entirely cut off from means of transportation. Every highway is under water and bridges have been washed out. County officials estimated damage to roads and bridges in the county alone will run around $150,000.

All railroads have ceased operations. The Southern, C. & W. C., Atlantic Coast Line and Georgia & Florida, South Carolina Extension, are under water. Heavily loaded freight cars have been placed on the roadbeds to hold them to their foundations.

SHIP AGROUND, ALL SAVED.

Steamer Princess Montagu, With 33 Aboard, Hits Rock Near Nassau.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 27 (AP).—The Princess Montagu, a freighter and passenger ship operated by the Inter-Island Transportation Company between Miami and Nassau, is aground on Tony Rock near Nassau, according to a radio message received here tonight by Tropical Radio Station.

The Montagu is a remodeled yacht once owned by the late Julius Fleischmann, yeast manufacturer, and later by Barron G. Collier, Florida real estate developer and advertising man.

Some of those aboard were rescued with a life line after others managed to reach shore in a boat. Latest dispatches said all had been saved.

Ten passengers and a crew of twenty-three were aboard the Princess Montagu when she was torn from her dock at the entrance of Nassau Harbor Friday morning and grounded. Among the passengers were Jacquelin Dugran Mason, woman's page editor of The Miami Daily News, and her husband, Joseph J. Mason, who were on their honeymoon.

J. L. Saunders of Saunders & Mader, agents for the yacht, also was aboard. Others on the vessel, whose addresses could not be learned here tonight, were Benjamin Hedges, Charles Sunderland, William Caraway, H. J. Smith, R. B. Smith, Stanley Ferguson and Louise Cooper.

The steamer Isle of June, carrying eight men, was unreported in Bahaman waters, while nothing had been heard from the steamer Bahamian, which left Jacksonville for Nassau before the storm.

PRESIDENT LEAVES TAX CUT IN DOUBT

White House Statement Says Decision Must Wait Completion of 1931 Budget Figures.

PARTIAL ESTIMATE GIVEN

Expenditures for Executive and Independent Establishments of $656,671,000 Approved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Whether reduction of taxes will be recommended to Congress by President Hoover in the December session was left in doubt at the White House today, where it was said that it was too early to make any prediction, and that it would be necessary to await completion of the budget, estimates for the fiscal year 1931 before the subject of further tax cuts could be considered.

The White House today issued a statement of appropriations for the executive office and independent establishments in the current fiscal year and estimates recommended for the fiscal year 1931 by the budget now in course of preparation.

This showed that, exclusive of money appropriated for the Federal Farm Board in 1930 and probable expenditures by that body in 1931, the estimated expenditures were $657,189,000 for 1930, as compared with $656,671,000 for 1931.

The total made available for 1930, including an item of $151,500,000 appropriated for the Farm Board, was $806,689,123.

The budget is to be submitted to Congress in December and the President has asked that it be kept within the limits of the 1930 budget.

The Executive Office reduced its estimated needs for 1931 to $402,320, as against $611,944 in 1930.

The statement of estimates showed that only inconsequential reductions had been accomplished in the independent establishments except in the case of the Shipping Board, which cut its estimate from $11,494,000 to $6,306,000, or $5,098,000. The United States Veterans' Bureau asked for $606,225,000, as against $597,957,000, an increase of $8,268,000.

The item of $151,500,000 for the Farm Board for 1930 is the amount appropriated by Congress, only a portion of which has been used up to this time.

The comparative statement of appropriations for 1930 and estimates for 1931 for the executive office and independent establishments, given out at the White House, follows:

SAYS TARIFF SETS UP LITERARY CENSORSHIP

Prof. Chafee Assails Clause in Bill Barring Importation of Revolutionary Works.

An effective censorship over foreign literature is provided for in the proposed new tariff act, according to an opinion by Zechariah Chafee Jr., Professor of Law at Harvard University, given out yesterday by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Section 305 of the proposed tariff act of 1929, according to Professor Chafee, adds to the existing prohibition against the importation of obscene books, a clause forbidding the importation from any foreign country of "any book, pamphlet, paper, writing, advertisement, circular, print, picture or drawing containing any matter advocating or urging treason, insurrection, or forcible resistance to any law of the United States, or containing any threat to take the life of, or inflict bodily harm upon the President of the United States." The Senate committee has changed the latter phrase to read "bodily harm upon any person in the United States."

"The power to decide whether such printed material shall be forfeited is given to the customs officials without a review before the United States district judges," Professor Chafee points out. "It seems almost certain that this clause is not limited to books and pamphlets which specifically refer to revolution in the United States. The clause appears to include any general advocacy of revolution as a means of social change, since such a doctrine would naturally extend to the United States as well as to other countries. Some at least of the customs officials to whom the reading of the books is entrusted, would be sure to act on this interpretation of the law.

"This clause creates an effective censorship over foreign literature. It may be asked, Why should any one honestly want to possess a book which urges revolution, or even the violation of law? Why should we allow such books to come into the country or be put on sale? It must be remembered that a book falls under the forfeiture provision if only a part of it is revolutionary. There are many foreign books and pamphlets which for the most part contain elaborate discussions of social and economic questions which it is very desirable to read. Here and there the writer is so impressed with the hopelessness of legal change in the present system that he advocates resort to force if nothing else serves. That alone will render importation of the whole book impossible. Many of the classics of modern economics will be put on this new index expurgatorious."

RHINELAND BOARD ASKS WIESBADEN QUARTERS

Requests City to Make Provisions for the Commission Nov. 15—Koenigstein Evacuated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WIESBADEN, Sept. 27.—The Rhineland Commission has officially informed the Wiesbaden municipality that the commission intends to move into the city on Nov. 15 and has requested eighteen private apartments and a building for administrative purposes. It is probable that one of Wiesbaden's large hotels will be put at the disposal of the commission.

The French military authorities still retain the Kaiser Wilhelm sanatorium and exercising grounds at Schierstein, a Wiesbaden suburb. Three hundred French soldiers and twenty-five gendarmes will form an honorary guard for the commission.

WIESBADEN, Sept. 27 (AP).—Fifty British civilians who have served with the Rhineland occupation forces since 1918 held a farewell dinner here tonight. They cabled greetings to King George and Lord Plummer, the latter having commanded the British forces which first entered the Rhineland after the armistice. Both returned messages of thanks.

KOENIGSTEIN, Germany, Sept. 27 (AP).—For the first time in eleven years German flags were hoisted here today, a half hour after the British Union Jacks had been hauled down as the last contingent of the Second Leicestershire Regiment departed for England. Only a handful of people witnessed the departure. Among them was one fräulein who wept bitterly as her English soldier sweetheart kissed her good-bye.

ENJOINS J. B. STEWART & CO.

Court Grants Writ as State Charges "High Pressure" Stock Sales.

An injunction restraining the stock brokerage firm of J. B. Stewart & Co., which formerly did business at 1,460 Broadway, from continuing business was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice May in Brooklyn on the application of Deputy Attorney General Nicholas Selvaggi.

The firm is called upon by Justice May's order to show cause on Oct. 15 why the injunction should not be made permanent, and the officers are directed to bring into court books and other records. The firm is alleged to have collected $75,000 in two weeks by employing "high pressure" salesmen to sell stock to a selected list of professional men. According to complaints alleged to have been made to the Attorney General, the firm failed to make deliveries in several instances. The order names H. Phillips George Braun and Murray Isman as officials of the firm.

Both Sides Predict Victory on Flexible Tariff

ternoon he could see no reason for retaining the President as even a transmission agency of the Tariff Commission's findings.

This attitude bears out his contention that under the Constitution Congress and not the President should be concerned with tariff rate-making. Nevertheless, Mr. Borah probably will vote for the Simmons program.

Both Sides Claim Victory.

Lines will be closely drawn in the contest over the flexible provisions. Both sides are claiming victory. One hasty canvass made today shows thirty-four Democrats and thirteen insurgent Republicans opposed to the flexible provisions, with forty-two Republicans and five Democrats for them, amounting to a tie vote without Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, being paired. This line-up, Republican leaders declared, might be broken with indications that the administration would gain two additional votes from the farm bloc and thus receive a majority.

The farm bloc, which is reputed to include fourteen insurgent Republicans of various shades of opinion, may lose three votes. If this should occur and the four Democratic Senators from Florida and Louisiana and one from Wyoming should vote with the majority, the administration would win. The insurgents saw their ranks weakened today when Senator Capper announced he would vote with the administration.

Senator Nye of North Dakota, ordinarily insurgent, considers offering an amendment proposing that the President shall have authority to act under the flexible clause, but his actions must be passed upon by Congress if within ninety days either Senate or House decides by resolution to do so. If either branch fails to act within ninety days, after the usual proclamation, the new duty will stand.

Watson Predicts Victory.

Senator Watson, the majority leader, said tonight that the administration followers had the flexible clause issue won by a majority of three.

"This is the situation tonight," he stated. "But, in such a demoralized legislative tangle, predictions may go astray when the vote is taken. However, our canvass assures us of victory next Tuesday."

Mr. Watson said he might be willing to accept the contemplated Nye proposal if it is amended to make the President's proclamation effective unless Congress within sixty days, by a concurrent resolution sets aside his action. Mr. Nye refused this suggestion.

Text of the Simmons Amendment.

The text of Senator Simmons's substitute for the Smoot flexible tariff amendment follows:

AMENDMENT.

Offered by Mr. Simmons as a substitute for the amendment (relating to the flexible tariff) proposed by Mr. Smoot to the bill (H. R. 2667), to provide revenue, to regulate commerce with foreign countries, to encourage the industries of the United States, to protect American labor, and for other purposes, viz: on page 319, commencing with line 10, strike out down to and including line 12 on page 326, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

Section 336. Recommendations for adjustment of duties:

(a) Upon its own motion or upon application of any interested party showing good and sufficient reason therefor, the commission shall investigate and ascertain the differences in the cost of production of any domestic article and of any like or similar foreign article.

If the commission finds it shown by the investigation that the duty imposed by law upon the foreign article does not equalize the differences in the cost of production of the domestic article and of the foreign article, when produced in the principal competing country or countries, then the commission shall report to the President such increases or decreases in the duty upon the foreign article as the commission finds to be necessary in order to equalize such differences in the cost of production.

Demands Hearings on Changes.

Any such increased or decreased duty may include the transfer of the article from the dutiable list to the free list or from the free list to the dutiable list, a change in the form of duty, or a change in classification. The report shall be accompanied by a statement of the commission setting forth the findings of the commission with respect to the differences in costs of production, the elements of cost included in the cost of production of the respective articles as ascertained by the commission, and any other matter deemed pertinent by the commission.

The President, upon receipt of any such report of the commission, shall promptly transmit the report to the Congress with his recommendation, if any, with respect to the increase or decrease in duty proposed by the commission.

(b) No report shall be made by the commission to the President under this section unless the determination of the commission with respect thereto is reached after an investigation by the commission during the course of which the commission shall have held hearings and given reasonable public notice of such hearings and reasonable opportunity for the parties interested to be present, produce evidence, and to be heard.

The commission is authorized to adopt such reasonable rules of procedure as may be necessary to execute its functions under this section.

Outlines Cost Study Methods.

(c) In ascertaining the differences in costs of production under this section, the commission shall take into consideration, in so far as it finds it practicable:

1. The differences in conditions of production, including wages, costs of materials and other items in cost of production of like or similar articles in the United States and in competing foreign countries;

2. Costs of transportation;

(3) Other costs, including the cost of containers and coverings of whatever nature, and other charges and expenses incident to placing the articles in condition, packed ready for delivery, storage costs in the principal market or markets of the United States and in the principal competing country or countries, and costs of reconditioning or repacking wherever incurred;

(4) Differences between the domestic and foreign article in packing and containers, and in condition in which received in the principal markets of the United States;

(5) Differences in wholesale selling prices of domestic and foreign articles in the principal markets of the United States in so far as such prices are indicative of costs of production, provided such costs can not be satisfactorily obtained;

(6) Advantages granted to a foreign producer by a foreign government, or by a person, partnership, corporation or association in a foreign country; and

(7) Any other advantages or disadvantages in competition which increases or decreases in a definitely determinable amount the total cost at which domestic or foreign articles may be delivered in the principal market or markets of the United States.

Hope of November Passage.

From a responsible Republican leader it was learned that there are strong hopes of passing the tariff bill in the Senate by mid-November and allowing it to go to conference with the House while Congress takes a recess of two weeks or more until the regular term begins in December.

Debate continued in the Senate on the flexible provisions today. Senators Fess, Eckett and Gillett defended the disputed sections of the law, while Senators Connally and Bratton, Democrats, assailed them.

"As the flexible provisions go, so goes the bill," Senator Eckett said at one point.

Senator Fess defended President Hoover's action in issuing a statement in which retention of the flexible provisions of the bill was urged.

"There is no basis for the argument of the Senator from Idaho, Mr. Borah, that because the President speaks out on a national policy in the bill he must submit himself to the catechism of every Senator interested in each small item of the bill," Senator Fess declared.

Senator Connally attacked the flexible provision.

"For Congress to surrender its rate-making power to the President would be a base betrayal of its responsibility," he said. "There are Senators who were engaged in tariff legislation while the President was still an engineer in the Orient."

Robinson Questions Reed.

Senator Reed, Republican, was asked by Senator Robinson, Democrat, if he favored the American Farm Bureau Federation's proposal to take away the President's rate-making power and give it to the Tariff Commission with or without Congressional approval.

"That is a minor matter," Mr. Reed replied. "I should not be unhappy if that or the solution of Senator Smoot were adopted. That is a detail. The important thing is their insistence upon their strong belief in the flexible tariff, providing for correction of inequalities without waiting for the tedious process of Congressional action. Does the Senator approve of that?"

"I do not understand that the all-important proposition in the letter is the creation of some plan to enforce a flexible provision," Senator Robinson said. "The real issue on which some Senators are weakening is whether the power to fix tariff duties shall be devolved upon the Executive or shall be performed by Congress or some agency within the control of Congress."

"The Senator is exactly right in that," answered Mr. Reed. "The question is whether we shall wait for the slow action of Congress, and if that letter means anything it means that we ought not."

The Senate adjourned tonight until Monday. Tomorrow insurgent Republican Senators representing the farm bloc will confer on the Simmons amendment and consider problems of strategy.

ROBINSON RIDICULES HIGH TARIFF CLAIMS

In Radio Talk He Predicts Defeat of Bill if It Retains Its Present Provisions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—A denunciation of the tariff bill now pending in the Senate was made by Senator Robinson, Senatorial Democratic leader, tonight speaking from Station WMAL, this city, over a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Company. The bill, he asserted, increased the rates of duty on many articles in common use, and threatened embargoes against the products of some of America's principal foreign customers.

"The advocates of tariff revision argue that prosperity is inseparable from higher protection. They declare in one sentence that the industries of the United States have never before enjoyed such prosperity as blesses them now.

"In the next breath they assert that unless prohibitive duties are imposed and the whole tariff system overhauled, with a view to increasing the protection it affords, panic and ruin will result to the enterprises so recently declared by them to be unusually prosperous.

"If prosperity results principally from the tariff and the country is already prosperous, why 'tinker' with the tariff at this time?

"If agriculture is admittedly depressed and can be aided by additional and increased rates, why offset every possible benefit that may be derived from changes in the agricultural schedules by unnecessary raises of the rates pertaining to metals, wood, sugar and steel?

"If the bill is to retain the rates and provisions approved by the House, or those recommended by the Senate Finance Committee, the public interests will be safeguarded by its defeat."

SAYS FARM FUNDS WILL BE INADEQUATE

C. S. Wilson, New York Member of Board, Tells Senators $500,000,000 Is Not Enough.

LEGGE RECALLED TO STAND

Denies Intention to Usurp Prerogatives of the National Agricultural Organizations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Charles S. Wilson of Hall, N. Y., member of the Federal Farm Board and former New York Commissioner of Agriculture, told the Senate Agriculture Committee today that he did not think the $500,000,000 authorized by Congress for farm relief is sufficient to control the nation's crop surplus.

His statement, made during his examination by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who is not a member of the committee, was more definite than those the committee was able to draw from C. B. Denman, spokesman on the board for live stock and wool producers, and Alexander Legge, the chairman.

The other members stated that the board's experiences thus far had been far too limited in its two-months existence to justify an opinion on the sufficiency of the fund.

All three members told the committee they were certain the board would not hesitate to ask Congress for additional funds if they found the fund already authorized insufficient. The statements were brought out during the examination of the three members prior to consideration of their nominations by the Senate. Mr. Wilson was nominated for a four-year term as spokesman on the board for the fruit growers.

Doubts Copeland Is Right.

Mr. Wilson was asked by Senator Kendrick of Wyoming whether he believed Senator Copeland of New York was right in his fight to prevent the fruit interests from being included under the provisions of the bill.

"The impression I have," Mr. Wilson replied, "is that the fruit growers of New York wanted to be included in the bill."

Questioned by Senator Brookhart, Mr. Wilson said he believed it to be thed uty of the board to assist producers in getting the best possible prices for their products.

He said that he believed the principal purpose of the measure was to create a national cooperative organization system, and that one of its important purposes was to control the exportable surplus of the nation's crops.

"That is part of the job, the controlling of the surplus," Senator Brookhart said, and continued:

"Now the average exportable surplus of all commodities is $2,000,000,000. Do you think $500,000,000 enough to control the exportable surplus?"

"My opinion is that it is insufficient," Mr. Wilson replied.

Denies Wheat Is Neglected.

Mr. Wilson testified that he had been dealing particularly with the fruit and potato situation, in which there are no present emergencies.

"There is no emergency in apples and potatoes, and yet you are working on them, while wheat and cotton wait," Senator Caraway said.

"We are working on the wheat situation as fast as we can," Mr. Wilson retorted. He also, when questioned, told the committee that there is a spread of about $1 between the price received by the grower of potatoes and the price paid by the consumer.

"I should not think that was especially wide," he said. "It costs about 50 cents to raise a bushel of potatoes, and they are selling at $1.50."

Mr. Denman tolu the committee that the board planned the organization of a great national cooperative marketing corporation for live stock.

Chairman Legge, recalled, was quizzed by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma concerning his conception of the board's obligation to "be the voice of agriculture in Washington."

"It is not the intention of the board, and I do not believe that it was contemplated that the board should usurp the leadership of the national farm organizations," said Mr. Legge. "We believe we are to cooperate with them and other organizations in the solution of the common problem."

The Farm Board today approved an application of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative Association of Atlanta for a commodity loan supplementin- one already advanced by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank. The maximum of this loan was fixed at $750,000.

Havana Rotary Club Cables Denial of Reports of Economic and Political Disorder.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—More endorsements of the Machado Government have been received by the Cuban Embassy from American interests operating in Cuba as a result of reports that an investigation might be made of allegations that a widespread condition of political and economic disorder exists in that country. That no such investigation will be made by any government agency here has already been well established.

The Warren Brothers Company, contractors of 700 miles of Cuban highway now under construction, today made the following statement:

"In view of the accusations against the administration here which have appeared in the press lately, we feel it our duty to advise you that in the execution of our contract for the construction of the Carretera Central, aggregating $70,000,000, $45,000,000 of which have already been completed, we have had no political interference in connection with the execution of this work, and furthermore, in our dealings with the government officials we have received fair and courteous treatment in the settlement of the many problems arising out of this work. This cable is sent without the suggestion or knowledge of any of the government officials."

The Cuban Embassy also has received the following cablegrams:

The Charge d'Affaires of Cuba, Washington.

The Rotary Club of Havana emphatically contradicts statements recently made in New York against the Cuban Government and considers that reports of such nature which welcome defamatory campaign against honorable government of a friendly nation create resentments which greatly impair the better understanding between the Cuban and American peoples.

SEIZED AS A BIGAMIST.

Man Taken Here on Charge of Grand Rapids Woman.

Charles A. O'S. Sloan, 51 years old, a former newspaper reporter and more recently manager of The Radio News, Inc., which formerly had an office at 11 West Forty-second Street, was lodged in the Tombs early yesterday morning on indictments charging bigamy and perjury. The bigamy charge was based on the grand jury testimony of Mrs. Gladys Robinson Sloan, mother of two children, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who alleged that he had not obtained a divorce from her when, in October, 1928, he married Dorothy Mogue, a former St. Luke's Hospital nurse, in this city. He was accused of perjury in asserting in his marriage license application that he was unmarried.

Sloan was arrested in the lobby of the Lincoln Hotel at 2 o'clock yesterday morning on a bench warrant signed by General Sessions Judge Levine. The court fixed $10,000 bail, but up to last night Sloan had not furnished it. He will be arraigned in General Sessions next Monday.

Sloan's arrest, according to District Attorney Banton, came about through a telephone call to Grand Rapids last Wednesday, in which he was alleged to have urged the first Mrs. Sloan to withdraw her charges. She reported the call to the prosecutor and a detective traced it to the hotel.

of it's report. But indications during the past few days, as the stories of the shipbuilding company officials were disclosed, have been that its members are far from satisfied with the assertions of these officials that the sole purpose in sending Mr. Shearer to Geneva was to gain from him reports on the progress of the conference.

The questioning of Mr. Shearer is to be directed at learning his story of the purposes for which he was sent to Geneva, the purposes back of his 1926-27 merchant marine campaign, and his employment since while the Merchant Marine act and the cruiser bill were under consideration by Congress.

May Turn to Government Files.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP).—Credited by some of the foreign press as the man who broke up the Geneva parley, William B. Shearer has promised to tell the Senate investigating committee on Monday about his work for the firms he is now suing for an additional $250,000 which, he alleges, is due him for the Geneva job.

Meanwhile, the Senate investigators are preparing to look into the past record of Shearer and into his activities in Washington with the Shipping Board, to which the shipbuilders said they sent him late in 1926 "to cooperate" in formulating a merchant marine campaign.

Drew Pearson yesterday told the committee that Albin E. Johnson, Geneva correspondent for The New York World, showed him a document purporting to be a Scotland Yard record of Shearer. Later, he said, Shearer told him of taking the document away from Johnson in his hotel room at Geneva.

As a result Chairman Shortridge said today it was possible the committee would turn to the secret files of this government to learn what records were there about Shearer, if any. Senator Shortridge says he is interested also in knowing what the shipbuilders knew about Shearer when they hired him for $25,000 to "observe" the Geneva conference.

Senator Allen, Republican, of Kansas, a member of the committee, joined today in the opinion expressed by Senator Borah, who started the Shearer inquiry, that the American naval experts named by Pearson should be called to tell of their relations with Shearer at Geneva.

The shipbuilders have insisted before the committee that they only expected Shearer to "observe and report" for them at Geneva. Chairman Shortridge notified all today to be prepared to return before the committee after Shearer speaks Monday.

The committee is seeking to conclude the investigation before Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain reaches America's shores next week. If the hearing is not concluded by that time, an adjournment probably will be taken until his departure.

BROOKHART CONSIDERS 'SOCIAL LOBBY' INQUIRY

Iowan Talks of Extending Shearer Investigation and New Dry Law to 'Clean Up' Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Extension of the scope of the Senate subcommittee now investigating the activities of William B. Shearer so as to include propagandists of every kind, including the so-called "social lobby," may be advocated by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, as well as a separate prohibition enforcement law for the District of Columbia.

Both plans, the Senator said today, are under consideration in connection with the proposed campaign to "clean up" conditions in the capital.

"We'll wait and see what comes of the Shearer investigation," Mr. Brookhart said, "and then broaden out the field of inquiry as may seem desirable. Certainly it can include investigation of the social lobby. That's more insidious than any other."

The dinner given at the Willard in December, 1927, by Walter J. Fahy, to which Senator Brookhart referred in a recent speech in the Senate, asserting that liquor was served and consumed and silver hip-flasks presented to the guests, including several Senators, was a case in point, the Senator said, coming within the "social lobby" category.

As to his appearance before the grand jury to tell what he knows about drinking in the capital, Senator Brookhart today reiterated his former statement that he would answer any summons if and when received. He was preparing no report, he said, and would make no complaint, but stood ready to go before the grand jury in October or any other time he might be called by United States Attorney Rover.

On his side, Mr. Hover this morning repeated that Senator Brookhart would not be summoned by him, but that any information he might desire or be willing to communicate would be considered and investigated.

BRITISH PRESS GIVES BIG SPACE TO SHEARER

Readers Get Impression That It Was Propagandist Who Wrecked Geneva Meeting.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Few stories from the United States have enjoyed the prominence given in the British press to the accounts of the Shearer inquiry at Washington. In fact, in the past ten years only the Tennessee "monkey" trial has rivaled the Shearer business in the London papers. This is unfortunate, and one of the good effects of the Prime Minister's trip to America may be to attract the attention of English newspaper readers to other information from America.

The prominence given to the Shearer affair may be called unfortunate, because in the form presented here it brings the impression that it was Shearer and not the American demand for real parity with the British fleet which caused the failure of the Geneva conference in 1927.

It is too easy for readers of the accounts published by the London press to reason that if there had been no Shearer to wreck the Geneva meeting, then it would have succeeded. That this is "bunk" does not alter the fact that such an impression has spread over here. Indeed, if nothing more whatsoever could be said about Shearer it would seem a good thing for Anglo-American relations, for only ultimate harm can come of any widespread idea in England that had it not been for Shearer America would have accepted the British proposals in 1927.

The prominence given to the Shearer inquiry borrows a regrettable tenor from the fact that at the outset of the case the London papers dug up Shearer's record when he was an Englishman and lived in London. Stories columns long were published about his activities as the manager of night clubs where patrons drank after legal hours, and other clubs where one amused one's self, perchance, according to these allegations, in a popular if forbidden manner.

Now that it develops that such a man, who, at the highest stage of his London career was an unsuccessful theatrical producer, could really have, as he says, influenced American action in the naval negotiations, the incident is bound to give rise to an erroneous impression of the motives which really actuate the United States in dealing with other nations.

Therefore, in entire objectiveness, the opinion may be advanced that, regarding Anglo-American relations, the less noise made about Shearer from now on the better it will be.

RED CROSS REFUSES CHINESE FAMINE AID

Says Conditions Are Not Susceptible to Emergency Relief Measures.

ISSUES REPORT ON SURVEY

Blames Political Chaos, Corruption and Overpopulation for Starvation of Populace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The American Red Cross, at a meeting of its central committee today with Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman, presiding, decided against entering upon famine relief in China. The decision is the result of an investigation of conditions in the famine areas by a special commission of the Red Cross this Summer.

The commission, which consisted of Ernest P. Bicknell, vice chairman of the Red Cross with supervision of insular affairs; William M. Baxter Jr. and Ernest J. Swift, found that a normal climatic condition was returning to the famine areas, that the distress was due largely to chaotic political and military conditions, and that a wise, strong, stable central government was the primary need of the country to lead it out of disorder.

The question of famine relief for China has been a controversial one for some time, with the Chinese themselves hoping for American aid, while American observers held that such assistance would be unwarranted under the circumstances. As a result the Red Cross sent the special commission to China, and the investigation continued from June 15 until the end of August.

Text of Resolution.

The main points made by the commission were summarized in a resolution adopted by the central committee today which read in part as follows:

The central committee hereby accepts the premises and conclusions developed in the report, which may be summarized briefly as follows:

1. That this committee learns with deep satisfaction that as the result of abundant rainfall, conditions in the principal famine areas are rapidly improving in so far as the restoration of a normal climatic régime can promote that result;

2. That the destitution which prevails in the famine areas is the cumulative result of the chronic conditions of disorder, the crushing exactions of the war lords, the depredations of bandits, the enforced payment of confiscatory taxation and the crippling and consequent inability of the railroads to function beyond a fraction of their normal capacity—to these was added a severe drought which brought the whole to a tragic climax.

Doubts Value of Emergency Aid.

3. That these conditions do not present a situation which can adequately be dealt with by a foreign emergency relief agency; hence do not warrant an appeal by the Red Cross to the generosity of the American people;

4. That Chinese leaders would no doubt give more thought to the removal of the causes which impoverish their people and bring on such tragedies if they realized the necessity of assuming full responsibility for resulting relief needs; any acceptance of that responsibility by foreign agencies cannot but retard this all-important result;

5. That the American Red Cross is convinced only a wise, strong, stable, central government can command the power and resources and continuity of policy necessary to lead China out of her condition of disorder into a new era of peace, security and prosperity; and is further convinced that disastrous conditions leading to continued suffering will constantly recur until such a government comes into being.

Sympathizing deeply as we do with the efforts of patriotic Chinese to bring about these happy conditions, we nevertheless believe that China should be permitted to work out her own salvation, and that to extend relief to her in the absence of conditions plainly due to an act of God—natural causes—but retards her ultimate recovery.

Denies Famine Was Inevitable.

The commission reported that enough food existed in China to have prevented starvation in 1928 and 1929 and that the condition there did not conform to the popular American conception of the term "famine." The starvation was not due, it held, to natural causes primarily, although those destitute for lack of food may have numbered as high as 65,000,000.

The commission outlined the responsible causes for the "famine," in part, as follows:

First—For years China has been in a state of political and economic disorder. Ambitious war lords, recruiting their own armies, have operated in almost every province.

As these armies have been lawless organizations without official support or control, they have lived upon the country in which they have moved. The cities have paid high tribute; the country districts have been stripped ruthlessly of grain, of live stock, of carts, of farming implements.

Surplus grain saved against time of drought or for seed for the next harvest has been seized. Scores of armies, including millions of men, have marched and counter-marched across the country, or have settled down during periods of inaction to fatten upon the half-starved farming population.

Grain Rots in Stations.

Second — The military leaders have seized railways, monopolized their engines and cars, destroyed tracks and bridges in order to hamper opposing forces.

* * * Grain and other essentials to life could not be sent into the interior provinces, which had suffered most seriously from the military depredations.

* * * Meantime the business of the country is crippled and shipment of grain to the famine areas is but a fraction of the quantity necessary.

On Aug. 15 this commission observed hundreds of tons of grain lying unprotected on the railway platforms at the station of Feng Tai, the junction point from which grain goes forward toward the famine regions of Shansi, Shensi and Suiyuan. Frequent rains were rapidly destroying this grain, while the bags were rotting and bursting. * * *

Third—During the recent years of turmoil and military confusion, the soldiers of routed armies, along with deserters and miscellaneous outlaws, have turned to banditry in very large numbers. * * * Literally hundreds of thousands of desperate and reckless men are engaged in banditry. Groups of bandits numbering hundreds are not uncommon.

They operate with a contempt of local authorities or perhaps at times in collusion with them. Lacking all discipline, responsible to no higher authority, they carry on their atrocities with heartless savagery, sparing no one. * * *

Fourth—Taxation has been a constant device of oppression. Although carried on in the name of law it is subject to unrestrained abuse. * * *

Since the revolution of 1911, with few exceptions, the war lord who has the necessary military power seizes the provincial capital and sets himself up as an independent despot. If he requires money for the support of his personal army, if he wishes to wage war with a rival general, or desires to lay up a fortune against the rainy day which is certain to come in time, he levies new and heavier taxes.

Collect Taxes a Year Ahead.

It has become a favorite method, during the exigencies of civil wars in the last two or three years, for the provincial despots to send out their collectors to demand payment of a year's taxes in advance.

After these have been paid, the collectors are sent around to demand payment for a second year in advance, and instances have been reported in which three years' advance taxes have been collected. These collections are enforced with merciless vigor and in lieu of money, grain, animals, implements or clothing will be taken. * * *

Fifth—Highways are almost unknown in those sections of China in which famine is found today. * * * In many extended areas the only means of communication consists of narrow mountain trails traversed by donkeys, wheelbarrows, native carts, or men carrying packs upon their backs.

Where famine areas can be reached only by this means it is obvious that the importation of food in sufficient quantity to feed a large population is quite impracticable.

Cites Population Increase.

Sixth—China's population will be double its present total by the end of this century, unless the normal increase is checked by famines, epidemics and wars. * * * Other nations look to the acquisition of new lands for the accommodation of their surplus people. China's problem is far too great to find adequate relief by that device. * * *

The nation seems to be approaching a period where her land cannot support her people. By economies undreamed in America, the Chinese people are still able to sustain themselves by the soil, but so delicate has become the balance between food supply and naked starvation that any serious interruption in the regular routine of existence precipitates disaster.

Seventh — When in a district which for months or years has suffered from one or more of the causes just enumerated there occurs a season of partial or total crop failure, starvation conditions quickly follow. * * * The normal means of bringing in relief supplies have been destroyed or have always been totally inadequate. * * * In these circumstances foreign relief agencies can do little. * * *

Criticizes National Government.

"As to current famine relief measures," the commission said, "the Chinese National Government has not actively participated. It has made no attempt to conduct relief operations, to direct policies or methods, or to coordinate activities conducted by private or public agencies.

"It has, however, not been indifferent to the needs of the famine areas. In March, 1929, it announced a famine relief bond issue of 10,000,000 yen (approximately $4,500,000 gold). Through a 'famine relief mission' the greater part of these bonds were reported to have been distributed to provincial relief committees.

"The provincial committees in turn were reported in some instances to have sold these bond quotas at heavy discounts and in other instances to have held them unsold. * * * No little cynicism was expressed as to the manner in which it was handled.

Says Bonds Supported Army.

"One circumstantial statement was to the effect that $3,000,000 of the bonds went to support General Feng Yu-hsiang's army; another was that in one province bonds were sold to the amount of $500,000, and that, with the famine almost ended in that province, the money still remained unexpended in the committee's hands.

"In addition to this issue of bonds, the National Government has provided free railroad transportation for relief supplies, eliminated customs duties and promised protection from bandits for relief personnel. It also has given free transportation to emigrants sent from crowded famine districts to the more sparsely populated lands of Manchuria.

"The organizations most actively engaged in relief work were the China International Famine Relief Commission, provincial government committees, foreign missions, the Salvation Army, the Chinese Red Cross and the Swastika Society. * * *

"The program of the China International Famine Relief Committee, having a centralized control, is the only one which is reasonably uniform throughout the various famine areas. The relief work which it is doing consists in general of labor projects, sale of cheap grain, and contributions to gruel kitchens managed by other organizations."

TRADE IN MANCHURIA IN UNSETTLED STATE

Department of Commerce Report States Domestic Issues Make Business Uncertain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Although the Manchurian situation remains unchanged, with no further effect upon North China trade, local domestic issues are keeping business communities in North China in an unsettled state, the Department of Commerce was informed today in a report from its commercial attaché at Peking.

Consequently, the report declared, developmental projects are marking time, while trade in staples is proceeding moderately under seasonally quiet conditions.

"With the passing of the midautumn settlement period" it continued, "money is now likely to ease slightly and the movement of import sales may increase to average volume, or greater, upon advance of the Fall season. Low silver exchange is, however, slackening import activities to some extent.

"Uncertainty prevails in Shanghai trading circles, owing to the apparent failure of provinces to support the heavy disbandment loan proposed by the Chinese Government. This situation, combined with an adverse exchange, is tending somewhat to damage the hopes entertained for expansion in Fall trading activities.

"The Autumn settlement period is not regarded as having been met satisfactorily by the Chinese merchants concerned, although no outstanding failures were reported. Heavy stocks carried by dealers throughout the Summer months and general slackening of trade were factors contributing to unsatisfactory settlements.

"Present rates of silver exchange are the most adverse experienced in the last fifteen years and are serving greatly to restrict new business in practically all import lines. Adverse exchange is limiting new business in metals, with tinplate quiet and activity in rails confined to inquiries only.

"North China weather has continued favorable for crops, and, except for a few flooded areas still under water, fairly favorable yields are anticipated. Acute famine conditions in general no longer obtain, though minor relief operations are proceeding in the flooded district between Peking and Tientsin, with a final survey of requirements of the district yet to be reported.

In addition to regular import and export tariffs, there have lately been instituted in the Province of Shantung so-called "goods taxes," in some cases collected twice, of from 2 per cent to 20 per cent, levied on inward and outward movement of goods, according to a radiogram received today by the Department of Commerce from A. Bland Calder, assistant commercial attaché at Peking. An additional surtax of three-fifths of the rail freight is charged, as well as export commodity inspection fees, amounting at times to another 1 per cent of the value.

CHINESE 'IRONSIDERS' STILL MARCH ON SOUTH

Chang's Rebel Division Remains Undispersed—Threat to Nanking Called Serious.

HANKOW, Sept. 27 (AP).—Latest dispatches received here today from Nanking indicate that the revolting "Ironsiders," whose surrender had been reported, are still in the field and are offering a serious threat to the Nationalist Government.

During the past twenty-four hours advices indicated that only a small number of "Ironsiders" had been disarmed in Northern Hunan by the Nationalists. The majority of the division are marching toward Kwangsi to join rebel forces there.

The Hunan provincial government has been ordered to block the southward advance of the "Ironsiders" under General Chang Fak-kwei. However, it is generally believed that the Hunan Governor will not attempt to hinder the division, whose fighting qualities are feared throughout China.

Observers here consider that the National Government is now facing a combination consisting of Chang's army, Hunan Communists and Kwangsi rebels, causing a serious situation.

ARABS REFUSE TO JOIN ANTI-BOYCOTT APPEAL

Jerusalem Bankers Plan to Curtail Their Credit if Discrimination Continues Against Jews.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 27 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Declaring they were not free agents, the Moslem merchants' conference convened by Mr. Keith-Roach, the Deputy Governor of Jerusalem, refused to sign the proclamation, to which the Jewish merchants had agreed, calling upon everybody in Jerusalem to trade freely with one another.

"We are only individuals, and it is impossible for us to depart from the national path. Otherwise we would be traitors," the Moslems are reported to have declared in refusing to break up the anti-Jewish boycott.

Mayor Nashishibi, the managers of the principal banks, the chairman of the Jerusalem Chamber of Commerce and the Jewish and Christian Vice Mayors of Jerusalem participated in the conference, all of them strongly deprecating the ruinous boycott agitation. It is understood that the bankers intend to bring pressure to bear against the Moslems, curtailing their credit if the boycott is not relaxed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Simon Handel 14 years old, and his 12-year-old sister, Frieda, are safe and unharmed, after the recent Arab outbreak, at 3 Tachkemony Street, Jaffa, Palestine, and intend to remain there, according to a report received by the State Department today from the American Consulate General in Jerusalem.

Inquiry for the children was made as the result of a letter to the Labor Department here from their father, who, however, failed to sign the letter or give his address. The father explained merely that he was an American citizen, fought in the Canadian Army during the World War and was a member of the Ohio National Guard in 1923.

Lacking any way to communicate directly with him, the State Department gave the information concerning the children to the press in the hope that it would be seen by the father.

NEW GERMAN DATA TOUCH WAR CLAIMS

Evidence Aims to Refute Talk of Spies in Black Tom and Kingsland Disasters.

MAN LONG SOUGHT APPEARS

Wazniak Says Kingsland Fire Was Accident—Alibis Offered in Black Tom Explosion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—American claims of $40,000,000 in the sabotage cases pending against Germany in the Black Tom explosion and the Kingsland (N. J.) fire of 1916 and 1917 may be seriously affected by new evidence obtained by Germany for submission to the German-American Mixed Claims Commission.

The cases turn upon the alleged responsibility of German agents for the disasters, and new evidence in the Kingsland case has been obtained from Theodore Wazniak, for whom a search has been made for more than twelve years.

Wazniak, who worked at the Kingsland Foundry, recently appeared at the office of the German agent of the commission here and asserted that the Kingsland fire started by accident from a machine at his workbench.

He denied that he was in the service of Germany and said that he lived in New York all the time the search for him was in progress.

Considerable detailed evidence has been prepared in support of this outline of the origin of the fire, and the question now before the commission is how much of it should be accepted as evidence.

Additional evidence obtained for presentation to the commission by the German agent, Dr. Karl von Lewinski, is also said to absolve Kurt Jahnke, head of the German secret service system in this country during the war, and Lothar Witzke, convicted German spy, of responsibility for the Black Tom explosion.

The former, it is claimed, signed a time-sheet only two days before the explosion at a bank in San Francisco, where, it is said, he was employed as a watchman. Witzke, it is asserted, was in California at the time of the explosion.

Appeared at Consulate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—New evidence bearing on the Black Tom and Kingsland disasters, soon to be laid before the Mixed Claims Commission, describes how Theodore Wazniak appeared at the German Consulate in New York several weeks ago.

Reading like a chapter from a war novel, the evidence tells how a representative of the German agent received a telephone call from New York to the effect that a man describing himself as Wazniak had appeared at the consulate there and declared his identity. He said he had read a news account of a hearing the commission held last Winter and that he remembered his own connections with it.

Far from being a German agent, the man said he was a Russian sympathizer and he wanted to tell his story to the proper authorities.

Describing how civil authorities held him for questioning immediately after the Kingsland fire, he is quoted as saying he told them at the time that he was employed in the foundry, and how he noticed the fire's beginning—a small flame that leaped from a machine at which he was at work, into a container of gasoline, spreading quickly thereafter until it destroyed the tremendous quantity of munitions held nearby.

Wazniak is said to have declared he never "disappeared," as the United States agents hold he did, after the first investigation. He has produced hospital, army draft and court records in support of this statement. The United States contention is that Wazniak was seen during this period fraternizing with known German spies in Mexico.

FASCISTI SENTENCE ROSSI TO 30 YEARS

Former Press Bureau Head Is Condemned for Inciting Italian Rebellion While Abroad.

HE ADMITS HE WAS AUTHOR

But Propaganda Was "Big Bluff," Says Chief Figure in Matteotti Case—Hearing Lasts 3½ Hours.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 27.—Cesare Rossi, former head of the Premier's Press Bureau, who, after being acquitted of complicity in the Matteotti affair, escaped abroad where he conducted anti-Fascist propaganda, but who was arrested at Campione last August, was condemned today to thirty years imprisonment by the Special Military Tribunal for the Defense of the State on a charge of committing acts with the aim of inciting Italian citizens to rise in arms against the government.

The trial was the shortest in the history of the Special Tribunal. It started at 9 A. M. and by 12.30 P. M. sentence had been passed. Rossi, who remained impassive throughout, heard his sentence calmly.

Rossi was accused of being the author of various articles and pamphlets, many of which were read in court. The prosecution said they might have caused part of the Italian population to rise in arms against the Fascist régime or to attempt to assassinate Premier Mussolini.

In court today Rossi readily admitted the authorship of the writings, but added they were a "big bluff" and could not, under the circumstances, have led to such serious consequences as the police asserted.

The Director General of the police was the only witness heard, and he confirmed the serious nature of Rossi's propaganda. Rossi replied the police were trying to make mountains out of molehills.

The Public Prosecutor pointed out that Rossi, if found guilty, was liable to the death sentence. In view, however, of the negligible effect of Rossi's propaganda, he asked only for a sentence of thirty years' imprisonment.

Rossi not having appointed an attorney to defend him, one was nominated by the court to speak in his favor. He said that the full rigor of the law could not be applied to Rossi, in that, as he had been deprived of Italian nationality, he was theoretically not an Italian citizen. The attorney also pointed out that the majority of the crimes attributed to Rossi were committed before the law for the defense of the State was passed, and therefore its severe penalties did not apply. He ended by pleading for the court's leniency.

Despite this plea, however, the court accepted in full the thesis of the Public Prosecutor and condemned Rossi to the maximum period of imprisonment permitted by the law.

The newspapers tonight gave scant prominence to the Rossi trial. The majority only print summaries hidden away in the inside pages, and not one adds any comment.

Rossi crossed the Swiss frontier into Italy a year ago and was immediately arrested. The Swiss press, which said he had been lured across the border by a woman, protested against the method of the arrest, claiming that Swiss sovereignty had been violated.

The Matteotti affair involved the killing of Giacomo Matteotti, a Socialist deputy who was kidnapped by a party of men in June, 1924. It was not until two months later that his body was definitely identified. There were thirty arrests, but twenty-five were eventually freed.

At the trial in March, 1926, the defendants admitted kidnapping Matteotti, but denied they had murdered him. Two were acquitted and three others were sentenced to short terms in prison.

General Rossi, accused of being the chief conspirator, served eighteen months in prison and was released under a decree of amnesty. After going to Paris, he wrote a series of articles attacking Premier Mussolini and accusing him of being responsible for the death of Matteotti.

The newspaper in question printed on Wednesday a statement that the Aga Khan was to be married in November to a girl who first attracted his attention in a candy store in Chambery.

BALDWIN SAYS FOES STOLE TORY POLICY

Labor Government's Triumphs Won by Shunning Methods of Socialism, He Asserts.

REAL TEST SEEN AS AHEAD

Former British Premier Declares Unemployment Is Still Big Issue Demanding Solution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Former Premier Stanley Baldwin broke today the silence Conservative party leaders have maintained virtually since Parliament adjourned in July.

Choosing the day on which Premier MacDonald sailed for America on his mission of disarmament, Mr. Baldwin issued a long critical review of the political situation and warned that the Labor Government would be unable to fulfill its campaign pledges. Whatever successes the Labor Ministry had won in the course of the Summer, Mr. Baldwin said, had been achieved by "taking a holiday from Socialism."

"In foreign affairs the Socialist Government has undoubtedly achieved a measure of success," Mr. Baldwin declared, "very largely because there has been no break in continuity with the declared policy of its predecessors, the Conservative Government.

"The real test of the Socialist Government is yet to come. The Socialist party owes its success at the last election very largely to lavish promises which led the electors to suppose they would bring about substantial and rapid improvements in social conditions and the standard of life of the people and in the unemployment situation. The people are waiting to see whetrer those pledges are going to be fulfilled. Up to date the signs have been discouraging."

Mr. Baldwin asserted that J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal, had merely discovered the truth of the Conservative party empire trade policy on his visit to Canada, but that he had no concrete proposals for relieving unemployment. The Labor Government, Mr. Baldwin said, had adopted the Conservatives' tax reform scheme and would be ready to take credit for the industrial improvement that would result from it. As for the coal industry, he asserted that the Labor Government was compelled to go back on its own scheme of seven hours a day in the mines because it would inevitably cause a fresh crisis in the collieries.

"It is not for the Conservatives to complain because Mr. MacDonald has preferred the Conservative policy to 'Socialism in our time,'" Mr. Baldwin concluded. "It is a consolation for our setback at the general election that, even though our party lost, our policy won."

KING RECEIVES VETERANS.

Albert of Belgium Thanks Ohioans for Memorial Bridge.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 27 (AP).—Having paid homage to comrades who fell in Belgium during the World War, Ohio veterans of the Thirty-seventh Division left this morning aboard a special train for Paris, where they will continue their tour until Oct. 12. A small delegation remained to attend a reception by King Albert. The pilgrims made a touching picture in Waeregham cemetery as they searched for the names of friends among the hundreds of little white crosses, which they covered with flowers. A final sounding of taps and lowered flags marked the end of the tribute by the visiting Americans.

Ambassador Gibson introduced the Ohio delegation to King Albert and presented to His Majesty a book giving a history of the Thirty-seventh Division during the war.

During the meeting at the royal palace King Albert expressed heartfelt thanks for the memorial bridge dedicated by the veterans yesterday at Eyne and gave to the delegation messages of gratitude and good-will to the State of Ohio and its Governor.

Kovno Strengthens Garrison As Voldemaras Force Gathers

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VILNA, Sept. 27.—Polish frontier guards on the Polish-Lithuanian border have been strengthened during the last few days owing to the uncertain situation in Lithuania resulting from Premier Voldemaras's resignation.

Kovno reports growing uneasiness in the Lithuanian capital, which fears trouble from the Voldemaras militia, the "Iron Wolves." The new government has failed in its attempt to disarm the militia, which is said to be prepared to march into Kovno.

Strong military detachments, known to be faithful to President Smetona, are being rushed to the capital.

The Russian-Polish border is being carefully watched in order to prevent political emigrants from returning to Lithuania.

PARIS DEPUTIES SCORE EVACUATION OF RHINE

But Right Blocs on Committee Agree to Credits—War Budget Will Rise $10,000,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Strong reservations upon The Hague decisions relative to the Rhineland evacuation were registered by the right blocs when the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies discussed the credits for the proposed military operations this afternoon.

Nationalist spokesmen said that Parliament's approval must be obtained before troop movements in the Rhineland could be executed or a budget for them voted.

The Finance Minister, Henri Cheron, admitted that the War Ministry budget would be increased by about 250,000,000 francs (about $10,000,000) in the first five months of 1930 if The Hague provisions became effective.

Hitherto army occupation expenses have been kept in a separate account which has been covered by Germany's payments, mostly by payments in kind, but as soon as the occupation troops return to French soil the expense of their maintenance will have to be transferred to the war budget. The government indicates that the withdrawal is expected to be completed by the end of next May, with an evacuation rate of from 20,000 to 22,000 troops per month.

The opponents of evacuation approved the credits but obtained the insertion in the minutes of a reserve to the effect that they were in no way committed to the approval of the Briand policy at The Hague.

REJECTS PLAN FOR PARLEY.

Polish Opposition Party Refuses to Confer With Government Group.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Sept. 27.—Following the refusal of the Opposition party in the Polish Sejm to attend the conference preliminary to the coming budgetary debate in the House, the Opposition declined today another invitation of the government bloc in the Sejm to discuss the proposals of the government group.

The Opposition maintains that all preliminary talk is superfluous as long as the Sejm cannot meet. The growing tension between the government and the Opposition makes the political situation more perplexing than ever. It is expected that the Left group will ask for a vote of censure of the government immediately after the Sejm is convoked for the budget session in October.

The Left Opposition hitherto has avoided an open clash with the Cabinet. If a vote of no confidence is passed, it certainly will clear the atmosphere. The opening session of the Sejm, which cannot be delayed beyond Oct. 31, is eagerly awaited. The public wants a solution of the crisis no less than the government and the Sejm.

CALLS ARGENTINA HOSTILE TO HOOVER

La Nacion Reveals "Discourtesies Amounting to Animosity" Over a Long Period.

RETALIATION BY US DENIED

Stimson Explains Failure to Join Penal Conference Is Due to Lack of Funds.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—The newspaper La Nacion, in a long editorial commenting on Washington's refusal to send a delegate to the congress on penal sciences at Buenos Aires on Oct. 12, says:

"The United States has assumed the only attitude that could be expected in the face of a long series of discourtesies on the part of the Argentine Government."

Noting that the United States participates in all congresses and conferences which have for their purpose the furtherance of cultural interchange or international thought, La Nacion says:

"Immediately upon assuming the reins of government the present administration caused the resignation of already-designated delegates to the conference on conciliation and arbitration in Washington and later was not represented at the Pan-American conference on consular procedure and trade-marks.

Discourtesy to Hoover Seen.

"The government was unnecessarily slow in extending an invitation to Mr. Hoover (on his tour of South America as President-elect) and its question regarding the character of his visit was discourteous and unnecessary. Immediately after Mr. Hoover's departure the government expressed a desire for M. Poincaré to visit Argentina in a manner which produced an ugly contrast to the manner in which it invited Mr. Hoover.

"These and other discourtesies have been weighed by the Washington Government, which traditionally and legitimately is jealous of the respect due it and which demands reciprocal courtesies in its diplomatic contact with other nations.

"Aside from these reasons, Washington's attitude is justified by the single fact that the Argentine Embassy in Washington has been left without an Ambassador for nearly a year.

"The embassy vacancy and the Argentine silence regarding the Briand-Kellogg pact can only be accepted at the White House as evidences of incomprehensible animosity on the part of the Argentine Government. Washington's action in refusing to attend the congress on penal sciences here should not be interpreted as a retaliatory measure but merely that the White House considers itself notified of Argentina's animosity toward it.

"What new episodes are to grow out of this deplorable situation? We would have no right to feel any surprise if the United States, on one excuse or another, should withdraw its embassy from Buenos Aires."

Stimson Denies Tension.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The failure of the United States to send a delegate to the Penal Science Congress at Buenos Aires was said by Secretary of State Stimson today to be due solely to lack of funds. Congress, he explained, had made no application for such representation, and lacking this the State Department sought to have some distinguished penologist attend at his own expense, but found no one who would do so.

It was true, the Secretary of State added, that the department has an emergency fund upon which it could draw for special occasions. But he had found so many demands being made on this fund that long ago he had been forced to guard it carefully and resist the majority of requests made for recourse to it, so that it might be conserved for matters of pressing importance.

Suggestions that there might be some connection with delays on the part of the Argentine Government in recent years in accepting invitations to be represented at some other Pan-American conferences in which the American Government was deeply interested were brushed aside by authoritative spokesmen for the Hoover Administration as having no basis.

In diplomatic circles it is felt that the Argentine Government has been an outstanding critic of policies of the American Government for some time, but there has never been any admission to this effect by spokesmen for the United States under any recent administrations, and every effort has been taken to avoid conveying the impression that the Washington Government looked upon them as discourteous.

Argentina Forceful Critic.

Argentina, for example, has been one of the most forceful critics in Latin America of American tariff policies. It also has been an opponent of the Monroe Doctrine, notably at the Pan-American Conference in Cuba last year.

There was also considerable comment evoked by an apparent slowness on the part of the Buenos Aires Government to invite Mr. Hoover there after election, yet no government did more to give him a cordial reception upon his arrival. The Argentine Embassy here has also been without an Ambassador for more than a year, but that is officially looked upon as a domestic matter for Argentina.

Although the Buenos Aires Government has failed to signify an intention to adhere to the Kellogg anti-war treaty, there have been only expressions of confidence here that in due time it would adhere.

Because of complexities of South American politics Brazil also has failed to adhere to the compact but its adherence is looked for once Argentina moves in the situation.

This attitude here toward the Kellogg treaty adherence is typical of all reactions to relations with Argentina on the part of officials here. There has been no criticism of that government, whatever administration might be in power, and there is every evidence that this attitude will continue here.

CLEMENCEAU REACHES 88TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Tiger Still Works Hard on His Memoirs at Summer Home on Vendee Coast.

PARIS, Sept. 27 (AP).—Georges Clemenceau will be 88 tomorrow.

The Tiger has not changed his spots, and no one expects he ever will. His mustache still flourishes formidably, his eyebrows still sweep out fiercely from his broad forehead, he wears his skull cap and his gloves indoors all day, and his tongue remains as sharp as a rapier. But he uses it less and less as the years roll by.

M. Clemenceau spends his Winters in his den in the Rue Franklin, named for the first American Ambassador to France. The Spring, Summer and early Autumn he roams around his lair on the Vendée Coast, going to market in the mornings at a near-by village. He looks after his garden, gay and fragrant with roses and flowers of many sorts, and does a great deal of writing and reading. Visitors he receives but rarely.

France and America eagerly await the publication of what M. Clemenceau has been writing these past few months.

On April 17 the Tiger told The Associated Press that he had begun a book to reply to some of the statements made about his relations with Marshal Foch and General Pershing during the war. These statements were contained in a book by Raymond Recouly called "The Memorial of Foch."

Italian King Receives Di Silvestro.

PISA, Sept. 27 (AP).—Giovanni Di Silvestro, chief of the Order of Sons of Italy in the United States, arrived here by seaplane today and was received by King Victor Emmanuel at San Rossore. During a conversation lasting more than half an hour his Majesty inquired for the progress of the order. Mr. Di Silvestro returned this evening to Rome.

HATRY GROUP FACES $5,045,175 CHARGES

New Indictment Alleges Forgery of $4,500,000 Certificates of British Municipal Loans.

4 ACCUSED ORDERED HELD

According to Statement Read in Court Hatry Takes Sole Blame—"Lost Everything," He Says.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—New charges of fraud, fraud which the prosecuting attorney described as "shocking" and "unprecedented in the city of London," were made against Clarence C. Hatry, the spectacular financier of the British Photomaton Parent Corporation and other companies, when he and three associates appeared in the Guildhall Court today for the second time. Bail was again refused and the defendants were ordered back to Brixton Prison.

Hatry has been in that jail all the week, charged with obtaining £1,045,175 by depositing worthless collateral. The new charges involve more than $4,500,000, and if proved will render him liable to a fourteen-year prison term.

According to the prosecution, Hatry forged municipal stock certificates of the cities of Gloucester, Swindon and Wakefield to an extent never before known in British finance.

It was alleged that six months after one of Hatry's companies—Corporation General Securities, Ltd.—had ceased to have the authority to issue the city of Wakefield loan issue, eighty Wakefield loan certificates were forged to raise money for the Austin Friars Trust, Ltd., another Hatry company. Each of the allegedly forged certificates had a supposed value of $25,000.

It was further charged that Hatry and his co-defendants had caused to be printed 500 $2,500 certificates of the city of Gloucester loan. A third charge accused J. G. G. Dixon, one of Hatry's colleagues, of having ordered the printing of 500 spurious scrip certificates of the city of Swindon loan.

No reply was made on Hatry's behalf except the reading of a statement he is said to have written just after the collapse of his companies and his arrest a week ago.

In the statement Hatry insists he alone is responsible for the plight of his companies and adds:

"The proceeds of the $1,045,175 loan from the Portchester Trust, Ltd., were used in the general business of my group of companies. Neither I nor my co-directors have personally benefited from it. In fact we have lost everything ourselves."

FRENCH ENVOY HOPES TALKS WILL SUCCEED

Ambassador to Britain Lauds Extension of Friendships in Cause of World Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—France's good wishes for the successful outcome of the MacDonald American visit was expressed by the French Ambassador to Great Britain, M. de Fleuriau, in a luncheon address at Hastings today. The ceremony concluded the visit of a delegation of French Mayors and Deputy Mayors, who have been guests of the Mayor of Hastings since Wednesday.

"The fact that Britain and France are friends and are walking in the same direction with the same aims is of the greatest importance for peace throughout the world," the Ambassador said. "Our friendship is not at all a jealous one. We hope Britain will have many friends and may strengthen her friendship with our common friends, which applies particularly to the relations between Britain and America.

"The Prime Minister is about to leave for New York to meet the President of the United States. The name of Hoover is respected everywhere in those parts of France which were invaded in the war in recognition of all he did in the provisioning of those parts and Belgium. We sincerely hope Mr. MacDonald's visit to Mr. Hoover will be a great success."

SNOWDEN YACHT BURNS AT SAG HARBOR CLUB

One of Crew of Sea Horse Hurt in Blaze Which Follows Blast—Loss Put at $75,000.

Special to The New York Times.

SAG HARBOR, L. I., Sept. 27.—The 80-foot yacht Sea Horse, owned by James H. Snowden of Southampton, L. I., and New York, was badly damaged and one member of its crew slightly burned today by fire believed to have been caused by a spark from a bilge pump aft. Although an exact estimate of the damage could not be obtained, it was said it would amount to $75,000.

The fire, which followed an explosion that attracted the attention of the crews of near-by yachts and persons ashore, was confined to the stern of the vessel, which was burned to the water's edge. The Sea Horse was tied up at the pier of the Sag Harbor Yacht Club at the time and so great was the heat of the blaze that part of the outside walls of the clubhouse was scorched.

Engineer William Fratus, who was aboard the ship, was slightly burned about the face and arms. Captain Curtis F. Higgins and one member of the crew, who also were aboard, escaped unharmed.

Immediately after the fire started, George Holden, steward of the Sag Harbor Yacht Club, summoned the Sag Harbor Fire Department. Before the apparatus arrived the Sea Horse was towed away from the pier to prevent the fire from spreading to the clubhouse. The firemen prevented the blaze from spreading to a storage tank amidships containing 1,900 gallons of gasoline.

After the fire, Mr. Snowden, who had been called from his Summer estate in Southampton, presented $100 to the local fire department.

NEW YORK PRIVATE GETS CONGRESS MEDAL

Michael Valente Congratulated by Hoover for Courageous Feat in France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Michael Valente of Long Beach, N. Y., today received the Congressional Medal from President Hoover, in the presence of Secretary Good and Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Chief of Staff, "for gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty" while a private in the 107th Infantry, Twenty-seventh Division, in the World War.

The citation stated that, with a companion, he attacked one machine gun nest, killed two of the gunners and captured five, charged another gun and put it out of action and jumped into an enemy trench, killed two and captured sixteen Germans before he was wounded. The citation was read by Colonel Campbell Hodges, the President's military aide.

"I am very proud to be able to congratulate you," the President said to Valente as he presented the medal.

"It's the proudest moment of my life," Valente responded.

Valente, a native of Italy, was a resident of Ogdensburg, N. Y., when he enlisted.

M'DONALD DEPARTS FOR VISIT TO HOOVER

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

I do not, as I have said, expect my stay in Washington to lead to spectacular developments as the result of continued negotiations. One reason for this is that the current negotiations concerning naval disarmament have carried so far that they have now to be brought to a wider international stage.

"Before there could be any progress in naval disarmament it was necessary for Washington and London to devise means for terminating the deadlock which had arisen between them at the Geneva conference in 1927. I am glad to say we have made such good progress in this work that the moment has, we hope, come when the five naval powers who signed the Washington treaties can be invited to join and insure in common a happy issue to a conference.

"If all goes well, the five-power conference will be held early in the new year. If it succeeds it will supply the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations with a substantial contribution to naval disarmament. The preparatory commission would then be free to proceed with its general work, and it will later on be possible for the League of Nations to summon a general disarmament conference of all the nations, toward which it has long been working.

"Such, briefly, is the situation regarding disarmament. But that is not the only impulse that moves me to go to America. I want very much to see President Hoover once again and meet the other American public men, many of whom I know already. We have so much work to do in cooperation which cannot be done unless we understand and have confidence in each other. The history of the Anglo-American naval situation during the last three years proves, if proof is needed, that the closest possible understanding between the two nations is of the greatest importance not only for those nations but for the world.

Favors Personal Contacts.

"I have always felt that personal contact between those actually responsible for government in Washington and London is essential if that understanding is to be developed as fully as we all wish it to be. Both nations have a great rôle to play in the advancement not only of disarmament but of many other democratic and moral issues with which their history is embodied.

"I am off in the hope of being able to do something to narrow the Atlantic."

The chief of the official party to bid good-bye at Waterloo Station was Ambassador Dawes, accompanied by Dr. John H. Finley, who had arrived from America only an hour before, and Ray Atherton, counselor of the American Embassy.

Among others at the station to say goodbye were various members of the Cabinet. Traveling with the Prime Minister and Miss MacDonald to America were Sir Robert Vansittart, principal private secretary to Mr. MacDonald; Thomas Jones, deputy secretary of the Cabinet; R. L. Craigie, head of the American Department of the Foreign Office, and Miss Rose Rosenberg, the Premier's personal secretary. Lord Arnold, Paymaster General, also is in the party, but not in any official capacity.

In addition to the message from the King, the Prime Minister received the good-will of the City of London from the Lord Mayor, Sir Kynaston Studd, whose message was:

"The citizens of London are taking a keen personal interest in your visit to America and heartily wish you a successful issue, a pleasant voyage and a safe return."

DAWES SHOUTS FAREWELLS.

"Good Old Mac!" Cries Ambassador as Premier Departs.

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Prime Minister MacDonald started tonight on his historic mission to the United States with a parting warm handclasp from Ambassador Dawes to speed him on his way.

Ambassador Dawes, in evening dress, elbowed his way through the huge crowd gathered at Waterloo station and cheered "Good old Mac! Good old Ramsay!" He found the Prime Minister standing at a door on the boat train, surrounded by friends and with his three pretty daughters hovering in the background. Mr. MacDonald wore an ordinary business suit and fedora hat and appeared quite serious during the leave taking.

Isabel MacDonald, who, alone of the three girls, was accompanying her father to the United States, reached from the door of the car and nervously plucked him once or twice by the sleeve, urging him to step aboard. Her flushed face betrayed excitement. Her eyes sparkled in anticipation.

She made such an imposing picture framed in the doorway of the car in her long gray coat with astrakhan collar, gray hat and stockings and black shoes that she immediately became the centre of attraction for a battery of photographers.

A group of workers clambered to the tops of taxicabs and began singing "The Red Flag," but as departure time neared every one became a little less political and a little more mellow and the tune changed to "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mr. MacDonald withdrew from the bustle of getting ready at 10 Downing Street for his departure to dictate a message of thanks to the King's message. The reply follows:

With my humble duty to your Majesty, I am deeply grateful for your Majesty's gracious and kindly thought in sending me good wishes for a journey which will indeed, I trust, be a fruitful innovation.

RAMSAY MacDONALD.

Before he left London Mr. MacDonald cabled Premier Mackenzie King of Canada thanking him for arrangements he has made and expressing the great pleasure with which the British Premier and Miss Isabel MacDonald are looking forward to their visit to Canada.

Miss MacDonald spent a busy last day before tonight's departure for the United States. She did not accompany her father on his usual morning walk, but stayed at home to superintend the packing of six bags in which the Prime Minister and his daughter are carrying all their clothes. They are not taking any trunks. She made a brief tour in the shopping district picking up odds and ends for the trip and dropped in at the homes of various friends to say farewell.

BALDWIN ENTHUSIASTIC OVER M'DONALD'S TRIP

Ex-Premier Says He Had Planned to Come to America if Returned at Last Election.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Former Premier Baldwin said tonight he looked with favor upon Premier MacDonald's mission to America, but that he had planned to do the same thing if the Conservatives had been returned to power last May.

"Before the Conservative Government left office," said Mr. Baldwin, "Mr. Gibson, the United States representative at the Preparatory Disarmament Commission meeting at Geneva made his famous declaration which helped to clear away many misunderstandings and opened the way to a naval understanding between the nations of the world.

The time did not permit of any agreement being arrived at before the general election but it was my own intention, if returned to office, to pay a personal visit to the United States. In my speech during the debate on the address in Parliament I expressed the hope that Mr. MacDonald would adopt this course. I am glad the visit actually has been arranged and I wish the Prime Minister every success in his negotiations."

90 ASKED TO HOOVER DINNER

Guests at Function to MacDonald Will Fill State Dining Room.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—It was announced at the White House this afternoon that there will be ninety guests, ladies and gentlemen, at the State dinner to be given by President and Mrs. Hoover to Premier MacDonald, Miss Isabel MacDonald, his official hostess, and the members of his party at the White House on Monday night, Oct. 7.

The guest list will tax the capacity of the State dining room.

FUND TO PAY TRIP COSTS.

"Emergency" Allowance of $400,000 to Be Used by Officials Here.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Part of the expenses for the entertainment of Premier MacDonald on his visit to the United States will be paid out of the $400,000 "emergency fund" of the State Department.

The fund is annually appropriated by Congress to cover unusual cases requiring unforeseen expenditures by the department.

Among the items of the Prime Minister's visit which probably will be paid out of the fund will be the trips which Secretary Stimson and banking officials of the department will have to make to New York to meet Mr. MacDonald, and special trains for the conveyance of the party to Washington and thence to the Canadian border.

MACDONALD TO LUNCH HERE

Four New York Societies to Honor Him on Oct. 11.

Premier MacDonald has accepted an invitation to be guest at lunch on Friday, Oct. 11, of four societies at the Hotel Astor, it was announced yesterday by the English-Speaking Union, one of the organizations, according to The Associated Press. He already has accepted another invitation for his New York visit, to be guest at dinner the same night of the Council on Foreign Relations.

The three other organizations which will join to honor the British Premier at the luncheon are the Societies of St. Andrew's, St. George's and St. David's.

John W. Davis, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, who is head of the English-Speaking Union, will preside at the luncheon.

The "reducing diet" that stole her beauty

SHE was one girl who was going to be slim and beautiful—so she began a strenuous reducing diet. She counted calories. She shunned this and sought for that. But, all the time, she was missing something every diet should have. In the dishes she so carefully selected there was scarcely any roughage. Constipation gained a foothold. Her looks suffered as is often the case with constipated persons. She had headaches and her complexion became sallow.

Thousands of women and men are paying the price of diets which are lacking in bulk. Constipation continues to poison the system. No other evil is more widespread. It often ends with serious trouble and disease.

By adding Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to any diet, the ideal roughage is obtained to relieve and prevent constipation.

ALL-BRAN does not add fat to the body. It just sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. Its regular use restores health and above all priceless beauty and charm.

No pills nor drugs can play the part of ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet. Their dose has to be constantly increased and they do not produce the natural results that ALL-BRAN does.

Don't trifle with pills

You will like the appetizing nut-sweet flavor of ALL-BRAN. It can be enjoyed in many ways. In soups. On salads. Soaked in orange, prune or fruit juice. As a cereal with milk or cream. Delicious with honey added. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal.

If you write us we will gladly send you a valuable booklet on the subject of safe reducing. It contains many approved diet suggestions which promote beauty as they help you reduce. Grocers everywhere sell ALL-BRAN. Be sure to get the genuine—made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars.

GUARANTEED!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: If it disagrees in any way, or does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

ASKS WIDER POWER FOR AUSTRIAN HEAD

Chancellor Schober Also Suggests Revision of Vienna Status in Opening Parliament.

SOCIALISTS SEE TERROR

Leader Attacks Plans as Move to Change Democratic Republic Into Semi-Fascist State.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Sept. 27.—Proposals for enlargement of the powers of the President of Austria which would put him on much the same footing as the President of the United States, for a change in the method of parliamentary election and for revision of the status of Vienna will be introduced by Chancellor Schober, according to the program contained in his speech opening the Austrian Parliament today.

All these reforms have been requested by Austrian Fascists, backed by their private army, the Heimwehr, at long conference with the leaders of which delayed Chancellor Schober's appearance in Parliament today. The most contentious of the proposals is that calling for revision of the status of Vienna, which for the Heimwehr means its reduction from a province to a city and a consequent diminution of power of its present Socialist administration.

Socialist Leader Defiant.

To judge from a statement of their spokesman in Parliament that his party never would agree to constitutional changes brought about by terrorization, the Socialists will refuse point blank to assent to the Vienna proposal. The logical deduction would be that Chancellor Schober's ministry of all talents may be only a new label on an old problem, but Austria is not governed by logic.

The new Chancellor, whose speech was made before a crowded house, with a full representation of the diplomatic corps, including United States Minister Washburn, pointed out that he took office now, as in 1921, at a troublous time. After some preliminary whitewashing of the Heimwehr, which, he said, was composed of honest and respectable men with no desire to overthrow the present order by violent means but with demands which, in so far as they were just and legal, expression must be given by the government, the Chancellor declared:

"I assert that all the forces of the State are strong and they are at the disposal of the government. They are quite sufficient to avoid any danger."

Turing to the question of constitutional changes, which he said were widely demanded by the people, the Chancellor explained that he was considering a change in the mode of electing the President and extension of his powers, giving him control of the army, power to dissolve Parliament and declare State and national emergency. It seems he had also in mind revision of the status of Vienna in the light of the fact that he spoke of the capital as the spiritual possession of all Austria.

Expresses Loyalty to Germans.

He also advocated a change in the mode of parliamentary election, revision of the press law and introduction of a law to preserve the freedom of the workers. In foreign relations, peace would be the aim, "a purpose in which we feel ourselves united with the German people, to whom we will be loyal in good and bad days," he asserted. Last of all, the Chancellor said, Austria needs a foreign loan.

Dr. Otto Danneberg, one of the less extreme Socialist leaders, declared his party would not be terrified into acceding to constitutional changes designed to change a democratic republic into a semi-Fascist State. He reminded the government that the Constitution could not be changed without a two-thirds majority, which meant, he said, without consent of the Social Democrats.

Professor Eisenberg has declined an invitation to assume the portfolio of the Ministry of Education on the ground that his professional duties leave him no time for political work.

VIENNA, Sept. 27 (AP).—The hand of Johann Schober, new Chancellor of Austria and recently Police Commissioner of Vienna, was seen in the confiscation today of the entire edition of the Communist newspaper Rote Fahne. Herr Zucher, the responsible editor, was arrested on charges of high treason.

Dog Swims Allegheny to Save His Master; Arrives as Would-Be Suicide Is Rescued

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27. — Jacob Abramovitz's dog lived up to the "man's best friend" tradition today, even though he had to swim to the middle of the Allegheny River to do it.

Abramovitz, police said, jumped from the Sixth Street bridge in an attempt to end his life. A certain lady had "passed his up," he told them, and he was tired of it all.

While Patrolman George Swartzmiller and E. J. Isnat struggled with the half-drowned man in the river, Abramovitz's police dog, Boy, which had called help with his barking, ran from the centre of the bridge to the end of the structure down the bank and into the water. Then he swam out to the struggling men and back again, as a skiff with the rescued and rescuers returned to the shore.

When Abramovitz was laid on the river bank to await a patrol wagon the dog pranced about the prostrate form, licking his master's face and hands. He whined and barked and looked appealingly at the rescuers.

The wagon arrived and Boy forced his way into it, still whining and licking his master's face. The dog remained outside the cell when his master was locked up.

A few hours later, in Central Police court, Abramovitz admitted to Magistrate Hones that he had been drinking. He was fined $10 with the alternative of thirty days in the workhouse.

PARAGUAYANS SEE DEFEAT OVER CHACO

Disgruntled Government Foes Attack Foreign Minister for Arbitration Result.

URUGUAY OFFERS MEDIATION

Minister Expresses Willingness to Work for Conciliation With Bolivia in Dispute.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—Dispatches from Asuncion, as well as Paraguayan newspapers arriving this week, show that the Paraguayan Government is undergoing a heavy campaign of opposition in Congress and out as the result of what Paraguayans consider a defeat before the Conciliation Commission at Washington.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs underwent a long and bitter interpolation in the Chamber of Deputies on Thursday, where he finally persuaded the Chamber to go into secret session to prevent publicity.

Just before the secret session began, however, he stated that all arbitration implies a certain amount of risk, but that Paraguay ought not to fear any such risk, because it could appear before an arbitral judge with a clear conscience and legal titles. He told the Chamber that if they did not want Paraguay to appear before the judicial arbitrator, Congress should openly and honorably declare its belief that the question with Bolivia is unsolvable by peaceable measures.

The government's opponents have brought forward simultaneously the frontier treaty with Brazil, which was signed on May 19, 1927, already ratified in the Senate and now brought before the Chamber of Deputies as part of the campaign of opposition.

This treaty expresses Brazil's recognition of Paraguay's title to the territory between Bahia Negra and the mouth of the Apa River. Bolivia claims this territory.

In the midst of this political upheaval the Uruguayan Minister at Asuncion called on the Minister of Foreign Affairs and explained that Uruguay was perfectly willing to offer its good offices for the settlement of the differences with Bolivia, but had not made a formal offer because of Bolivia's unwillingness to accept these good offices.

In the meanwhile the Paraguayan Government is resorting to a three months' declaration of martial law to censor newspapers and deport newspaper men and other who are opposing its Chaco policy.

PITKIN WILL SUBMIT WILSON DATA TO GROUP

To Give Information on 'Infirmity' to Prominent Men and Ask Advice, He Says.

In a statement given to the press yesterday, Professor Walter B. Pitkin of Columbia University, author of the book, "The Psychology of Happiness," declares his intention to submit confidential information concerning "an infirmity which marred Wilson's happiness" to a group of "prominent scientists and editors, including warm friends of the late President." The information will be embodied in two affidavits, and Professor Pitkin says he will ask the group to whom the information is to be submitted for advice on a course of action regarding it.

For the present, Professor Pitkin announced, he will not reveal the names of those in the group, and will not give them out without their consent. They are privileged, however, he declares, "to pass any criticism they may see fit" on his original statement and make the criticism public independently of him.

Professor Pitkin is taking this course because of published attacks upon him by Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to the war President, he asserts, "as there is not the faintest breath of scandal nor malice behind my study of Wilson, nor the remotest possibility of hurting his reputation." He further requests Mr. Tumulty "to retract publicly his statement made in THE NEW YORK TIMES and elsewhere that I depicted one of the world's immortals [Wilson] as the victim of a major physiological infirmity.'" This, Professor Pitkin asserts, is false. He asks Mr. Tumulty also to "state on what facts he bases his assertion that my motives in printing a study of Wilson were those of 'thrill slander.'"

The driver of the truck did not stop.

Maasch has multiple cuts and is hurt internally. His wife has many cuts on the head and face. The child's jawbone was broken.

The Maasches were returning from a vacation.

TEAR GAS EMPTIES BANK.

Delaware Clerks and Customers Routed by Accidental Release.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 27 (AP).—The accidental release of a tear gas bomb, intended to foil any possible attempts of bandits to hold up the bank, routed patrons, officials and clerks of the Equitable Trust Company, in the centre of the city, today.

Money was left lying on desks as the clerks fled to the street. Police and detectives were sent to the bank and remained there until it was possible for the clerks to re-enter twenty minutes later.

The fumes also spread through the eight-story building, forcing many to seek relief at open windows. Several persons who were passing at the time were temporarily blinded as the gas was wafted into the street.

LAYS 50 MURDERS TO WHITE SLAVERS

Boston Prosecutor Blames Traffic Brought to Light by Reinstein Slaying.

ARRESTS OF RING ASKED

Harry Malaga Surrenders at Boston for Examination on New Yorker's Death.

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—At least fifty murders in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and Pennsylvania were directly traceable to the white slave traffic, brought to light through investigation of the slaying of Samuel Reinstein of New York, Frederick H. Tarr, United States Attorney, said today. Investigation disclosed that Reinstein was connected with the traffic in women.

In a statement issued by Mr. Tarr he said that a circuit of disorderly houses was established in a chain of cities in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and Pennsylvania.

"No less than eight murders have occurred within the last few weeks in this circuit alone," the statement added. "The unfortunate girls who 'play' this circuit are transported or shipped from one house to another or one city to another as a regular business program."

Rose Nesiant, aged 30, of this city, was taken into custody on a charge of violating the Mann act, and Harry Malaga of Easton, Pa., came here and surrendered to Assistant District Attorney Doyle. He was wanted for examination in connection with the murder. He was arraigned today on a statutory charge and was held on $5,000 bonds until Oct. 14.

Warrants for five persons have been issued here in connection with the white slave ring, but it is generally admitted that all have left the city.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—Department of Justice agents who today arrested Elisabeth Martin, aged 19, for conspiracy to violate the Mann act, believe they have uncovered a huge white slave traffic plot. The woman was arrested after Harry Malaga had been arrested in Boston. Malaga informed the authorities that he had transported the Martin girl to Boston from Northampton County. She is held for the Boston authorities.

HELD IN ELEVATED MURDER.

Tailor Vague in Court; Asks Why He Should Want a Lawyer.

David Bernstein, the tailor who pushed James Tucker, Richmond Hill merchant, to his death from a platform of the elevated on Thursday, was held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Healy in Homicide Court, Brooklyn, for hearing next Thursday on a charge of murder.

"Do you want a lawyer?" asked the magistrate.

"What for?" asked the tailor.

"This murder charge is a serious proposition; do you know that?"

"I don't know." The defendant stared blankly straight ahead.

A representative for the Jewish Aid Society told Magistrate Healy that the society had taken care of Bernstein's family for several years; that the tailor was a dementia praecox case and twice had tried to commit suicide. Bernstein was separated from his wife and four children. He lived with his sister at 900 Vermont Street, Brooklyn.

James Tucker was found dead in the street below the Myrtle Avenue station of the Broadway elevated line in Brooklyn. The police were inclined to record the case as a suicide until Bernstein gave himself up and said he had pushed Tucker from the platform.

WENCESLAUS DAY OBSERVED

Prague Celebrates the Feast of Bohemia's Patron Saint.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Sept. 27.—The feast days of "Good King Wenceslaus," patron saint of Bohemia, dawned to glorious weather today. The city is filled with Czechoslovak peasants in every variety of national costume, as well as Czech deputations from the United States, Paris, Copenhagen, Warsaw, Bucharest, Posen and Zagreb, anxious to celebrate the festival which this year is also the thousandthe anniversary of the foundation of the kingdom of Bohemia, whose lands are included in the Czechoslovak State today.

The Eighth Cavalry Regiment received its colors today from the hands of the President Masaryk as the opening incident of the celebration. American Czechs have brought a diadem with which to crown the head of the reliquary of St. Wenceslaus.

This evening enormous crowds gathered in Wenceslaus Square at the heart of Prague, which searchlights had rendered as light as under the midday sun, for the civic ceremony attended by members of the Cabinet.

PETOSKEY, Mich., Sept. 27 (AP).—Two trainmen were killed and five others injured when two Pere Marquette railway freight trains collided head-on near Petoskey tonight. Charles Markham, engineer, and Henry Defure, fireman, jumped just before the collision and were crushed beneath their locomotive, which overturned on them.

PAVLOV, 80, SPURNS BOLSHEVIST HONORS

Famous Physiologist Refuses to Sanction Soviet Offer of Official Reception.

PASSES DAY IN PRIVATE

Government Gives $50,000 to His Leningrad Laboratory to Aid Experiments.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Sept. 27.—Professor Ivan Pavlov, called the world's most famous physiologist, refused to sanction any official celebration of his eightieth birthday, which he passed privately today with his family and faithful disciples in Leningrad.

Professor Pavlov gave his reasons for this refusal to a competent Soviet authority, and referred to the October revolution as "a deplorable event in history."

All that the Soviet could do under the circumstances was further to endow Professor Pavlov's splendid Leningrad laboratory with $50,000, and decide to close the neighboring street to all traffic in order that the vibrations should not disturb the "conditioned reflexes" of the 120 dogs which are there permanently for experimental purposes.

Professor Pavlov's hostility to Communism and his sorrow at the class war have long been well known abroad. But his criticism of Bolshevik methods of government were never so sharp as during the past year, since the "cleansing activities" of the Bolshevik party began for the first time to be applied on a large scale to Russian scientists.

Last Winter, at the request of the Soviet authorities, the Russian Academy of Science, of which Professor Pavlov is a leading light, elected fifty Communists in order that the new "science of Marxism" might be adequately represented there. The academy, however, by a secret ballot, rejected three other Communists officially recommended at the same time, and only one way and accepted them when a public vote was ordered. Professor Pavlov then made public declaration that he would "never set foot in the place again."

Other remarks his—sorrowfully cited by today's Pravda—were: "The Bolsheviks are half illiterate, roughhandlers of science," and "I deplore the destructions of cultural values by illiterate Communists." And in general, he "denounced the Bolshevik party's class policy in Russian universities."

Professor Pavlov, of course, is a terrible enigma for the intellectual Communists. His almost life-long experiments have furnished a purely materialistic explanation for the functioning of the brain and this, of course, delights the Communists who for this reason "do everything possible to help forward his researches."

They have, as Pravda claims, done everything possible, but he has sternly refused to draw general political or social conclusions from his laboratory work or allow his experiments to be used to support Marxian "dialectic materialism," which he calls a "pseuda-science."

Today's Pravda, therefore, argues that, like many other great scientists, Professor Pavlov is objective in his laboratory, but he is a mere subjective reactionary outside of it, and his political and social opinions, have "no scientific basis," are anticultural and hinder scientific progress."

TELLS OF BEER PARTIES IN SEIZED BREWERY

Watchman Says Federal Marshal Sanctioned Drinking in S. I. Plant Except by Policemen.

Testimony of beer-drinking parties at the Manor Brewery in West New Brighton, S. I., after it had been seized by the government was given yesterday at the trial in the Federal court in Brooklyn of the $200,000 damage suit brought by William N. Fitzgerald against United States Marshal Jesse D. Moore and several of his deputies for false arrest and malicious persecution.

Albert S. Johnson, employed by Marshal Moore to guard the brewery after its seizure, testified Moore had told him he could have friends visit him at the brewery, but he was not to permit any policemen about the place. When Federal Judge Moscowitz, presiding, asked for Moore's exact words on that subject, Johnson quoted him as follows:

"Don't let any cops in. Don't give them any beer. I kept a saloon on Bedford Avenue (Brooklyn) for eight years, and I never gave a cop a drink without he paid for it, because they will drink—if they get it for nothing."

Johnson corroborated earlier testimony by Fitzgerald about their arrest on April 14, 1927, after two men had been caught removing three half barrels of beer from the brewery. The witness said that frequently he, Arthur Stenger and Otto Deynzer, former employes there, drank beer for hours in the brewery. He testified also that his "superiors" had often brought friends to the place and had drunk beer with them throughout an afternoon. Johnson also has a damage suit pending against Moore and his deputies. He seeks $50,000 in that action.

Stenger admitted he and Deynzer had removed the three half barrels of beer without Johnson's knowledge. He told of having paid a visit to Johnson and, after bidding him goodnight, rolling the beer kegs, wrapped in burlap bags, over the cobbled yard of the brewery. He said Deputy Marshal Ferrand and others with him had fired shots to stop his car when he was driving off with the beer.

The trial will be resumed Monday.

CRISIS RUMORED IN CUBA.

Cabinet Break Reported Due on Arrival of De Celis.

HAVANA, Sept. 27 (AP).—Rumors were insistent in political circles this morning that a Cabinet crisis exists in Cuba which is only awaiting the return of Dr. Santiago Gutierrez de Celis, Secretary of the Treasury, who departed from New York yesterday, to break.

The report is that Dr. Gutierrez de Celis recently presented his resignation to President Machado to become effective immediately upon his signing the fifth and last emission of bonds of a $50,000,000 loan made to the Cuban Government by the Chase National Bank of New York.

friend of the defendant, scribbled her recollection of the "threats" she said Peacox had made against his wife.

Both these pieces of evidence had figured in a charge of "a frame-up" in Mr. Syme's address.

Prosecutor Asks Chair.

Throughout the day's session Peacox sat with his head resting on the back of his chair and did not flinch when District Attorney Coyne pointed at him and demanded a verdict that meant death in the electric chair. While his own counsel, Mr. Syme, was attacking the State's case, his mother, whom he had kissed as soon as his handcuffs were removed this morning, broke into sobs.

The courtroom was tense as the District Attorney sought to drive home to the jurors the minimum time it must have taken Peacox to choke his wife to death.

"Three minutes," said Mr. Coyne. "Doctors have told you that that is the minimum time it took this defendant to choke his wife to death. This is an out-and-out strangling case, and because of the time required to choke another to death and the opportunity provided for a person to make a choice to kill or not to kill, a verdict of guilty as charged is properly justified, even without further evidence of premeditation or deliberation as the court will charge you."

Mr. Syme had charged that much of the State's evidence was "framed," that Captain Michael Silverstein, to whom Peacox had confessed, withheld part of the youth's confession to be able to say, "I've killed another one," and that Frances Newman, the dance hall girl with whom Peacox had been friendly, perjured herself when she testified he had threatened his wife.

Court Gives Charge.

A short recess was declared. Then Justice Tompkins delivered his charge to an attentive jury.

Warning the jurors that they must not let "sympathy sway their minds," Justice Tompkins told them four verdicts were possible under the law.

"If you find," he said, "that the defendant was insane, and that he was unable to weigh the quality and nature of his acts at the time of the killing, he is to be acquitted.

"If he was sane and knew the nature and quality of his acts and committed this crisis in the heat of passion without intent, deliberation or premeditation, your verdict should be manslaughter.

"If he knew the nature and quality of his acts, and killed with intent but without any deliberation or premeditation, then the verdict should be murder in the second degree.

"If he was sane and aware of the nature and quality of his acts, able to distinguish right from wrong and still killed with intent, deliberation and premeditation, the crime is murder in the first degree.

Rules Out Sentiment.

"And now, gentlemen, whatever your verdict may be, don't hesitate to say what it is. You are not to be influenced by sympathy or any sentimental considerations. It is quite true that this would be a hard and cruel world without those two emotions, but if there is one place where they must be excluded and never allowed to enter it is the jury box."

Declaring that "adultery gives no license to kill," Justice Tompkins instructed the jurors to disregard all the evidence of the wife's alleged infidelities except "as they bear upon the state of mind of the defendant at the time of this killing." Likewise he dismissed from the jury's consideration one count in the indictment explaining that the allegation that Peacox had tied a piece of rope about his wife's throat, causing her death, was incompatible with the rest of the State's case, since this act took place in the woods near Greenburg "while it has been proven that death occurred in defendant's apartment in Mount Vernon." The allegations that Peacox choked his wife with his hands until she was dead, and that he suffocated her by knotting a towel about her head and throat, were allowed to stand.

On the issue of intent Justice Tompkins charged that a "man is presumed to intend the usual and ordinary consequences of his act," and at the request of Mr. Coyne he added that in this particular case there was sufficient time for the "voice of reason to be heard" between the time Peacox reached for his pistol and the time he seized his wife by the throat. It was unnecessary for the State to prove that Peacox intended to kill his wife before he entered his apartment, he said, provided sufficient time elapsed "to form a choice" between the formation of an impulse to kill and the act required to gratify it.

Syme Attacks Evidence.

Mr. Syme began summing up at 10:08. He finished at 12:30.

Insufficient evidence had been presented to convict "a yellow dog," he said. The State was undecided even whether the defendant's wife died by strangulation or was smothered to death, he declared. It was Captain Silverstein who came in for the bitterest attack at the hands of Mr. Syme, speaking now in dulcet, coaxing tones and now in rasping shouts of exhortation. Once the lawyer drew the attention of the jurors to Mrs. Peacox when she wept briefly.

Captain Silverstein was called a witness who had "held back everything favorable to this boy until he collapsed mentally and morally upon the witness stand."

"Are you going to say that's honest, that's just and fair, and put this boy in the electric chair on his story?" Mr. Syme asked. "And you've got to take his story if you say the boy is guilty."

Mr. Syme charged also that Dr. Amos Squire, county medical examiner, who testified that the murdered girl was killed by "manual strangulation," had reported after his autopsy that she had died by "suffocation."

"When did he change his mind?" the lawyer demanded. "Was it at a conference before the trial started when it was found a change would have to be made to get a conviction?"

Coyne Replies on "Frame-Up."

Although the defense lawyer had made it clear he did not include the District Attorney in his charge of a "frame-up," Mr. Coyne opened his address with the statement that he had been "in charge of this case since the start, and any accusation of that sort comes back to me." He had tried to be fair throughout, he said. Captain Silverstein, he said, was "honest and faithful" and had maintained a high record of integrity over a period of twenty-five years in the public service.

Then he proceeded to dissect the defense.

Even the motive for the crime, unnecessary though it is in a case of manual strangulation, the District Attorney said, had been provided not by the State but by the defense.

"Remember that panorama that Peacox said flashed through his mind when his wife taunted him," Mr. Coyne declared. "That panorama furnished the motive. He didn't give it a title, but it could have been called 'Why I killed my wife,' or a story of jealousy and revenge. Why, the case reeks with motive."

Mr. Coyne said he believed the evidence showed that Peacox really hired his wife home with him the night of the murder for the deliberate purpose of killing her, and intimated that the killing may have taken place in the darkened apartment without any quarrel having taken place.

"How he got the girl to go with him, God only knows," said Mr. Coyne. "But the reason he didn't take her to a lonely spot on the roadside to kill her, as my opponent says he would have done if he had planned the crime, was that she never would have gone with him."

Before he concluded, the District Attorney called Peacox a "calm, cool, calculating, composed, shrewd, clever young man, who never had any of his brainstorms in court and never showed any real emotion."

Dorothy Heinsleman was "a good girl," Mr. Coyne continued, but "good or bad, her husband had no right to kill her."

The trial of Peacox began a week ago last Monday. Nine trial days were required to hear the fifty or more witnesses.

CLEARY PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Staten Island Youth Is Arraigned in Death of Girl.

William H. Cleary, 18 years old, of 227 Hanover Avenue, Concord, S. I., pleaded not guilty yesterday in Richmond County Court before Judge J. Harry Tiernan on a charge of first-degree manslaughter. Attorneys for Cleary requested a ten-day extension in which to make legal motions and this was granted by Judge Tiernan, who said the question of bail would be considered when the motions were made. Cleary has been held without bail.

In the indictment, which charges Cleary with causing the death of Miss Dorothy Dyer, 22, a telephone operator of 104 Delafield Avenue, West Brighton, S. I., on Sept. 14, there are three counts. These are driving a car while intoxicated, driving a car without a license and simple assault.

Miss Collett Defeated by Miss Hicks—New York Leads in Lesley Cup Golf

MISS HICKS'S RALLY BEATS MISS COLLETT

Three Down at Turn, She Wins on 20th to Gain Canadian Golf Final.

WILL OPPOSE MISS QUIER

Reading (Pa.) Star Defeats Mrs. Hanley, 2 and 1, in the Semi-Finals at Hamilton.

MISS HICKS HAS 39, 33—72

Her Score Against U. S. Champion One of Lowest in Competitive Golfing History.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 27.—In one of the greatest matches ever played by two women golfers the 18-year-old Long Island girl, Miss Helen Hicks, staged a courageous uphill battle to vanquish Miss Glenna Collett, the national champion of the United States, by 1 up at the twentieth hole in the semi-final of the women's Canadian open championship here today.

By her victory over Miss Collett Miss Hicks won the right to compete for the title tomorrow. Her opponent will be Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., who triumphed today over Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit, 2 and 1.

Not only did Miss Hicks thrust aside the shadow of defeat after being 3 down over the first nine but she came back over the last half of the Hamilton golf course in 33 to equal men's par of 72, one of the lowest rounds in competitive history, and squared the match at the eighteenth green. Miss Collett was 36, 39—75.

The Gallery Stunned.

So swiftly and suddenly did the tide turn in Miss Hicks's favor that it stunned the gallery. With flawless putting, Miss Collett had piled up what seemed to be an overwhelming advantage. She had holed a 25-foot putt for a birdie 2, which made her one under 4s at the thirteenth and 3 up. It seemed then and there that Miss Hicks was about to meet the fate of Miss Collett's other opponents this week.

But at the 375-yard fourteenth Miss Hicks smashed a spade mashie shot that stopped exactly three feet from the pin. It brought a birdie 3 and won the hole, but it proved to be more important than that, for Miss Hicks, in the clubhouse later after receiving the congratulations of the hundreds of Canadians who traveled miles to see this match, said it was after that shot to the fourteenth green that she sensed she had a fighting chance to win.

And what a fight she made of this magnificent battle! Miss Collett went to the seventeenth dormie 2, but it was on this hole that Miss Collett had her first poor shot.

Falters With Her Woods.

Until then she had played the finest golf at her command, the kind that has stamped her as one of the two greatest women golfers in the world, but at that hole her wooden club play, generally her forte, deserted her just as it did in the 1927 United States championship at Cherry Valley. She topped her brassie shot into a bunker, used an extra stroke in recovering, and finished with a 7 to lose the hole, when a half in 5s would have ended the match.

Then at the eighteenth Miss Collett's tee shot left her a downhill lie. Forsaking an iron for a spoon, she tried to carry the traps and high bank guarding the green, some 200 yards away. She failed and Miss Hicks, grasping the opportunity, hit a gorgeous spoon shot to within twelve feet of the pin and captured the hole with a 4 to even the match, as Miss Collett, after pitching from the slope below the green, did not sink her long putt for a 4.

Although both missed their second shots at the nineteenth, Miss Hicks had a putt of seven feet for a 4, but it did not go down, so on they went to the twentieth.

Wins Match With a 4.

Once more Miss Collett found herself in trouble, after slicing her brassie second shot. But she compensated for this by pitching out of the bunker to within four feet of the pin. Miss Hicks was on the green with her second, and she putted to the edge of the cup, and when Miss Collett's bid for a 4 did not go down the match ended.

This is the second time Miss Hicks has defeated the national champion. In their first meeting at St. Augustine this Spring, Miss Hicks won by 2 and 1 in the semi-final of the Florida East Coast championship. Miss Hicks's round was the lowest made over the Hamilton course, but technically her 72 cannot be accepted as the record, since several short putts were conceded.

Miss Quier, who will play in the thirty-six-hole final tomorrow, held the lead against Mrs. Hanley practically during the entire match. The Detroit golfer, hitting a long ball off the tee, but playing her short game poorly, squared matters by getting down in one putt at the seventh. At the very next hole, however, she used three from the edge of the green and was one down again. From then on Miss Quier held the advantage.

Miss Collett putted so well that she had four one-putt greens over the outgoing nine. She started by marching Miss Hicks's 4 at the first by dropping an eight-footer. She holed another good sized one at the third for a half, and at the long fourth, her putt to the very partially-stymied Miss Hicks who lost the hole with a 6. Down went a ten-footer for a birdie 3 at the fifth and Miss Collett was 2 up. She sank her 3 at the short sixth, and a 4 at the seventh, both being halves.

At the eighth, Miss Hicks hooked an iron off line and Miss Collett, using a spoon from the tee, tapped in her par 3 for a victory. After a 6 at the ninth, Miss Collett was out in 36, matching men's par, and Miss Hicks was 39.

Miss Hicks won her first hole at the tenth, when Miss Collett pushed her tee shot in the bushes. The Long Island girl was a yard from the cup on her mashie second and scored a birdie 3. They halved the eleventh in birdie 4's, Miss Hicks missing the cup by inches on her putt for an eagle. After 4's at the twelfth, Miss Collett dropped her long putt for the birdie 3 at the thirteenth, to go 3 up, but it was the last hole she won.

WHITE WINS MEDAL IN GLEN COVE GOLF

Scores 75 to Lead Record Field of 82 in Nassau Club Tournament.

MACKENZIE IS 2D WITH 75

Hepburn and Kaesche, With 78 and 79, Among Only Four Players to Break 80.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Gardiner White, former metropolitan amateur champion and recent runner-up for the Canadian amateur title, won the medal with a score of 75 at the annual Nassau County Club invitation golf tournament today.

Only four of a record field of eighty-two managed to break 80, White beating by a stroke young Roland Mackenzie of Washington, fourth among the national amateur qualifiers at Pebble Beach. Mackenzie withdrew from the match play competition tomorrow and Sunday because of a previous engagement.

Max Kaesche of Ridgewood, New Jersey amateur star, was third with a card of 78, while George C. Hepburn of the home club, with a 79, completed the quartet that scored in the seventies.

Hepburn led the golfers for the greater part of the day. He was one of twelve who finished rounds in the morning, some of the competitors teeing off as late as 5 P. M. The result was that a dozen golfers played the last nine holes in partial darkness, while two were unable to finish eighteen holes.

In scoring as low as 75, White accomplished something of a feat, as his driving was weak. He hooked and sliced all over the course, but the rest of his game stood up so well that he was able to turn a bad round into a good one.

MET. GOLFERS LEAD IN LESLEY CUP PLAY

CANADA THIRD WITH 18½

Twelve Points for Massachusetts—Sweetser Team Favored to Win Trophy Today.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—With the first half of the annual Lesley Cup matches among New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Eastern Canada completed, the representatives of the metropolitan district are leading by a margin of nine and one-half points. The point distribution is as follows: New York 34½, Pennsylvania 25, Canada 18½, Massachusetts 12.

The New York team, headed by Jess W. Sweetser, took a slight lead over the Pennsylvania representatives when the foursomes were finished at the Toronto Golf Club this morning, the margin being only a point and a half. But with George Voigt, John G. Anderson, who is playing in his twenty-first Lesley Cup event; Pennington Miller-Jones and Mark Stuart all winning three points and Eddie Driggs, Sweetser, Tommy Taller and R. W. Woolworth assisting in their singles matches, the total was swelled to a point where nothing except a marked form reversal will prevent the trophy from going to the metropolitan district when the concluding eighteen-hole foursomes and singles take place tomorrow.

Voigt Beats Marston.

Voigt was the first to report this afternoon and his 73 enabled him to defeat the former national champion, Max Marston, leader of the Philadelphia forces, 2 and 1; W. O. Blaney, 5 and 4, and Fred Hoblitzel, 6 and 6. The North Hills star played beautiful golf throughout the round and was never down to any of his opponents.

His card against Marston:

Out—
Voigt	4	4	5	3	5	4	4	4	37
Marston	4	5	4	5	5	3	5	4	38
In—
Voigt	3	4	4	5	3	5	5	3
Marston	4	5	4	5	4	5	4	4

Sweetser went out in 36 against J. W. Platt, Nicol Thompson Jr. and Al Wade, and while he beat Thompson, 2 and 1, and Wade, 3 and 2, he lost to Platt, 1 up.

New York Leads Foursomes.

The completion of the foursome matches this morning found New York's representatives in the lead by a point and a half, their total being 11½ to 10 for the Pennsylvania team, which made a surprisingly good showing; 4½ for Eastern Canada, and 4 for Massachusetts.

Voigt and Sweetser, playing together as the No. 1 New York combination, got away to a slow start, but emerged with three points toward the New York total, defeating Max R. Marston and J. W. (Woodie) Platt, William O. Baney and Al P. Wade and F. C. Hoblitzel and J. Cameron, their rival teams, by 2 and 1. George and Jess had a card of 74, only one over par.

Although it played no part in the final result, the play at the eighteenth hole was the feature, for Voigt made a magnificent chip shot out of the trees below the green, and Sweetser holed the ten-foot putt that ensued for a par 4.

Eddie Driggs and young Tommy Taller, playing No. 3 for New York, won from their Canadian opponents, but lost, 3 and 2, to S. L. Jones and Phillip L. Corson of Pennsylvania, and only got a half with Eddie Lowery and E. Ward of Massachusetts, although they had a chance to win until Taller left his partner so short on an approach putt on the last green that Driggs failed to hole it. Eddie and Tommy had a poor start and were 2 down to Pennsylvania and Massachusetts at the end of three holes and 3 down to the Canadians.

Account for Two Points.

Ellis Knowles and John G. Anderson accounted for two points, beating Clark Hodder and R. M. Clough of Massachusetts and A. B. Darling and C. C. Fraser of Canada, 3 and 1, but losing a close match to H. Gross Jr. and W. H. McCullough Jr. of Pennsylvania, 1 up, after being 2 down and 3 to play.

With the match in that critical situation, the two New Yorkers failed to take advantage of an opening on the sixteenth when Knowles topped a second shot into a ditch, with the result that the hole was halved in 7s. After they had won the seventeenth to become dormie, Anderson had a long putt to square the match on the last hole, but just grazed the side of the cup on his brave attempt.

Stuart and Rookie Win.

Mark Stuart and William Rookie added two points to the team's total, but R. W. Woolworth and Leonard Martin did even better, winning all three ways by shooting a 72. Their card was the best turned in.

BALDWIN RETAINS ARMY GOLF CROWN

Successfully Defends Title by Defeating Bradley in Final 36 Holes, 2 and 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Repeating his performance of a year ago over the Chevy Chase Club course, Lieutenant E. A. Baldwin, representing the Third Corps Area, today successfully defended the Army golf championship when he defeated Major O. N. Bradley of the Fourth Corps Area, 2 and 1, in the final thirty-six-hole match played over the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club links.

At the end of the morning round Lieutenant Baldwin with a 77 was one up on Major Bradley. At the end of the first nine holes of the afternoon round, the ultimate victor had assumed a lead of 2 up, which he held until the thirty-fifth green, where he won his match with a par 3. Major Bradley barely missed a birdie 2 on the thirty-fifth, which would have carried the struggle to the final green.

GOLMAYO ADJOURNS WITH CAPABLANCA

Cuban and Spanish Champion Engage in Protracted Struggle in Barcelona Chess.

BARCELONA, Spain, Sept. 27.—While José R. Capablanca of Cuba, former world's chess champion, engaged in a protracted struggle with Manuel Golmayo of Madrid, Spanish champion, and played to adjournment, Dr. S. Tartakower of France defeated Angel Ribera of Barcelona in the third round of the international masters' tournament at the Palace of Applied Arts on the Exposition Grounds tonight and moved up into the lead, with a total of victories half a point better than that of the Cuban.

The stout resistance shown by Golmayo earned the admiration of his countrymen. His game was still difficult when play ceased and Capablanca was doing his best to outwit him. Dr. Tartakower, with the white pieces, succeeded in outmaneuvering Ribera in the middle game.

José Vilardebo of Cataluna took third place in the competition with a well-earned victory over Marie Monticelli of Italy. The latter was on the defensive and found himself in a cramped position from an early stage and never recovered. Edgard Colle of Belgium bettered his position considerably by defeating José S. Font of Barcelona. The other winner was Dr. Ramon Rey of Madrid, who, with the black pieces, succeeded in establishing a superior position.

THE SUMMARIES.

First Board—Dr. Tartakower, France, defeated Ribera, Spain, after winning a pawn in a queen's gambit declined in 43 moves.

Second Board—Dr. Torres, Spain, lost to Dr. Rey, Spain, who took advantage of a sacrificing combination in an irregular opening lasting 41 moves.

Third Board—Vilardebo, Spain, defeated Monticelli, Italy, after winning a pawn in a queen's pawn opening after 35 moves.

Fourth Board—Yates, England, and Miss Menchik, Russia, adjourned as Alekhine's defense after 40 moves with the position favored Miss Menchik.

Fifth Board—Aguilera, Spain, adjourned with Marin, Spain, in a queen's gambit declined after 46 moves, the position being in favor of Aguilera.

Sixth Board—Capablanca, Cuba, adjourned with Golmayo, Spain, in a Ruy Lopez opening, after 58 moves, in a position favorable to Capablanca.

Seventh Board—Colle, Belgium, defeated Font, Spain, by means of a fine combination in a queen's pawn opening lasting 42 moves. Seiler, Spain, a bye.

MISS PARKER WINS JERSEY GOLF TITLE

Regains Women's Crown by Beating Mrs. Ryan After Being 3 Down at End of 1st Round.

WINS ON THE 37TH HOLE

New Yorker Strokes Ball Boldly to Make Downhill Putt and Triumphs, 1 Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 27.—After being 3 down at noon and losing the first hole of the afternoon round, Miss Martha Parker of New York regained the women's golf championship of New Jersey today.

Miss Parker, who won the title in 1927 at Plainfield and lost it last year at Baltusrol, defeated Mrs. Frederic B. Ryan of Baltusrol on the thirty-seventh green, after one of the most exciting contests ever played in the final of the Jersey championship.

Play was over the east course of the Essex County Country Club and the scoring was poor at times because of faulty putting. The players were all square at the turn, each being out in 50. Mrs Ryan came back in 43.

Miss Parker Near Defeat.

When Mrs. Ryan won the first hole in the afternoon, putting her 4 up, things looked dark for Miss Parker. Then Miss Parker won eight of the next ten holes and from 4 down went to 4 up. Mrs. Ryan rallied and won four holes in a row, making them all square with three to go.

Mrs. Ryan putted around a stymie to win the seventeenth hole and turned to the up-hill home hole 1 up. Mrs. Ryan's third shot was short and it took her three more to get down. Miss Parker squaring the match with a 5.

Neither hit a good tee shot on the thirty-seventh, and both were short of the green in two. Each played a splendid pitch and run third shot. Mrs. Ryan's was exactly hole high, not more than 5 feet from the pin.

Makes Downhill Putt.

Miss Parker followed with one that stopped about 7 feet behind the hole. The New York girl was left with a downhill putt, but she stroked the ball boldly and made it. Mrs. Ryan's shorter putt failed to hold the line on the side-hill and the ball grazed the lip of the hole.

Columbia, N.Y.U., Fordham Among Many Elevens Which Will Start Season Today

ARMY AND NAVY IN ACTION

Cadets to Oppose Boston U., Middies to Engage Denison—Syracuse Plays Tonight.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

After the stirrings here and there last week, among them West Virginia's victory over West Virginia Wesleyan and Stanford's swing into action, the football season of 1929 can be said really to open up to its full swing today. True, there are only something like 178 games listed in the football guide for decision this week-end when later Saturdays hold nearly 800, but most of the larger universities and colleges are bringing out their new teams.

Next week-end the football chase will become even more widespread, with practically every college that plays the game in action. Today's games, for the most part, mark the preliminary sparring that leads up to what promises to be the most amazing season in the history of the sport.

On the Pacific Coast, in the Middle West and South and here in the East, big teams come out from the weeks and days of preliminary training to the actuality of the start of their respective campaigns. Here in the East, Yale, Harvard and Princeton, still bound by the late training agreement of the erstwhile Big Three, will not open their seasons for another week. But most of the other colleges are due for action.

Service Hopes Are High.

Both Army and Navy will start off, the Army with Boston University, defeated safely enough in 1928, and Navy, trying hard to forget that stunning 2–0 setback in the opener against Davis-Elkins in 1928, will meet Denison. At both service institutions hopes are high for strong and possibly brilliant teams this season. The games for each mark the beginning of two of the hardest schedules played by any teams.

Columbia, with its new uniforms, new Western assistant coaches and with head coach Charley Crowley's hopes for speed and power, starts off against Middlebury at Baker Field. At Ohio Field, another strong and polished-appearing New York University team starts its campaign with Vermont. In neither of these games are the New York teams expected to be hard pressed, but there is the chance for seeing new material in action for the first time. Major Frank Cavanaugh's Fordham team swings into play a favorite over Westminster.

Pennsylvania, where they say the hidden ball has been embellished with the season's fashionable Warner tactics, opens up against Franklin and Marshall. Upstate, Syracuse and Colgate meet Hobart and St. Lawrence, respectively, and up at Hanover a Dartmouth team, its fingers crossed against a repetition of the injuries which cost so much last year, starts off with Norwich. Holy Cross and Georgetown both have their first games against St. John's of Brooklyn and Mount St. Mary's from the Maryland hills. Two other of the great Catholic colleges, Boston College and Catholic University, meet in Boston. The Syracuse-Hobart game will be played at night.

California Will Start.

Out on the Pacific Coast California, with an eye on this year's visit to Pennsylvania, starts off against Santa Clara, a team which furnished little trouble in 1928; Southern California plays the Southern branch of the University of California, and Stanford, against the Olympic A. C., has the first chance of 1929 elevens to repay 1928 debts. The former collegians, who make up the Olympic A. C., beat Warner's brilliant squad by one touchdown last year. They are not apt to repeat this season, for Stanford will be loaded for bear.

In the Middle West, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana and Michigan, the latter with a double-header, start things off. Of the "Little Three," Williams meets Trinity and Amherst prepares for next week's Princeton game with a game against the Connecticut Aggies.

These are only a few of the opening games of the day. For the most part, they are arranged more as finishing off processes for preliminary training than anything else. But each year some college or other is set back on its heels and today will probably have its upset or two. But the day, in the main, furnishes only an opening wedge. The next couple of weeks will see the season taking more definite shape.

MANHATTAN ELEVEN IS SET FOR A TEST

Coach Schwarzer Pronounces Men Ready for Game With Newport Naval Team.

Manhattan College's last workout yesterday, in preparation for the Newport naval game scheduled for today at Jasper Oval, was in the form of a very brief signal drill, after which Coach Schwarzer pronounced his charges ready for the game.

The Newport team arrived during the workout and also engaged in a short signal drill. Newport brought a squad of twenty-five players.

Manhattan.		Newport.
Kozak	L.E.	McCollum
Lepla	L.T.	Pecenalek
Crouth	L.G.	Lagedeu
Riggins	C.	Hoard

COLUMBIA OPPOSES MIDDLEBURY TODAY

First Game at Baker Field Will Be Watched With Unusual Interest.

LIONS HOPE FOR BIG YEAR

Vermont Eleven Shows Speed in Workout—Contest Will Start at 3 o'Clock.

The first game of the most difficult football schedule ever arranged for a Columbia team will start at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Baker Field when the Lions face the Middlebury College eleven. The début of Coach Charley Crowley's 1929 outfit is awaited with more than usual interest by Columbia supporters, for the Lion squad this season is believed to be the strongest since Crowley became head coach at Morningside Heights in 1925.

Six members of the 1928 Columbia team will be in the starting line-up, according to Crowley's announcement yesterday, so that it will be a fairly experienced team that faces the Green Mountain eleven. The veterans are Captain Bleecker and Tys, tackles; Campbell, centre; Liflander, Scott and Stanczyk, backs. Art Hill, a varsity reserve for the past two years, will start at right end, and the other four positions will be assigned to sophomores. Two of the sophomores, Weinstock and Nobeletti, will play at the guard positions.

Ralph Hewitt, star of last season's freshman team and regarded as one of the most promising players that Columbia has ever had, will be making his first appearance with the Lions. Hewitt has been performing sensationally in daily practice drills at Baker Field.

Columbia and Middlebury worked out at Baker Field yesterday afternoon. The Vermonters arrived in this city in the morning and drilled for more than an hour early in the afternoon. The only outstanding feature about Middlebury's workout was its speed, especially in the back field. Columbia's workout was light, Crowley sending three teams through a signal drill and then ordering a short workout on the dummy machine.

The probable line-up:

Columbia.		Middlebury.
Van Voorhees	L.E.	Valois
Bleecker	L.T.	Wright
Weinstock	L.G.	Hasseltine
Campbell	C.	Greene
Nobeletti	R.G.	Keenan

SYRACUSE ENDS WORK FOR HOBART CONTEST

Orange Eleven Holds Light Drill for Opening Game of the Season Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—With his men in fine condition generally, Lew Andreas, coach of the Syracuse football team, today ordered only a light signal drill to put them on edge for the opening of the gridiron season tomorrow night against Hobart.

In the signal drill Coach Andreas used Manning, Sebo, Loucks and Stevens in the back field, with Ellert and Lewis at ends, Novek and Newton at tackles, Obst and Vanness playing the guards, and Berner at centre.

Tom Thorp will be referee tomorrow night with Tommy Hughitt as umpire, Frank Gargan as linesman and Percy Miller as field judge.

Vincent (D-k) Welsh and his Hobart squad arrived here at 6 o'clock and used the stadium with its flood lights for signal drill, and some work in handling punts and forward passes.

COLGATE WILL MEET TRADITIONAL RIVAL

Opens Season Today Against St. Lawrence—Macaluso Will Not Be a Starter.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Colgate will meet St. Lawrence, its traditional opening game opponent, tomorrow.

Leonard Macaluso of Colgate will be out of the game with an infected foot, while St. Lawrence is not expected to use Howard Galvin, regular quarterback, who has a leg injury.

Colgate, with a full team of veterans, is a generally accepted favorite.

Colgate.		St. Lawrence.
Stromiello	L.E.	Torzine
Huntington	L.T.	Shoen
Doyle	L.G.	Slaughter
Cox	C.	Johnson
Tyson	R.G.	Wickens

Hall Foresees Year of Thrills Under Present Football Rules

With the advent of a new football season, Edward K. Hall, chairman of the rules committee, made the following statement yesterday through The Associated Press:

"Never before have I felt quite so confident, so satisfied with the rules. Every team now can try anything behind the line of scrimmage, take chances, pass, open things wide, without fearing loss of the game through one fumble.

"There is the great opportunity for every coach to exercise his ingenuity for the development of the smartest, most spectacular football the game has ever known and all within the rules. My fondest hope is that they will stay within the code."

CONCANNON TO BE TACKLE

Jones and La Mark Are Other Sophomores on Team—Hour's Signal Drill Is Held.

The New York University football team opens its season today, meeting the University of Vermont eleven at Ohio Field at 2:30 o'clock. It will be the first game ever played between the two universities and it is expected that 15,000 persons will witness the contest.

Coach Meehan sent his squad of thirty-nine candidates through an hour's signal drill yesterday on the campus gridiron, and following the workout announced that his starting line-up most likely would consist of O'Herin, Follet, Jones and La Mark in the back field; Nemecek and Marshall, ends; Captain Grant and Concannon, tackles; Myers and Sargisson, guards, and Schneider, centre. Of this group Jones, La Mark and Concannon are sophomores. The University of Vermont squad arrived late yesterday and spent the night at the Commodore Hotel.

The work of Concannon in the line and La Mark and Jone in the back field, each playing his first varsity game, will be closely watched by followers of the Violet. Concannon faces the task of filling in a tackle position, while La Mark and Jones take the places left vacant by Hill and Strong, who were graduated.

Little is known of the Vermont eleven, but Captain W. V. Rattan, coach of the Green Mountain team, has been working his charges hard. The N. Y. U. seventy-piece band will be present. Henry Bruckner, President of the Borough of the Bronx, will be the guest of honor along with Dr. William H. Nichols, acting chancellor of the university.

The probable line-up:

N. Y. U.		Vermont.
Marshall	L.E.	Segal
Concannon	L.T.	Mace
Myers	L.G.	Huey

FORDHAM'S ELEVEN IN FINAL PRACTICE

Runs Through Signals and Is Ready for Westminster Game Here Today.

PIECULEWICZ IS IN DOUBT

Zaleski or Conway Will Start at Fullback if Regular Is Kept on Bench.

A heavy, fast and experienced Fordham eleven is awaiting the whistle for the opening game of the season against Westminster at 2:30 today at Fordham Field. For a final workout in preparation for the encounter with the outfit from New Wilmington, Pa., Coach Cavanaugh sent his charges through a brief signal drill yesterday.

Because of a slight injury to his shoulder, Charlie Pieculewicz, regular fullback on the Maroon eleven, may be kept on the bench. If Pieculewicz stays out of the game, either Al Zaleski or Red Conway will take his place.

Coach Beede and his Westminster team, together with a small body of rooters, detrained in New York last night and will go through a light signal drill on Fordham Field this morning.

The Maroon line will average 200 pounds and the back field 180, while the visiting team's line will average only 180 and its back field 165.

Yonkers Team Turns Back Mount Kisco High School in First Football Game.

CONWAY STARS ON ATTACK

Tallies Two Touchdowns and Tackles Opposing Quarterback Behind Line for Safety.

Special to The New York Times.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Theodore Roosevelt High School of Yonkers opened its football season today at Parkway Oval by defeating the Mount Kisco High School eleven, 15-0. W. Conway, Roosevelt quarterback, led the offensive for the victors, being responsible for fourteen of the fifteen points scored.

Both teams went scoreless during the first quarter, but Conway broke the deadlock early in the second period when he negotiated a twenty-yard run around right end for the first touchdown of the game. Letore kicked the point after the touchdown. Conway enabled his team to mark up two more points in the next quarter on a safety when he tackled Bancroft, Mount Kisco quarterback, who had just recovered a bad pass from Skinner behind the Mount Kisco goal line.

Conway tallied the final touchdown in the last session when he plunged through the opposing line for five yards and a touchdown.

The Roosevelt eleven was deprived of another touchdown during the last minute of play. Rice, left end, intercepted a forward pass thrown by Schonfeld and had a clear field before him, but he was stopped short by the referee's whistle which ended the game.

RICHARDS, KOZELUH GAIN TENNIS FINAL

U. S. Champion Conquers Heston, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4, in Pro Title Play at Forest Hills.

KINSEY BOWS TO KOZELUH

Californian Beaten, 6-4, 8-4, 7-5—Richards-Kozeluh Stop Kinsey-Johnson for Doubles Crown.

By GROVER THEIS.

Karel Kozeluh, world's professional tennis champion from Czechoslovakia, will confront Vincent Richards, United States professional champion, in the singles final of the national professional championship tournament at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, today, as the result of his victory yesterday over Howard Kinsey of California, 6—4, 8—4, 7—5, in the semi-finals.

This will pit the former first-ten player of the United States Lawn Tennis Association against the same man whom he conquered last year, 8—6, 6—3, 0—6, 6—2, in the second professional championship final. A spectacular battle is expected. Richards and Kozeluh present two different styles of play and it is safe to say that Richards is about the only player who has given the world's champion the kind of competition that has made him seriously consider his laurels.

Richards just marched through his semi-final match with Paul L. Heston of Washington, though Heston is a master of the teaching game. Heston simply was not equal to the experience displayed by Richards, who would fall back on his volleying game whenever he needed points, and that was the end of the contest. The score was 6—1, 6—3, 6—4.

Kozeluh Plays Seriously.

Kozeluh was forced into extra games Thursday as well as yesterday, but he never gave the impression that there was any doubt about the outcome. Against Kinsey he realized that there was little time for the clowning at which he is an adept and which amuses the gallery. He was serious most of the time against the Californian, and he seemed to have charge of the proceedings throughout.

This is not to say that Kinsey did not provide good opposition, because he did, and he made Kozeluh conform more than any other player in this tourney has done to the safer and more orthodox shots. However, Kinsey could do little with Kozeluh's service until the third set, when Kozeluh was so securely in the lead that he could take chances. Kinsey handled it several times, but it availed him nothing in the ultimate count.

Trails in First Game.

Though there were moments when the gallery's enthusiasm was aroused by Kinsey's spirit of fight, there always was the latent sense that Kozeluh would pull through safely. He did, despite the fact that the point score in the final set gave Kozeluh an advantage of only 48 to 37. After trailing in the first game, Kozeluh took the next two, lost the fourth, took the fifth and so the battle went until it was 5-all, whereupon Kozeluh took the deciding games.

Kozeluh and Richards won the final for the doubles title in the fast falling shadows, beating Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia and Kinsey, 5—7, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1. While the first set was somewhat of a battle, the rest were finished off in short order.

The single final today will be played at 3 P. M.

LANG BEATS MINSTER IN NORTH SIDE PLAY

Triumphs in Title Tennis Semi-Final—Aydelotte Stops Cawse in Quarter-Finals.

Jerry Lang, former Columbia University captain and seeded No. 1 in the tournament, triumphed in his semi-final match in the nineteenth annual North Side championship tennis tournament at the University Heights Tennis Club yesterday, defeating Jerome Minster, 6—4, 6—1. The match was in the lower half. Minster forced Lang in the first set, but the latter dominated the last set throughout.

In the quarter-finals of the upper half of the draw, William Aydelotte of the New York Athletic Club was forced to go three sets before he conquered Alfred J. Cawse, seeded No. 6, and who was a finalist last year. Aydelotte won by 7—9, 6—3, 6—0. Aydelotte and Percy Kymaston, seeded No. 2, will meet today in the semi-final match of the upper half and the winner will face Lang in the final on Sunday.

The only other match played was one in the third round of the upper half in which Cawse defeated Elliott Binzen, former Fordham star, in a three-set match, 6—3, 8—7, 6—0.

MRS. STENZ SCORES AT BRONXVILLE NET

Defeats Miss Norma Taubele in Three Sets and Gains the Final.

MISS FRANCIS ALSO WINS

Reaches Last Round by Conquering Miss Edith Moore in Exhausting Match, 15-13, 8-6.

Special to The New York Times.

BRONXVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz, third in the women's Eastern ranking, eliminated Miss Nora Taubele, metropolitan girls' champion, who captured the Ardsley tennis championship recently, 6—4, 0—6, 7—5, in a semi-final-round match in the Bronxville invitation tournament at the Bronxville Field Club today. Miss Alice Francis, twelfth ranking player in the nation, also became a finalist when she won from Miss Edith Moore, 15—13, 8—6. Mrs. Stenz won the tourney last year.

Finalists were also decided in the doubles competition, with Mrs. Stenz pairing with Mrs. Lewis G. Morris to vanquish Misses Norma and Elsa Taubele, 6—2, 6—0, while Mrs. Afy Lamme and Mrs. Clifford Lockhorn defeated Misses Edith and Beatrice Moore, 7—5, 6—4.

The match which held most interest was the one in which Miss Francis and Miss Moore competed. The heat of the day, combined with the strenuous volleying, almost brought about the downfall of Miss Francis, who felt the strain of the grind more than her opponent. In the second set, while leading 5-2 in games, Miss Francis tottered in exhaustion, but rallied and went on to win the match.

Singles, Semi-final Round—Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz defeated Miss Norma Taubele, 6—4, 0—6, 7—5; Miss Alice Francis defeated Miss Edith Moore, 15—13, 8—6.
Doubles, Semi-final Round—Mrs. Lewis G. Morris and Mrs. Stenz defeated Misses Elsa and Norma Taubele, 6—2, 6—0; Mrs. Afy Lamme and Mrs. Clifford Lockhorn defeated Misses Beatrice and Edith Moore, 7—5, 6—4.

Yale Announces Plans for Distribution Of Tickets for the 1929 Football Season

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—Conditions for applications for the Yale football games this Fall, issued today by the football ticket committee, show that Yale's allotment for the Princeton game in the Bowl is 44,826, of which 31,249 seats are beyond the goal lines, and only 13,576 are between the goal lines. A total of 5,739 seats is under contract to bondholders or subscribers to the bowl, leaving only 7,837 seats between the goal lines on the Yale side of the field available for distribution by the football ticket committee.

In general, Yale alumni will be allowed three tickets for the Princeton game and four for the Army game, the headline matches in the Bowl, and two for the Harvard contest in Cambridge. Upper classmen will be allowed two tickets for the Harvard game, four for that with Princeton and six for the Army game.

The application system will be used in distributing the tickets for the games with Dartmouth and Brown here, but these universities have never filled the Bowl. No change in the price of admission will be made.

For the Harvard and Princeton games it will be $5, for the Dartmouth and Army games $4, for the game with Georgia in Athens, Ga., $3, for the Brown game $2, and the Maryland and Vermont games $1 each. The minor games are included under a season book at exceedingly cheap admission.

MISS CROSS WINS IN COAST TENNIS

Surprises by Victory Over Mrs. Covell—Reaches Pacific Southwest Semi-Finals.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27 (AP).—Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco today scored a surprise victory over Mrs. B. C. Covell, captain of the British Wightman Cup team, advancing to the semi-final round of the women's singles of the Pacific Southwest tennis championships. The score was 2—6, 8—6, 6—1.

Fritz Mercur and J. Gilbert Hall, national clay court doubles champions, advanced to the semi-finals of the men's doubles with a straight-set victory over Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, and Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena. The score was 14—12, 6—4, 6—2.

The first championship was decided late today when Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron of England and Berkeley Bell, Texas, defeated Miss Betty Nuthall, England, and Norman Farquharson, South Africa, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, of the mixed doubles final.

John Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal. was forced to the limit by Wilmer Allison of Texas in the semi-finals of the men's singles. By winning 1—6, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1, 6—4, Doeg earned the right to meet the winner of the John Van Ryn-Frank Shield's bracket tomorrow on Sunday.

Darkness halted the second men's doubles match after Doeg and Farquharson took the first set, 6—4, only to drop the second, 8—10, to Bob Sellers, California State champion, and Neil Brown of San Francisco. The match will be finished tomorrow.

Two teams of English Wightman Cup team players advanced to the semi-finals in the women's doubles. Mrs. Covell and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron defeated Mrs. May S. Bundy, Santa Monica, Cal., and Miss Louise McFarland, Los Angeles, 6—0, 6—2, and Mrs. Phoebe Watson and Miss Nuthall defeated Mrs. L. A. Harper and Miss Cross of San Francisco, 6—3, 6—4.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Cornell wound up its preparation for the Clarkson Tech football game tomorrow with a signal drill and punting and passing practice today. Warm weather curtailed the workout.

Coach Dobie expects to start Alexander and Borland, ends; Captain Wakeman and Wickhats, tackles; Hunt and Hackstaff, guards; Ibold, centre; Johnson, quarterback; Scott and Handelman, halfbacks; Davies, fullback.

SWARTHMORE WOMEN PLAY FIELD HOCKEY

Miss Rickards Captain of Team in Popular Sport—Archery Also Attracts Many.

One of the popular athletic activities engaged in by women collegians, field hockey, is under full swing at Swarthmore College, where a good-sized squad is engaged in training for this season's campaign. Miss Anna Rickards of Moore, Pa., has been chosen captain of the team, which is made up largely of girls from near-by towns in Pennsylvania. However, two New Jersey players have found places on the squad—Miss Martha Roberts of Moorestown and Miss Helen Booth of Plainfield.

Among the others on the team are Misses Betty Stirling, Caroline Jackson, Esther Eamon, Arabel Jaquette, Ruth Calwell, Mary Cookman, Elma Hullock, Jean Walton and Ruth Cleaver.

Another sport which is proving popular at the institution is archery. Miss Eloise Hettinger of Swarthmore has been elected captain of the exponents of the ancient pastime.

PRINCETON STAGES A LIGHT WORKOUT

Dummy Scrimmage and Signal Drill Held in Place of a Heavy Session.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Princeton's football team took things easy today with Coach Bill Roper's decision to dispense with scrimmaging. Dummy scrimmage and signal practice occupied the attention of the candidates, however, with various shifts in the line-up.

Bill Yeckley, centre during the first nine days of practice, and who was moved to a flank position yesterday, was placed at right halfback and Dick Mestres at centre. The unsettled condition of the team has left the Princeton followers in a quandary as to what the final line-up will be.

Captain Jack Wayte, Ed Wittmer, Bill Caldwell, Bill Scarlett and Dick Vogt were in action, their first practice since last Saturday when they left on a geology tour through Northern New Jersey. Scarlett's appearance is the first this Fall due to postponed examinations which he had to take previous to the opening of college.

Passing by Lowry to the ends and backfield featured the afternoon's session. According to all indications Coach Roper will concentrate on a strong aerial attack for this season.

Paul Carey and George Bogar swelled the injured list today, both being out on account of minor bruises. Trix Bennett, however, has been taken off the infirmary list and reported today.

FOUR BIG TEN TEAMS GO INTO ACTION TODAY

But None Will Play Against a Conference Rival—Two Tests for Michigan.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (AP).—Samples of what four Big Ten football teams will use in their bids for the 1929 championship will be presented tomorrow against seven non-conference opponents.

Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin will give practical tests to all they have learned during the last two weeks, in double-headers, while Iowa will make its appearance against a single opponent, Carroll College of Wisconsin.

The Wolverines, under Harry Kipke will send teams against Albion College and Mount Union of Alliance, Ohio. Kipke's strongest line-up will be composed largely of the men who finished the 1928 season under Tad Wieman.

Indiana, whose teams have improved steadily under the teaching of Pat Page, will tackle an old rival in the Little Giants from Wabash and a new one in Ohio University of Athens, Ohio, for its opening tests. Where Coach Kipke at Michigan plans to mix his men, letting potential regulars into both games, Page plans to put two teams onto the field at Bloomington. In last year's meeting Indiana trimmed Wabash, 14 to 0.

Glen Thistlethwaite, Wisconsin's coach also plans to have his men participate in only one game each. The Badgers will open with South Dakota State and will finish the day against Ripon College, Ripon, Wis. Thistlethwaite has divided his squad into two groups and today made up his tentative line-ups.

Out at Iowa the Hawkeyes also will meet a new opponent in Carroll College. The Hawkeye eleven finished high in last year's race, gaining its greatest heights in overpowering Minnesota. Loss of several stars as well as a number of capable but lesser known hands through graduation and ineligibility left Burt Ingwerson with a huge task, and the eyes of Western fans will be centred on his 1929 production.

The six remaining members of the conference will wait another week before engaging in formal warfare, as will Notre Dame.

HARVARD'S PASSES OVERWHELM SCRUBS

Varsity's Lateral Play Is a Decisive Factor in 78 to 20 Count in Scrimmage.

SEVERE TEST FOR SQUAD

Horween Shows He Again Counts on Aerial Game as Mainstay in Offensive Tactics.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 27.—That Arnold Horween is still depending on the lateral pass as a ground gainer was never more emphasized than during the squad's two-hour scrimmage today in which the varsity piled up a 78-20 count against the scrubs. Not only was the lateral pass employed as a ground gainer, but the forward passes also filled the air and led to several varsity scores. Long runs by Mayo, Putnam, Gilligan and Potter were also notable.

Horween put his defense through a severe test, which was well justified, as his forward wall stood up in fine shape, although Ben Ticknor, regular centre, was again out with an injured heel. On five occasions the scrubs were handed the ball on the varsity's five-yard line. With this advantage the scrubs counted only once when the varsity was penalized for being offside.

The scrimmage opened with one change in the line and in the back field for the varsity. Glidea was at centre, while Tom Gilligan was in the back field taking the place of sophomore Edmond Mays.

AMHERST IN BRIEF DRILL.

Hour's Session Completes Practice for Conn. Aggies Today.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Sept. 27.—The Amherst College eleven had its shortest workout today. The intense heat coupled with the opening game against Connecticut Aggies tomorrow caused Coach Wheeler to end practice after an hour.

Dummy scrimmage against the formations used by the Connecticut team last year, followed by a series of kickoffs, completed the session.

SNEAD PROVES STAR IN YALE SCRIMMAGE

Goes Over for 2 of Varsity's 3 Touchdowns in 21-0 Victory Over Scrubs.

AUSTEN SCORES THE OTHER

Miller Adds Extra Point on a Plunge After Each Count Registered by Varsity.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—Albie Booth was replaced by Charley Snead at left halfback today in a thirty-five-minute secret practice in which the Yale regulars made three touchdowns and defeated the scrubs, 21 to 0.

Snead was in rare form today, scoring the two touchdowns made during the first half, after which the back field, except Herb Miller, retired, and Ned Austen took the ball across for the third score. Miller was called upon after all three touchdowns to try a plunge for the odd point, and he went through the scrub defense for scores on each occasion.

Snead broke loose for a 30-yard run shortly after scrimmaging began and on the next play ran the remaining yards for the score. Within eight minutes he penetrated the scrub defense for the final 35 yards and registered the second touchdown. In the closing twenty minutes a second-string back field, consisting of Booth, quarter; Austen and Miller, halfbacks, and Beane, fullback, got into action.

BOSTON COLLEGE IS READY.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—The Boston College football team will open its season tomorrow at Fenway Park when it opposes Catholic University of Washington, D. C. The Eagles have been practicing since the day after Labor Day. The squad is in good physical condition.

Of the eleven that started the game against Holy Cross last year only four will take the field tomorrow. Six have been graduated.

Elston Rides Wood God, 10-to-1 Outsider, to Victory in Yaphank Handicap

WOOD GOD, 10 TO 1, WINS THE YAPHANK

Outsider From Bull Stable Gets Brilliant Ride From Elston at Aqueduct.

MELVILLE TO RAMONEUR

7-to-10 Favorite Brought In First by Garner After Close Contest With Chatford.

By BRYAN FIELD.

George H. Bull, secretary and treasurer of the Saratoga Association and a member of the Jockey Club, probably was the most pleased and satisfied spectator at Aqueduct yesterday. Bull had the faith in his horses of the sportsman who races a small stable with little hope of reward. And he had that faith yesterday in Wood God.

When everybody else regarded the son of Pandion as a hopeless outsider in the field of six that went to the post in the Yaphank Claiming Handicap, Wood God won by two lengths. The victory came after a fine race that was a credit to Jockey H. Elston, who had the mount.

Less than a month ago Wood God was a maiden and he had been knocking on the door so long without getting in that a good many observers began to fear he never would win.

But in four races since the beginning of the month Wood God has won three times, with yesterday's performance his most pretentious effort. He was the 10-to-1 outsider in the field, but beat Mrs. M. L. Austin's Sunny Saint two lengths, while W. R. Coe's Scots Grey was a nose further back to be third. Then in order finished Stupendous, Cadilla, the 3-to-1 favorite, and Juggler.

Elston Rides Cleverly.

Bull was a most interested spectator, and he saw as clever a bit of riding as any veteran has flashed in many a day. Elston is a youngster and in the early stages of the mile of the Yaphank he was last of the field, with Stupendous and Juggler up ahead killing each other off with a murderous pace. They ran head and head for five furlongs and Wood God was so far back that the older riders on the more heavily backed horses gave him little regard.

But Elston must have had some of the faith of Wood God's owner, for he bided his time and when the others swung wide at the stretch turn he shot Wood God along the rail and called for the spurt he must have known was left.

Elston saved lots of ground and Wood God showed plenty of speed. In a drive for the first furlong down the stretch Wood God ran past everything else in the race and then Elston took things easy and coasted over the line an easy winner in 1:39 3-5.

His horse carried 118 pounds, more than any other in the race except Juggler, which had up a pound more. Johnny Maiben, the rider of Sunny Saint, finished second three times in the course of the afternoon.

A Garner-Maiben Duel.

Jockey Mack Garner and Maiben, who have figured in several riding duels here in the past week, hooked up again in the Melville Handicap and another close finish resulted. Garner had the leg up on J. L. Holland's Ramoneur, 7-to-10 favorite, and he won with the horse, but only after Maiben had thrown a severe shock into the backers of the public choice.

Riding a canny race on Chatford, Maiben came on steadily through the stretch and finished only a neck behind the faint-hearted Ramoneur, which needed all of Garner's skill to get over the line a winner.

The race was a six and a half furlongs, and only four faced the starter. The running was cut out at once by the favorite, as Garner, in common with all racegoers, is aware that Ramoneur can go like the wind for a time, but stops rather suddenly.

Mordine, now owned by F. E. Brown, figured as a contender in the early stages, but soon dropped out of it, and it remained for Maiben and Chatford to run down the winner. They almost succeeded in doing it. Ramoneur had the top weight of 126 pounds to carry, which was five more than Chatford, and finished in 1:19. March Hare, the only other starter, showed a poor effort and finished a bad last.

Joe Marinelli, younger brother of the late Benny Marinelli, a jockey of note, was the winning rider on a 20-to-1 shot that came rolling home on the bit in the first race. This was Rod Rack, which broke fast, opened a wide lead and won by four lengths from Chatter Anne, joint favorite at 7 to 2. Scot Free, the other half of the joint favorite, was third.

FRIAR CLIFF WINS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Captures Perryville Purse From Lisa Which Makes a Stirring Dash in Stretch.

WORKMAN RIDES 3 WINNERS

Jockey Has Mounts on Red Briar, Skirl and Joy Rock in First Three Events.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 27 (AP).—Stirring contests were in order here this afternoon and the finishes in a mapority of the races found the winners hard ridden to win by small margins.

The Perryville purse, which was provided as an attraction, was won by Friar Cliff, which scored over the Harry Payne Whitney entry, Lisa. Interference cost the latter the race. Robinson, who had the mount, tried to go through next the rail just before entering the home stretch and was blocked. This enabled Friar Cliff to assume an easy lead.

At the finish Lisa closed with a rush on the outside of her field and she was gaining at every stride. In a furious drive Friar Cliff beat her a length.

Jockey R. Workman was very much in the limelight. He won the first three races with Red Briar, Skirl and Joy Rock.

Friday, usually an off day, found the program made up of races framed to suit ordinary class horses.

AMERICAN THOROUGHBRED WHICH SAILS TODAY FOR RACES IN ENGLAND. Mike Hall, With Leo Craigmile Up, and R. M. Eastman of Chicago, His Owner, as He Finished His Last Workout at Belmont Park Yesterday.

MIKE HALL WORKS HERE FOR LAST TIME

Horsemen at Belmont See Eastman Horse in Final U. S. Test for English Races.

WILL BE SHIPPED TODAY

Western Star, Sent Out Alone, Goes Mile in 1:39 3-5, and 1¾ Miles, Eased Up, in 3:02.

Mike Hall's work at Belmont Park yesterday morning provoked considerable discussion at Aqueduct in the course of the afternoon. The big Western horse, which is owned by R. M. Eastman, is to be shipped to England this morning and the move was his last heavy work for the Cesarewitch and other English races in which he will be started.

Before he got under way a large knot of trainers and others got ready with stop watches, and after Mike Hall was off winging he was timed at the mile mark in 1:39 3-5. Going at top speed he went to the mile and a half mark in 2:33 3-5. Eased up he galloped out a mile and three-quarters in 3:02.

While the move was not as fast as some would have liked to see, Mike Hall went alone in his run, and he is generally credited with being a horse which will move faster in company, when there is something to pull him on.

The complete work by eighths follows: 0:12 3-5, 0:24 3-5, 0:36 3-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:01 3-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:27, 1:39 3-5, 1:52 3-5, 2:06 3-5, 2:20, 2:33 3-5, 2:47 2-5 and 3:02.

FRANKHOUSE IS TAKEN OUT

Blanks Pittsburgh for 7 Innings, Then Gives Way to Johnson in 8th—Bottomley Spiked.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Cardinals won their second straight game from Pittsburgh today on runs that came in the first two innings, the score being 4 to 2. Frankhouse held the Pirates scoreless for seven innings, but was replaced by Johnson after Pittsburgh made a run in the eighth on Mosolf's triple, which scored P. Waner. Johnson allowed the Pirates one more run.

Jim Bottomley was spiked in the second and taken from the game, not badly hurt. The game marked the Cardinals' sixth straight victory. Orsatti led the Cards' attack with two doubles and a single.

GIANTS AND ROBINS IN TWIN BILL TODAY

McGrawmen Still Striving to Take 2d Place From Pirates in Final Stage of Campaign.

The Giants, bent on playing out their string in a vain attempt to capture second place, and the Robins, who even more desperately are striving to regain fifth place, will clash in a double-header at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. With the eyes of the baseball world becoming more and more focused upon Chicago and Philadelphia, this program is the best that can be offered for home consumption and should prove interesting, even though neither of the contestants will have anything whatever to do with the coming world's series.

The Giants have not yet abandoned hope of snatching the second place world's series prize money from the Pirates in the closing week of the campaign. True to tradition, the Giants are closing with a burst of speed. They have won thirteen of their last seventeen games, which includes all the games played on their last Western trip.

But the Robins are one of several reasons why the Giants are not at the moment fighting for first place instead of second. The Dodgers have trounced the Giants twelve times this year, whereas the McGrawmen have managed to win only seven from the Flatbush Flock. The season's series, therefore, is already lost to the Giants. Larry Benton will probably pitch one of the games today and Carl Hubbell the other.

The Yankees, after attending the funeral service for their late manager yesterday afternoon, entrained again for Washington. A double-header today and one game tomorrow will complete the traveling schedule of the ex-champions, leaving them five days of rest next week prior to their Saturday and Sunday games with the Athletics at the Stadium.

Charlie O'Leary accompanied the funeral party to Cincinnati, leaving Arthur Fletcher in charge of the team.

HORNSBY TO GET TROPHY.

Plaque Donated by Boys Who Pick Him as Most Valuable Cub.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (AP).—Rogers Hornsby will receive a "most valuable player" trophy. The award will be given to the Cub second baseman by members of the American Boys' Commonwealth, who put together their dimes and nickels to purchase a silver plaque.

Hornsby was voted the most valuable player, receiving 319 out of 894 votes. Hack Wilson was second with 152, with Riggs Stephenson, Charlie Root, Kiki Cuyler, Charlie Grimm, Zach Taylor, Woody English and Guy Bush all receiving support.

PHILLIES TURN BACK BRAVES BY 11 TO 5

KLEIN HITS 42D HOME RUN

Ties Ott for League Lead and Equals Record—O'Doul Connects for Three Safeties.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Phillies increased their lead for fifth place to one full game by defeating the Braves, 11 to 5, here today in the first contest of a three-game series.

Chuck Klein hit his forty-second home run of the season in the first inning, tying Melvin Ott for the league lead and matching the National League record set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922 and equaled by Ott this week. O'Doul strengthened his hold on the league batting lead by hitting three singles in three times at bat. Koupal was the winning pitcher.

HAMILTON AND ALFRED IN 6-6 FOOTBALL TIE

Staiman Evens Count for Latter in Third Period After Hamilton Scores in Second.

Special to The New York Times.

ALFRED, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Hamilton and Alfred football teams battled to a 6-6 tie on Merrill Field today in the season's opening contest. Neither team held a decided advantage at any time, although the home eleven registered ten first downs to six for the visitors.

The Hamilton score came in the second quarter after a short punt out of bounds by Alfred gave it the ball in Alfred territory. After holding the invaders for downs on the 5-yard line, Alfred took the ball and fumbled on the first play. Two plays netted a touchdown by Bush.

The Alfred score came in the third quarter after a drive from its own 35-yard line. From the 4-yard line Staiman plunged over in two tries.

Baseball Today, Polo Grounds, Double-header, Giants vs. Brooklyn, first game 1:45.—Advt.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

THE football season has rushed in so fast that the volunteer prophets have had no chance for open or secret practice. There really should be some allowance made for that handicap. There should have been at least two weeks of practice in running through light guessing drills or tossing the heavy prediction. A man can't step from the ringside or the baseball diamond and be "in the pink" for serious football predicting. This is by way of setting up an alibi in advance. Now then—signals! Formation A—one—two—six—nine—lettergo!

Amherst vs. Connecticut Aggies—This won't be anything like the famous Farm Relief that was promised to the farmers by the politicians. The agriculturalists will be plowed under. If that's wrong, the football manager who concocted the Amherst schedule made a serious mistake. One vote for Amherst.

Boston College vs. Catholic University—Joe McKenney's Eagles from Chestnut Hill should take this one without breathing hard. B. C. had a good team last year, and so far this season it hasn't lost a game. One vote for the Bostonians.

Bucknell vs. St. Thomas—This is just a plan for ushering in the season at Lewisburg, Pa., in happy fashion. Two or three votes for Bucknell.

C. C. N. Y. vs. Rider—The Brooklyn Branch of City College won from Rider last year, and the bigger team from the Heights should rush home in front today. One vote for C. C. N. Y.

Columbia vs. Middlebury—A middle-sized meal for the Columbia Lions. Charley Crowley has only a small squad, but he says it's good, and he wouldn't fool a trusting neighbor. One vote for Columbia.

Dartmouth vs. Norwich—Jack Cannell will make his début as the successor of Jess Hawley at Dartmouth, and the Big Green team won't spoil his afternoon. One vote for Dartmouth.

More Sparring Partners.

Fordham vs. Westminster—This begins to sound as if the day's schedule had been drawn up for the benefit of the football guessing society. Could a man go wrong here by picking Fordham? One vote for the Maroon.

Georgetown vs. Mount St. Mary—Lou Little's Hilltoppers won't be allowed meat or vegetables at the training table if they forget to win this game. One vote for Georgetown.

Holy Cross vs. St. John's of Brooklyn—The going probably will be a bit too brisk for Ray Lynch and his Brooklyn lads. The Purple should wave in triumph. One vote for Holy Cross and a short cheer for St. John's.

N. Y. U. vs. Vermont—The boys from Vermont were in retreat most of last season, and they hope to regain all that lost ground this year, but they've picked a bad spot for the hop-off. The best way to gain ground when that N. Y. U. team is on the field is to run behind the Violet players. It's the safest way, too, but it means the short end of the score, and that will be Vermont's share unless all signs are wrong. One vote for the Violet.

Pennsylvania vs. Franklin and Marshall—If Penn loses this game, all Dr. R. Tait McKenzie's sculptured figures will leap out of the studio overlooking Franklin Field and dive into the Schuylkill River. In the interests of art, one firm vote for Penn.

The Baseball Touch.

Penn State vs. Niagara—The Nittany Lions are coached by Hugo Bezdek, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Niagara is the school that gave Benny Bengough of the Yankees and Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, to baseball. While Niagara is far from being a set-up, Penn State should be leading when they count up the scores. The secretary will cast one ballot as ordered.

Pittsburgh vs. Waynesburg—A mere minor disturbance in the coal regions. The Panthers will get some exercise and plenty of points. One vote for Pittsburgh.

Syracuse vs. Hobart—The last time these teams met the score was too close for comfort as far as Syracuse was concerned. The Orange won by the margin of two touchdowns to one. Having come that close last season, Hobart will try to break through properly this season, but the odds run in favor of Syracuse. One vote is hereby cast in that direction.

Army vs. Boston University—Light drill, no fatigue and double rations for the Cadets. They should make the most of these pleasant afternoons because there won't be many of them. Beginning Oct. 19 and continuing for weeks thereafter the Army will tackle one famous opponent after another. These early skirmishes are just to get the boys accustomed to the atmosphere of the trenches.

Navy vs. Denison—Knowing nothing about Denison except that its geographical location is Granville, Ohio, and putting absolute trust in the Big Navy idea regardless of the outcome of the Shearer case, four votes for the Midshipmen.

Villanova vs. Lebanon Valley—This Lebanon Valley team knows its way around a gridiron, but Harry Stuhldreher of Four Horsemen fame had a fine football machine at Villanova last year, and there should be enough of it left, with added parts, to roll home in front. If this is wrong, sue Harry Stuhldreher. One vote for Villanova.

W. & J. vs. Ohio Northern—The men who will be right will be the Presidents. One vote for W. & J.

Williams vs. Trinity—It would be bad luck to wind up by making a mistake. One vote, and it must be good, for Williams.

22,000 SEE DETROIT WIN GAME AT NIGHT

De Paul Beaten in Opening Football Clash, 27-7, Before a Capacity Crowd.

FIRST HALF IS SCORELESS

Brazil Goes Over for Touchdown in the Third Period—Ross Tallies Twice.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—The football season opened here tonight on a gridiron illuminated by twenty-eight floodlights before a capacity crowd of 22,000, which saw the University of Detroit defeat De Paul of Chicago, 27 to 7.

In the first half Detroit got the ball within six inches of De Paul's goal line, but the visitors held. Only one fumble was made in the first three quarters.

Near the end of the third quarter Detroit scored the first touchdown when Vachon circled right end for 12 yards. Brazil repeated the play, carried the ball over for a touchdown and Vachon kicked goal.

A long pass, Brazil to Ross, netted Detroit 22 yards. Brazil got through for 7 more. Ross hit left tackle, forced his way into the open, and spurted 18 yards for the second touchdown. Parsaca drop-kicked the extra point. The quarter ended with the score: Detroit 14, De Paul 0.

With the ball on De Paul's 8-yard line in the middle of the final quarter, Ross made the third touchdown. Parsaca drop-kicked the extra point.

Brown accounted for the fourth Detroit touchdown, but the try for the extra point failed.

With the ball on Detroit's 32-yard line, a penalty and a fumble resulted in a loss of 30 yards. Harrington for De Paul made the necessary 2 yards for a touchdown and also added the extra point.

JOHNNY HILL DIES AS GENARO LANDS

British Flyweight Champion Succumbs Two Weeks Before World Title Bout.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Johnny Hill, British flyweight boxing champion, died this morning at Strathmigio, Scotland, a few hours before the arrival here of Frankie Genaro, American boxer, for the world's title match in Albert Hall on Oct. 12.

It was announced yesterday that Hill has been compelled to stop training owing to a severe cold. Death, which came as a surprise to boxing circles, was believed to have been caused by a burst blood vessel in the lung. Hill was the greatest flyweight Britain had produced since the days of Jimmy Wilde. He was a Scotsman, having been born in Leith twenty-three years ago, and was a stone mason by trade.

Discussing the situation created by Hill's death, Jeff Dickson, American promoter in Paris, said at Folkestone today, where he had gone to meet Genaro, that he would be willing to stage a match between Genaro and Ernie Jarvis.

Genaro Grieved at Death.

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Frankie Genaro landed in England this afternoon and received permission by the immigration officials to remain in Great Britain one month. Genaro was happy and smiling during the passport formalities. When told of the death of Johnny Hill and asked what he intended to do, Genaro replied:

"I cannot say yet. I am deeply grieved and had been looking forward to a fight with Hill for a long time."

Hill's death follows sharply on the heels of a controversy over Genaro's landing in England. Jeff Dickson, promoter of the contest, had told The Express earlier today that Genaro would not be allowed to land. Dickson said the Ministry of Labor had agreed with the British boxing board of control to bar all foreign boxers unless they possess a permit issued by the board. Genaro did not have such a permit.

The death of Hill disrupts plans for an international tournament scheduled to start Nov. 1 in Madison Square Garden, in which the winner of the American series was to meet Hill in the final for the vacant world title, according to The Associated Press.

Hill already had agreed to make his first trip to the United States for the tournament to decide the successor to Fidel La Barba, California youngster who gave up the title some time ago because of difficulty in making the class weight limit of 112 pounds.

Despite the death of Hill, Garden officials said the tournament would be held as scheduled. Because of his rank as British champion, Hill had agreed to box only in the final match for the world title.

SHARKEY TO CLAIM HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

Holds Victory Over Loughran Makes Him Successor to Tunney's Crown.

LOSER WANTS RETURN BOUT

Says a Lucky Punch Dropped Him—Rumors of His Death Find Him Practicing Golf.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Jack Sharkey, went home to Boston yesterday as the American heavyweight champion and his claim as the most logical successor to Gene Tunney's discarded world's title strengthened. The sturdy ex-sailor gained clear title to American heavyweight supremacy when he knocked out Tommy Loughran on Thursday night in the third round at the Yankee Stadium.

Manager Johnny Buckley departed for Boston shortly after his fighter, announcing that he intends to submit claims on behalf of Sharkey for the world's title. These claims will be lodged, Buckley said, with the State Athletic Commission here, the Massachusetts State Athletic Commission and with the National Boxing Association. Ring tradition, however, foredooms these claims.

Sharkey today finds himself in an unprecedented position as an uncrowned ring ruler. At no other time in pugilistic history has there been a parallel for the existing situation. Jim Jeffries once retired as champion and undertook to present his title to Marvin Hart, but the complications were overcome when Jeffries came out of retirement in 1910 and lost to Jack Johnson.

Now with Tunney retired, Sharkey is recognized generally as the man most worthy to assume the mantle. Yet there is little possibility of his being universally recognized. For the ring tradition is that titles are won and lost in the ring.

Loughran Wants Another Chance.

The victory of Sharkey precipitated some lively discussions as to his next ring engagement, and a disagreeable aftermath. Rumors spread apace that Loughran had died as a result of the punch which laid him low in the Stadium ring. But, as these reports were receiving circulation—even to the extent of being cabled abroad—Loughran was calmly practicing golf on the artificial greens of Dunn's Golf School in Madison Square Garden.

Loughran, surprisingly enough, withheld the complimentary gesture ordinarily presented by the conquered to his conqueror. He is unconvinced that Sharkey is his master.

"I don't think Sharkey is a great fighter, although it may seem odd not to give credit," said Loughran. "But Sharkey never could hit me again with a punch like the one that finished me. It was a chance blow and I feel sure I could prove it in another match. I simply went temporarily blind from the blow, which, I believe, hit me on the temple. It must have paralyzed an optic nerve. I may have been hit on the jaw, though. You never know."

Bout Drew a $320,355 Gate.

A crowd of 47,568 witnessed the struggle, according to the ticket count. The paid admissions were 43,879, and complimentaries totaled 3,719. The gross receipts amounted to $320,355.56, and the net $254,621.01. It was reliably reported that Sharkey collected $100,000 and Loughran $50,000.

The plan unfolded at the ringside by William Muldoon of the State Athletic Commission, by which Sharkey qualified for recognition as American heavyweight champion through his victory, received general support. Dissatisfaction was encountered, however, with the plan to catapult Phil Scott into the forefront of the heavyweight ranks on the strength of his victory over the novice, Victorio Campolo. Sharkey is under contract to fight for the Garden next Winter in Miami, and this will be his next ring engagement.

SAYS LIGHT MERGER SHOULD AID PUBLIC

President Sloan of New York Edison Declares Customers Must Share in Advantages.

REGULATION IS APPROVED

He Tells Indiana Electric Convention That Industry Can Stand for Stronger Commissions.

Special to The New York Times.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., Sept. 27.—If electric light and power companies benefit by mergers the public should also share in their advantages by getting more current at less cost, Matthew S. Sloan, president of the New York Edison Company, declared in an address at the public policy session of the Great Lakes Division of the National Electric Light Association here tonight. Mr. Sloan is president of the association.

"It is said that the 'power trust' is gobbling up the country," Mr. Sloan declared in speaking of the antagonism against groupings. "It is an oft-voiced fear that the public, our customers, will gain no good out of this situation, but will be victimized in the long run.

"We have, therefore, a duty to the industry and a duty to the public in this situation," he said. "These duties coincide, for only by fulfilling our duty to the public can we properly fulfill our duty to the industry.

"If our companies benefit by consolidations and groupings, our customers also should benefit. If there are savings, the customers should receive their share of them. If the advantages of consolidation yield better operating conditions, larger sales, larger profits, the customers should get their advantages also in more current for less cost to them.

"Plain Business Sense."

"This would not be altruism. It would be justice. Moreover, it would be plain business sense.

"It is now standard business practice in America to make your product as high grade as possible, to sell it at as low a price as possible and to take the profits from the large volume of sales resulting. The power and light industry is doing that now to a considerable degree and is prospering as a result.

"The justification of larger units and more concentrated control in our industry will be the measure in which they enable us to extend and accelerate this practice. We shall be judged by results. It is up to us to produce results which speak for themselves.

"We have, I believe, a further obligation in the present situation. People are, and I believe have the right to be, apprehensive lest the great combinations formed and forming grow beyond the control which it is deemed essential to have over public service organizations. It is often alleged that regulation of utilities has broken down or has failed to keep pace with changing conditions in the utility field.

"In New York State there is under way a legislative inquiry into the operation of regulation with a view to strengthening the law and its administration. The results of that investigation will undoubtedly have a far-reaching effect, producing similar undertakings in other States. I do not believe regulation has broken down or failed. What it has accomplished is frequently not understood by its critics, and still less by the general public.

Calls Regulation Valuable.

"Regulation has been valuable to the public. There has been a general lowering of rates by our industry over a period of years, and I think this may properly be attributed to the conditions set up by regulation.

"Nevertheless, regulation, valuable as it unquestionably has been both to the utilities and the public, will be valuable in future only as it accurately and comprehensively reflects conditions which exist. I am sure our industry recognizes this fact. I believe it ought to put this recognition of fact into effect by supporting all wise and well directed efforts to bring laws into conformity with present conditions.

"I believe our industry can properly stand for stronger regulative commissions, better staffed and better equipped financially to do the job committed to them. There can result from wise, able, expert regulation by State commissions made up of men who understand their subject nothing but benefit for the public and the utilities."

Thomas A. Edison, who is being honored in the golden jubilee celebration, spoke at noon through the Fox Movietone.

TAXI DRIVER SHOT IN FIGHT.

Critically Wounded in Free-for-All Clash in Bronx Baths.

Adolph Orback, 26 years old, a taxicab driver, of 115 East 122d Street, was shot and critically injured early yesterday morning during a free-for-all fight in the Bronx Baths, 3,875 Third Avenue. His brother, Julius, also a cab driver, and Hyman Sandloser, 1,350 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, were held without bail as material witnesses by County Judge Harry Stackell. Police were unable to learn the identity of the man who fired the shot.

According to the police Adolph and another man first engaged in an argument, and then in a fist fight. Julius ran to his brother's aid, other patrons joined in, and in the midst of the mêlée the shooting occurred. Patrolman McGannon found Adolph on the floor, shot through the abdomen, and clutching a pistol from which two shots had been fired. Another pistol, with one chamber empty, lay on the floor.

Julius said he had been knocked unconscious early in the fight and could not identify the man who shot his brother. Adolph, questioned at Lincoln Hospital, refused to say who shot him.

BEGIN RAZING OF WALDORF.

Housewreckers Attack Interior of Fifth Avenue Hotel.

The task of razing the most famous of New York hotels, doomed to the housewrecker's hammer, has been started. Starrett Brothers, builders, who recently obtained the contract to demolish the old Waldorf-Astoria at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street and construct in its place the eighty-story Empire State Building at a cost of $40,000,000, have started to dismantle the interior of the Waldorf.

One of the largest wrecking jobs ever undertaken here, the work of demolition is expected to take several months. The demolition is to be carried on entirely within the walls of the building. The Astor Court Building, just to the west of the Waldorf, is also to come down. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith heads the company which was organized to finance the new building.

OLDEST CITY SCHOOL HAS ALUMNI REUNION

Bernard Karsh, 85, of Class of '58 and Others Recall the Early Days at P. S. 32.

Pleasure before business was the will of the meeting of the Public School 32 alumni in the Christ Church House, at 344 West Thirty-sixth Street, last evening. The alumni association boasts of the prodigious number of prominent citizens the school has turned out in the eighty-five-year career which makes it the oldest in the city.

The meeting was scheduled for 8:30. At that hour the president, Benjamin Fox, thought of calling it to order. But the alumni were "remembering when——" That is, the older ones were, while the younger ones, who were graduated from the school a mere twenty-five years ago, merely regretted that "that was before my time."

And this phrase served every man of the dozen when straight-backed, quick-eyed Bernard Karsh of the class of '58 got to "remembering when." For Mr. Karsh, a retired jeweler, but still an active vice president of the Franklin Savings Bank, at 85 is the oldest alumni of the oldest school.

The conversation rushed quickly back through the old days—the hard old days, these gentlemen called them—when shade trees grew on Forty-second Street and when a chap whose father made $15 a week was the envy of most of his acquaintances.

"Do you remember," said Magistrate Maurice Gotlieb, "when they used to have four-horse sleighs instead of horse cars in the Winter?"

George Karsh, 75-year-old younger brother of Bernard, and who for many years ran both a brewery and a dry goods business, nodded quickly. And did Judge Gotlieb remember the old turnstiles the horse cars turned around on?

The judge wasn't sure. Bernard Karsh removed his cigar from his teeth. "I rode," he said, "on the first horse car that ran on Eighth Avenue."

The president, Benjamin Fox, took advantage of the momentary silence—it was 9 o'clock—to suggest tentatively that the meeting should come to order.

But Mr. Bernard Karsh was remembering "when they plowed up Eighth Avenue to pave it with cobblestones back in '48," and "when they quit letting girls into the school in '55," and "when they used to take the pictures of every graduating class, member by member, and post them in the corridors, like a rogues' gallery, until the alumni got so numerous that there was no more corridor space."

And at last, at 9:30, the president found a longer silence, and the meeting settled down to discuss ways and means of getting a few more of those alumni to join the association, which is now about four years old.

POLICE RECEIVE REWARDS.

Whalen Presents Checks for Recovery of Valuable Loot.

In the presence of two hundred detectives at the line-up in Police Headquarters yesterday morning Commissioner Whalen distributed checks from insurance companies to ten members of the department as rewards for the recovery of stolen securities, jewelry and merchandise.

Acting Captain Daniel J. Curtayne, Detective Daniel Mahoney and Detective Ignatius Cane received checks for $250 each from the Insurance Company of North America for the recovery of valuable silk stolen on July 30 from the O'Connell Trucking Company. The balance of the reward, $250, will go to the Pension Fund and the Police Relief Fund, which organizations get 25 per cent of all rewards.

Patrolman Edward Behan and Henry Harlem of the Hack License Bureau got $225 each and Detectives William H. Crowley and Henry Adamac $150 each. They arrested a taxicab driver and recovered $25,000 worth of jewelry which Mrs. Edgar B. Berhard had left in a taxicab on Aug. 7.

Checks for $75 each went to Detectives Edward C. Whalen, Frank G. Wilson and Frank Walsh for capturing Wilson B. Smith, former note teller of the People's Savings and Trust Company, Pittsburgh, who on Aug. 15 absconded with checks, stocks and bonds worth $100,000. This reward was from the American Surety Company of New York, through its vice president, F. W. Lafrentz.

WASHBURN WON'T TESTIFY.

Says He Will Refer Untermyer to Lawyers for Land Deal Facts.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 27.—Howard R. Washburn, chairman of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors, announced today that if he is called before Samuel Untermyer next Monday to testify on complaints that he attributes to leaders of the insurgent Republicans of New Castle, which he represents on the board, he will not reply to questions of the investigator but will refer him to Lee Parsons Davis, former District Attorney of Westchester County. The firm of Clark, Close & Davis of White Plains legally represents the town of New Castle.

Mr. Washburn added that he had been instructed by the town board of New Castle to reply to the investigator through the law firm.

It was recalled that William L. Ward, Republican county leader of Westchester County, refused to appear by counsel or in person when Mr. Untermyer requested his presence. Others connected with the land deal under investigation by Mr. Untermyer upon orders from Governor Roosevelt took the witness stand voluntarily. Mr. Untermyer has no power of subpoena.

Station WRNY is to be off the air until Monday at noon to permit removal of its studio from the Hotel Roosevelt to 27 West Fifty-seventh Street, Walter S. Lemmon, manager, announces. The new offices and studios are being completed on the second floor at the West Fifty-seventh Street address. They are to be formally dedicated about the middle of next month.

Mr. Lemmon says that several additional features are to be broadcast by WRNY, which is the Aviation Radio Station, Inc., the official radio outlet of the aviation industry in the Eastern part of the country. Also that WRNY has been accepted as official broadcaster for the Museum of Natural History in New York. Twice a month during the Winter, beginning Oct. 6 at 5 P. M., lectures are to be given by curators of the museum. On the same day at 6:30 P. M. a series of stories portraying biblical characters will be inaugurated.

Other improvements in the program of the station are to be announced later.

A short memorial service for Miller Huggins will be broadcast tomorrow night at 7 o'clock over WMCA. Waite Hoyt and Babe Ruth are to take part and relate anecdotes about the Yankees' late manager.

SUICIDE OF WOMAN CAUSES POET REGRET

Robert Nichols, Not James Stephens, Wrote Verse Said to Have Prompted Her Action.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Robert Nichols, not James Stephens, was the author of the poems broadcast by radio Tuesday night, which were said yesterday by Frank Davis of Bromley to have so depressed his wife that she committed suicide by gas. It was revealed today that the radio program had announced that Mr. Stephens's poems would be read, but that Mr. Nochols's poems had been read instead.

Mr. Nichols was much upset today by what had happened, but he did not think he could be held responsible.

"I had rather not written them," he said, "than to have had this happen, although my verse is not of the gloomy kind. The poem in question does not express dissatisfaction with life—rather the contrary."

A coroner brought in a verdict of suicide while in an unsound mind in the case of Mrs. Davis. It was stated at the inquest that she had been much depressed Tuesday because an adopted daughter had strayed away from home for some hours and that Mrs. Davis had lamented the fact that she had no children of her own.

Mr. Nichols was formerly professor of English literature in Tokio University, occupying the Lafcadio Hearn chair. He has written short stories and plays as well as verse.

WWAP ASKS FULL TIME.

Senator Black and Alabama Delegation Request Change.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Senator Hugo Black of Alabama headed a delegation from that State which asked the Radio Commission today to grant full time and a cleared channel to station WWAP, at Birmingham. The station operates on a frequency of 1,340 kilocycles and shares time with KVOO, at Tulsa, Okla.

The Intercity Radio Telegraph Company asked the commission to change the location of station WAN from Marquette to Ishpeming, Mich. The T. A. T. Flying Service, Inc., requested permission to construct a new aeronautical station at Atlanta, using 250 watts power and operating on 6,695 and 4,405 kilocycles.

The Tropical Radio Telegraph Company requested additional frequencies of 72 to 90 kilocycles for station WNU, at New Orleans.

The Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company applied for a license for station KOK, at Clearwater, Cal., for general public service.

SEEKS WAY TO MAKE RADIO WAVES CONSTANT

Committee of Hague Conference Investigating "Spreading"— Many Problems Studied.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 27.—The third section of the international technical radio conference, meeting here, is presided over by the chief of the American delegation, Major Charles M. Saltzman, while one of its two official committees is headed by an American, Dr. Jolliffe. This is the committee for collaboration, which is to put into more precise form the general rules laid down by the Washington conference on technical equipment of radio stations.

That committee also will study the possibilities opened by present radio technique, and among other things will seek to create some instrument for measuring wave lengths. The committee is trying to discover how wave lengths can be made absolutely constant, so as to prevent "spreading."

The section headed by the British delegate, Lieut. Col. Lee, deals with questions which were not considered at the radio conference in Prague last Spring because of technical difficulties. Experts here have taken the matter into their own hands and are trying to allocate the best radio channels for airplanes, police and other national services. This section also is laying down rules for long-distance radio-telephone connections between mobile and stationary stations.

Professor Breisig of Germany is president of the section which is outlining work for a later conference and at the same time is organizing technical research into the problem of fading. Still another section is working on a set of rules for international use governing licenses of amateur senders. In effect this work is the creation of an international radio vocabulary intended to give radio terminology a uniform meaning all over the world.

Official festivities arranged by the cities of The Hague and Amsterdam and visits to Dutch radio stations will provide welcome breaks in the serious work of the conference. The delegates were interested today in news that an amateur sender in the town of Breda, near the Belgian frontier, had been in communication for a half hour on a home-made set with Commander Byrd's camp in Little America, Antarctica.

RADIO FAIR IN LAST DAY; ATTENDANCE A RECORD

Total of 306,000 Visitors for Week Is Expected by Closing Time Tonight.

When the sixth annual Radio World's Fair closes tonight at Madison Square Garden, it is estimated by the management of the show that about 306,000 persons will have witnessed the exhibition. This figure is said to be a record for attendance at radio shows in previous years.

The television demonstration, as developed by Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson and the engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, has been of particular interest. Hundreds were in line yesterday in front of the television theatre to see the demonstration. This booth has drawn large crowds throughout the week. The Crystal Studio, where radio artists have been visible through the glass panel during broadcasting performances also proved a tremendous attraction at the show.

Announcement of the two winners of the radio relic contest, which was held to determine the oldest radio set on exhibition that still performed smoothly, was made yesterday. Sol Feinberg of 1,470 Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, received first prize for a crystal receiver, built about 1912. Second prize went to S. B. Dickenson of 734 Main Street, Greenport, New York.

RADIO BRINGS SON TO AID.

Arrives Before Home of Parents is to Be Sold by Sheriff.

Special to The New York Times.

GLASSBORO, N. J., Sept. 27.—Reached by radio broadcasts after letters had failed to find him, Harry J. Eisenhower, 42 years old, one of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Eisenhower, arrived today, a few hours before their homestead was scheduled to be sold at sheriff's sale. Harry, whose home is at Middleport, N. Y., was accompanied by his wife. He at once took steps to try to save the home for his parents, who were married sixty years ago.

He was informed that Charles Cook, plaintiff in mortgage foreclosure proceedings, had asked Sheriff John J. Stratton to postpone the sale of the Eisenhower property for one week. Mr. Cook's claim amounts to about $1,400. The fourteen-room homestead is estimated to be worth from $4,000 to $5,000.

The son, who is employed as a freight conductor by the New York Central Railroad, has eleven children. He said his circumstances would not permit him to pay off the mortgage, but he offered to provide a home for his parents with his large family.

Sir Clive Heathcote, wearing the regulation sleuth mustache and inclining somewhat toward the portly, got his man last evening in the last act of "Scotland Yard," put on at the Sam H. Harris Theatre. The man was an impostor with a daring criminal record; in the past he had had what amounted to a penchant for banks. But during the three days recorded by the action of the play love had touched him nearly, softening his desperado temperament and bringing out the lovelier aspects of his character.

While, as the result of plastic surgery, he was impersonating the head of the Bank of England, bonds valued at a million pounds were lifted from the vaults, and Charles Fox, a notorious bank thief, was murdered. But those of us who throughout the evening had been watching the transfiguration of our hero had confidence in his uprightness. Although appearances were against him, we felt sure that he would clear himself, possibly doing some gallantry in his lady's service at the same time. So it turned out to be. By his nobility and selfishness he managed to save the good name of one of the most ancient families in England. Like the elephant, Scotland Yard, never forgets, but it has cavalier moments. When Sir Clive Heathcote, clad in Burberry and bowler, heard the full truth, he dictated a false statement to the newspapers, tore up the fingerprint records, bruskly announced the departure hour of the Simplon Express and left our hero to virtue's only reward. The lady was somewhat upset, but still a lady, and her farewell to our hero was enthralling.

Several good actors were employed in the recounting of Denison Clift's drama. Phoebe Foster suffused the lady with charm. Paul Cavanagh, A. P. Kaye, Bramwell Fletcher and Edward Rigby portrayed the club atmosphere of life in the Bank of England, and Gerald McCarthy was a versatile thief who slipped in and out of disguises like the Baker Street paladin himself. But the performance was ponderous and the play was inclined to be formal.

Marcel Dupre, Composer, Here.

Marcel Dupré, organist and composer, arrived yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Dupré, in the Cunarder Aquitania to make a concert tour of the United States and Canada. He is professor of music at the Paris Conservatoire and at the American Conservatoire at Fontainebleau.

O'NEILL PLAY A SELL-OUT.

No Seats for Quincy Mayor's Jury at Monday's Opening.

QUINCY, Mass., Sept. 27 (AP).—The committee of twenty-five local citizens which was to have judged the fitness of Eugene O'Neill's play "Strange Interlude" at its opening performance here next Monday will be unable to do so. All tickets for the first showing of the play have been sold and it appears that Mayor Thomas J. McGrath himself will have to decide whether the play will continue its scheduled run in this city.

Subsequent to the banning of "Strange Interlude" in Boston the New York Theatre Guild decided to stage the play here. Mayor McGrath said that he would have a committee of citizens view the play to determine its fitness. The "sell-out" has frustrated his plan.

Hunter and McCauley Are Accused of Assaulting Pittsburgh Man.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Glenn Hunter, leading man, and Sanford McCauley, a member of the cast of "Re-born," at the Nixon Theatre this week, were arrested today charged with assaulting a taxicab driver.

A constable served the warrants during a rehearsal at the theatre. They were released on the promise of the theatre management that they would be in court for a hearing.

John O'Connors accuses the actors of felling him with a blow after a dispute with another taxi driver. A wound in his forehead required four stitches to close at Mercy Hospital, he says. The defendants are charged with aggravated assault and battery.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 27.—The Danish classical actress, Mrs. Betty Nansen, this morning astonished Copenhagen by announcing that she would give a free performance in her own theatre on Sunday of "The Minister from Jupiter," by the Icelandic playwright Kamban. Mrs. Nansen says she expects that in ten or fifteen years there will be several theatres in Copenhagen and that they ought to be free because the principle started in free schools and free libraries should be extended to the stage. The project has aroused much editorial comment in the newspapers. Tickets for the free performance were exhausted in fifteen minutes.

MARTIAL LAW NEARS TEXAS OIL TOWN

Only Resignation of Officials Will Avert Troops, Gov. Moody Says.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 27 (AP).—Governor Moody tonight prepared to send State troops to Borger, Hutchinson County oil town, where District Attorney John A. Holmes was recently assassinated, to dislodge what he called an "organized and entrenched criminal ring." The only thing likely to avert martial law was resignation of certain county officers.

"The peace officers are for some reason failing to suppress crime and bring criminals to justice," Governor Moody said. His opinion was deduced from reports submitted to him by his investigators.

The Executive said the assassination of District Attorney Holmes "was brought about by a conspiracy among the peace officers."

The Governor stated information convinced him that the "law-abiding citizenship had been intimidated and is living under a menace which prevented their giving information on law violators."

"We have affidavits showing that money has passed to peace officers for protection from enforcement of the law," he said.

Witnesses who had been asked about law violations had been threatened, and in some cases run out of the county, the Governor asserted, and one man who attempted to help officers in their investigation of the Holmes slaying was threatened by a policeman and told that "it would take only one bullet" to finish him.

General Jacob Wolters of the Texas National Guard and Clem Calhoun, Acting District Attorney in Borger, were in conference with the Governor.

MRS. WYCKOFF GETS DIVORCE IN NEVADA

Publisher of The Magazine of Wall Street Charges Cruelty and Desertion.

ACTION IS UNCONTESTED

Mrs. Wyckoff Was Once a Clerk for Her Husband, Who Owned the Publication.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 27 (AP).—A decree of divorce was granted here today to Mrs. Cecilia G. Wyckoff, publisher of a New York financial magazine, from Richard G. Wyckoff, on charges of cruelty and desertion. The divorce was not contested.

A legal representative of Mr. Wyckoff appeared in District Court merely to establish that property and separation suits previously filed by him in New York City had been settled.

Once a Clerk in His Office.

Richard D. Wyckoff, founder of The Magazine of Wall Street, and Mrs. Cecilia G. Wyckoff, the present owner, who was once a clerk in the magazine office at $15 a week, were married in 1913. They have two children, Gloria, aged 12, and Dorothy, 10.

The marital and financial differences of the couple have been the subject of much litigation. Last November Mr. Wyckoff, charging cruelty, filed a separation suit against his wife in the New York Supreme Court. He alleged that she had got the magazine property, valued at more than $2,000,000, from him by "cajoling" and "nagging" him, and on her promise to hold it for their joint interest, but that she had then declared herself sole owner of the property.

In his separation suit, Mr. Wyckoff further alleged that he had settled his claims against his wife in 1926 for $500,000 in bonds of the Ticker Publishing Company, which publishes the magazine, but that at the time of filing his separation suit interest of $14,000 was due and withheld from him on those bonds.

Through her attorney, Max D. Steuer, Mrs. Wyckoff replied to her husband's allegations, saying that Mr. Wyckoff was envious of her success and had contributed nothing to the family support in 1928.

The formal agreement under which Mr. Wyckoff took $500,000 for his interest in the magazine property now held by his wife, provided that his wife was to get $500,000 in bonds and that the issue was to be paid off at the rate of $50,000 a year. It provided also that Mrs. Wyckoff was to continue to manage the publishing business, receiving a salary of $25,000 a year, while her husband was to continue as editor at $1,500 a month, but was to resign upon request, at which time his salary was to stop.

The first public intimation that the name C. G. Wyckoff, appearing on the masthead of The Magazine of Wall Street was that of a woman was given on March 10, 1927, when it was announced that Cecelia G. Wyckoff had been sole owner since May, 1926.

Another suit was brought by Mr. Wyckoff to compel an insurance company to grant him a loan on a policy over his wife's opposition. The case was decided against him.

Following Mr. Wyckoff's withdrawal of his separation suit, Mrs. Wyckoff, through Mr. Steuer, announced last January that it "marks the end of all litigation" between the Wyckoffs, and that The Magazine of Wall Street had been in no way involved. In addition to the separation suit the litigation included an action by Mr. Wyckoff to compel the Ticker Publishing Company to pay $14,000 interest on bonds of the company held by Mr. Wyckoff.

MARLOW WITNESS OBJECTS.

Minnie Seiden Asks Discharge or Cut in Bail of $25,000.

Minnie Seiden, night club entertainer who was arrested in June as a material witness in the unsolved Frank Marlow murder case and released on July 19 when her bail was reduced from $50,000 to $25,000, applied to the Supreme Court yesterday to have the bail discharged or decreased to a nominal sum. She declared that neither the police nor the District Attorney's office has evinced the slightest interest in her since she regained her liberty.

"It is high time," reads her petition, "that the restraints imposed upon petitioner's liberty and freedom of action be done away with." Although Commissioner Whalen opposed reduction of her bail on the ground that if released she might be harmed by Marlow's slayer or slayers, Miss Seiden asserted, she has not been molested. She said she has been living quietly with her mother in Coney Island.

Among those in the cast will be Mildred Mitchell, Mc-Kay Morris, Gladys Hanson and Edith Taliaferro. The production is being tried out for Lee Shubert.

She will be associated with Colonel Jason S. Joy, director of studio relations for the organization Mr. Hays heads.

PREPARE FOR SOUND FILMS.

Italian Theatres Install American and British Apparatus.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Sound-film reproduction apparatus is being installed rapidly in Italy, according to a report from Trade Commissioner George R. Canty at Paris to the Department of Commerce. By Oct. 1 it is expected that the ten Pittaluga first-runs in Milan, Turin, Venice, Trieste, Genoa, Florence, Bologna, Rome, Naples and Palermo will be wired with American equipment.

In addition, four sets will have been installed also in independent houses in Rome and Milan.

British talking sets are to be wired in Palermo, Trieste, Rome, Milan, Bologna and Venice. Other American sets, it is reported, are to be installed in cinemas in Rome and Genoa, Florence and Milan.

Pittaluga is the only potential sound-film producer in Italy. He is reshaping a Rome studio for this purpose, and working on plans to turn out a couple of superfilms of universal appeal. He will use an American recorder.

R. K. O. GETS THEATRE.

Lease Signed for Dark Erlanger in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—The Erlanger Theatre, one of the eight legitimate show houses which have been closed here this season in consequence of the controversy between musicians and theatre managers, has been leased to the Radio-Keith-Orpheum interests, which will open it on Oct. 12 with an all-talking feature picture, it was disclosed today. The same corporation is reported to be negotiating for the lease of another theatre here.

It is said that picture-vaudeville programs may be given at the Erlanger later if arrangements can be effected with the theatrical interests now booking the Radio-Keith-Orpheum acts in Philadelphia.

MUSIC NOTES.

"La Gioconda" is announced for this evening at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, to be sung by a cast including Frances Peralta, in the title role; Pasquale Ferrara, tenor, as Enzo; Joseph Royer, baritone, as Barnaba; Nino Ruisi, bass, as Alvise, and May Barron and Bernice Shalker in other roles. Aldo Franchetti will conduct.

The Brooklyn Orchestral Society, a non-professional organization which for a dozen years has given subscription concerts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, will suspend its public activities this season, it is announced, unless a fund of $5,000 is raised to guarantee the expenses for the concerts. In any event rehearsals will continue throughout the season.

Edward Johnson, who begins his eighth season at the Metropolitan Opera this year, has returned to New York to prepare for his forthcoming concert tour.

Carolyn Beebe, pianist and founder of the New York Chamber Music Society, has returned to this city to arrange for the season of five concerts, beginning Nov. 17, to be given by the society at the Hotel Plaza.

Florence Austral, soprano, will arrive here on Oct. 1 to open her Fall concert tour.

Albert Stoessel will again give a course in conducting this year at New York University, it is announced. The two-year course includes the technique of the baton, the rudiments of score reading, program making and interpretation. A small orchestra of professional players enables students to gain practical experience.

Marcel Dupré, the French organist, will give two recitals next week at the Wanamaker Auditorium, the first on Monday at 2:30 P. M. and the second on Thursday at the same hour.

The free chamber-music concerts at Hunter College will be resumed on Wednesday evening, Oct. 2, at 8:30 o'clock under the direction of Dr. Henry T. Fleck. The thirty-eight concerts in the series are free to the public through a fund provided by Adolph Lewisohn.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Queer Happenings.

ILLUSION, with Charles Rogers, Nancy Carroll, June Collyer, Kay Francis, Regis Toomey, Rhoda Erickson, Eugenie Besserer, Maude Turner Gordon, William Austin, Emelie Melville, Frances Raymond, Katherine Wallace, John E. Nash, Eddie Kane and others, based on a story by Arthur Train, directed by Lothar Mendes; Abe Lyman and his "Californians" in "Believe It or Not." At the Paramount Theatre.

Charles Rogers, that popular young screen performer, is to be seen at the Paramount in an audible pictorial transcription of Arthur Train's story, "Illusion," a production sadly lacking in imaginative direction and in which the dialogue is more often than not open to derision.

Lothar Mendes, the director, does not reveal much skill in the filming of his scenes, and as for the lines, they are more distressing than diverting. There is little that is convincing in the episodes, whether they are concerned with the stage act of Carlee Thorpe, who doesn't do much of anything, or in the sight of four men taking aim at a girl with army rifles, loaded, as they suppose, with regulation ammunition.

Nancy Carroll gives quite a good performance, nevertheless one wonders in what theatre they could get four men to fire at a girl, even though one of the screen theatre's spectators explains, after the act, that the illusionist is supposed to replace the real cartridges with graphite missiles. And, also, it might seem somewhat dangerous for anybody to stand up against such missiles, considering the short distance the girl is from the rifles.

Carlee Thorpe, the conjurer, fascinates a would-be society girl named Hilda Schmittlap, whose family is hindered in its social aspirations through the fact that Jacob Schmittlapp, the father, began life as a truck driver.

Carlee, impersonated by Mr. Rogers, plays bridge with the winsome Hilda Schmittlap and becomes so charmed by her that he neglects the partner in his act. Then comes the hardly inspired idea of the Schmittlaps not knowing that Carlee is on the stage, or that he has a queer act. Claire Jernigan, Carlee's partner, decides to leave him, understanding that the young man is in love with the Schmittlap girl. It seems at first that Claire is much better off, but to lend a bitter touch to her life with another similar performer, this individual browbeats the girl.

The dénouement is worked out with all the finesse with which a village blacksmith might accomplish it. A real bullet is in one of the rifles being fired at Claire, and the warning from a woman is too late to stop the pulling of the trigger. But fear not for Claire, for she is only slightly hurt in the arm, and soon the benighted Carlee tells her in the hospital the old, old story and Hilda is cast aside.

Another angle to this clumsy piece of fiction is that of having Hilda's wayward brother quite interested in Claire. This idea, of course, helps to bring the silly Carlee to his senses.

Mr. Rogers is probably acceptable in the rôle, June Collyer and Nancy Carroll, however, do the best work. Regis Toomey, who portrays Hilda's libidinous brother, gives a performance which reveals that under more natural circumstances he might do highly creditable work.

This picture was adapted by E. Lloyd Sheldon, a Harvard graduate, who obviously stoops to conquer his audiences. Whether he succeeds or not depends upon the type of spectators who happen to witness this dull offering.

A Wise Manikin.

HARD TO GET, with Dorothy Mackaill, Jimmie Finlayson, Louise Fazenda, Jack Oakie, Edmund Burns, Clarissa Selwynne and Charles Delaney; based on a story by Edna Ferber, directed by William Beaudine. At the Mark Strand.

Although a good deal of merriment was aroused in the Mark Strand yesterday afternoon by passages in "Hard to Get," a Vitaphone production, this feature does not possess any marked originality either in plot or dialogue. It is said to have been suggested by one of Edna Ferber's stories, but one cannot say that the spirit of the author survives.

Dorothy Mackaill acts well and talks naturally. She impersonates Bobby Martin, who toils all day as a manikin in a fashionable dressmaker's, but, like quite a number of screen heroines, is somewhat ashamed of her humble abode. She is not averse to accepting rides proffered by young men driving their own automobiles, but she resents any impertinence. One of the chief reasons for the audience liking this effusion yesterday afternoon was the fact that a wealthy philanderer is put in his place by Bobby Martin, and in the end, instead of becoming mistress of a Fifth Avenue mansion, she contents herself by consenting to become the bride of Jerry Dillon.

During one episode, Miss Martin is riding in a costly car with Dexter Courtland, who has more money than manners. He asks the girl where she lives, and the dauntless Bobby, bearing in mind the address of a customer in the afternoon, tells her escort a house on Fifth Avenue. This makes matters quite interesting for Dexter, as the address happens to be his own.

Bobby has a nice old father and a genial mother, but her brother is an artist in flip phrases, so much so that one would rather close one's eyes and ears to those periods when he is on the screen. He has a harsh voice and bellows at his sister, making fun of her disappointments. Bobby Martin, however, is not the type of girl to go around with tears in her eyes, for she prefers to let this brother and other men know just what she thinks of them. She is at first deceived by Dexter Courtland, but when her eyes are opened to his behavior she is only too glad to leave the screen in the last fade-out in the arms of Mr. Dillon, a rough diamond to whom she does not have to make any preteuses concerning her family or her dwelling.

Pa Martin is somewhat disappointed in realizing that hopes of living in a palatial abode have vanished, but he appreciates that he has an honest, hard working son-in-law in Jerry.

And so the ending is a happy one, which quite evidently found sympathy with the early throng of spectators.

He said he had contracted with Michael Bohnen for three tone films and that he intended to make Berlin a second Hollywood. The new plant will be run on American lines under the supervision of experts from the United States.

RALPH W. LONG RESIGNS.

Dillingham's Manager to Enter Real Estate and Insurance Field.

Ralph W. Long, general manager for Charles Dillingham, has tendered his resignation, it was announced yesterday, to enter the real estate and insurance business.

Before his association with Mr. Dillingham, Mr. Long had been for many years general manager of the Shubert Theatrical Corporation. He was chairman of the insurance board of the producing managers' organization, and in that position was instrumental in bringing about a reduction in fire insurance rates on theatres here and in Philadelphia and Boston.

MR. MACDONALD'S VISIT.

On the eve of the British Prime Minister's departure for Washington it is strongly intimated, both in his own words and in authoritative comment from the outside, that his objective is much broader than an agreement on cruisers or even than world-wide reduction in naval armaments. "I go on a voyage of exploration," says Mr. MACDONALD in his farewell message to the British public in The Daily Herald, and he goes on to state that the object of his quest is the "united voice" of the United States and Great Britain in behalf of world peace and the sense of security among the nations. The correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES writes from London that Mr. MACDONALD wishes to discuss with Mr. HOOVER every problem outstanding between the two countries. He hopes to lay a foundation of amity so firm as to be unaffected even by a possible breakdown of naval disarmament at the projected five-Power conference.

It may be said at once that the Prime Minister's wider purposes will not militate against the specific problem of eliminating naval competition between Great Britain and the United States. Much has been said about yardsticks in the establishment of naval parities. Mr. MACDONALD has obviously decided to call into use the most effective of all yardsticks in the adjustment of international issues; and that is the yardstick of friendship. The technicalities of tonnage, armament, cruising range, speed, coaling stations, can be worked up into a hopelessly unsolvable problem if approached from both sides in a mood of suspicion and antagonism. The problem can be easily resolved if the wish exists to arrive at an agreement. The difference between 315,000 cruiser tons of one kind and 350,000 cruiser tons of another kind looms up mountain high when two nations are jealous and afraid. A 10 per cent difference in cruiser tonnage becomes an adjustable matter when two nations set out from the premise that these two tonnages will never be used against each other. Armaments have at all times been conditioned by policy. When Mr. MACDONALD sets out with the firm resolve to affirm a policy embodied in 115 years of unbroken peace between the two nations, he has gone far toward assuring the success of his armament negotiations.

In one sense, then, the "voyage of exploration" is a phrase somewhat overstrained. The British statesman who sets out in quest of American friendship is far from embarking on uncharted seas. He runs very little danger, indeed, of landing on hostile coasts. Friendship between the two great English-speaking nations has long been accepted in both countries as a fundamental circumstance in their own relations. It is now reinforced by awareness of how much Anglo-American friendship can do for peace and security in the world at large. Here again it is no terra incognita toward which Mr. MACDONALD is sailing. America's methods in the furtherance of world peace could in more than one instance have been improved upon. Where this country's heart stands in the promotion of world peace has been made abundantly manifest. Whether America's voice for peace will be "united" with Great Britain's in a literal sense time must show. That America's voice will not be out of harmony with other voices sincerely raised for peace may be taken for granted.

Mr. MACDONALD has sailed from Southampton with the good wishes of all the political parties. He will be received here with general goodwill toward the man and the statesman. The American people will not be impelled by his Socialist creed to forget that his ultimate economic ideas lie in the future, but that his services to his country and to the world are already on record. He will be remembered as the British Prime Minister who during his first term in office, five years ago, set in motion, with the Dawes plan, the process of European reconciliation and reconstruction of which the results have been so extraordinary.

WHEN CAN IT BE TOLD?

Whatever may be the public attitude toward Mr. ENRIGHT as a candidate for Mayor, it assumes that as Police Commissioner he must know a good deal about the dealings of the underworld. Therefore, when he announces that the murdered gambler ROTHSTEIN, whose unsolved and unpunished death has become a campaign issue, loaned money to city officials and Supreme Court judges, he gains the attention of the community. But if he expects any future statement of his to be taken seriously in New York City he must give names, places and amounts. This, according to the news accounts, Mr. ENRIGHT says he "might" do if the Governor fails to order an investigation of the New York Police Department since the retirement of Mayor HYLAN. The Governor, of course, is not going to order any such inquiry. Mr. ENRIGHT will accordingly be expected to inform the public in lieu of a Moreland commissioner.

It is too early in the campaign for loose statements and unsupported charges to have much effect on the voters. They will peacefully await the development of Mr. ENRIGHT'S testimony from the "I have been told" and "I believe" phase to the time when, if it comes, he utters his "I accuse." The charge by Mr. COUDERT, Republican nominee for District Attorney, that some of ARNOLD ROTHSTEIN'S personal papers were extracted from his seized files "while in the possession of Tammany," also calls for further revelation. During the last few years the New York public has heard much criticism of Tammany, and has been told that its leaders and appointees have been guilty of many evil practices. But the large majority of citizens which in many elections has shown itself willing to support Tammany nominees, regardless, will not be turned save by specification. There are nearly forty days before election.

The one effect of the hue and cry to date has been registered on District Attorney BANTON. Deserted by his own, pounded daily by Messrs. LA GUARDIA, ENRIGHT and COUDERT, he has at last moved to try the gambler whom the police assert to be the slayer of ROTHSTEIN. The middle of a violent city campaign is an unfortunate time for such an action, particularly when it might as well have been taken long ago. Proceeding now, the District Attorney keeps the case in politics, where it has been from the beginning. In all the turmoil Mr. WALKER remarks that he is too busy with city affairs "to enter into a controversy with political candidates." The Mayor is as much a political candidate as any of his rivals, and he is just as heartily absorbed in the campaign. It is no more likely that Mr. WALKER can preserve this stained-glass attitude than that Mr. ENRIGHT can continue to be heeded if he fails to make his charges specific.

SITTING IN HIS OWN CASE.

Senator VANDENBERG of Michigan, one of the clearest heads of the Senate, has introduced a bill providing for the substitution of judges in "indirect contempts" of court personal in their nature. He proposes to amend the Judicial Code so that a defendant in any proceeding on alleged contempt "arising from an attack upon the character or conduct "of the judge," not made in open court, may file with the court a demand for the retirement of the sitting judge from the proceeding. The filing automatically produces that retirement and a new judge is designated. The demand must be filed before the hearing in the proceeding.

It is unnecessary to dwell upon the occasional abuses that have arisen in carrying out the doctrine of "constructive contempt," a dangerous extension of indirect contempt, or upon the fact that the freedom of the press has been the principal sufferer. To the layman it seems intolerable that a judge should sit in his own case, be at once complainant and judge and rule upon and punish for a personal grievance. As NEWTON D. BAKER has said, "The dignity of courts is "not preserved by severity upon "their critics but by the righteous"ness of their decisions." For personal attacks by newspapers the libel laws afford sufficient remedy. Senator VANDENBERG quotes this passage from a decision by Chief Justice TAFT:

> The case before us is one in which the issue between the judge and the parties had come to involve marked personal feelings that did not make for an impartial and calm judicial consideration and conclusion, as the statement of the proceedings abundantly shows. We think, therefore, that when this case again reaches the District Court to which it must be remanded, the judge who imposed the sentence herein should invite the senior circuit judge to assign another judge to sit in the second hearing of the charge against the petitioner.

This voluntary substitution would be made compulsory by Mr. VANDENBERG'S bill. Nobody's right is diminished by taking away the judge's privilege of vindicating his own virtue or satisfying, unconsciously, perhaps, his own vanity or anger. Perhaps it is too much to hope that Mr. VANDENBERG'S amendment will be adopted in this session of Congress. Of its ultimate passage there should be no doubt. Sporadic judicial interferences with the liberty of the press this year show the imperative need of ending the evil before it spreads further.

CANADA'S NEW RAILWAY ERA.

The railway fraternity of the United States will feel something of personal pride at the reappointment of Sir HENRY THORNTON to the presidency of the Canadian National, and at the strong approval with which the announcement was received in Canada. THORNTON'S birthplace was our Middle West and his training-school the Pennsylvania Railroad, where he rose from the ranks in practical engineering service. We have had before this, in Sir WILLIAM VAN HORNE, a native of the United States at the head of a Canadian railway, just as we have had, in Mr. JAMES J. HILL, a Canadian-born citizen at the head of an American railway. But Sir HENRY THORNTON'S accession to the management of the group of railways left crippled in the Canadian Government's hands when the war ended was not an accident.

THORNTON had previously been called from the Pennsylvania to apply American railway methods to the Great Eastern of England, and from that field to conduct the transportation service at the war front, and the Canadian Ministry had picked him to reconstruct what seemed to be the railway wreck which lay at their door. It was a task of immense difficulty, calling for the rebuilding and coordination of ill-equipped, overlapping and competing lines. Some of them were the result of mistaken experiments, their aggregate deficit in earnings, a year or two before THORNTON took control, was $67,000,000. The change brought about by half a dozen years of intensive and energetic reform of the whole system has been dramatic. No doubt it was helped, as was the recovery in our own transportation lines, by return of American prosperity after 1922, but the Canadian National had to be rebuilt from the bottom up.

More than that, the esprit de corps of the railway's personnel had to be transformed from an attitude ranging from profound discouragement to outright sabotage, and all recovery of earning power had to be won in the face of strong competition by a powerful parallel line, the Canadian Pacific. The task is not yet completed, for a prodigious accumulated indebtedness remained to be met or cleared away; but the transformation from an operating net deficit of $11,000,000 in 1922 to an operating net surplus of $53,000,000 in 1928 is the measure of financial achievement, and the complete reversal of morale in the operating staff has been even more impressively the mark of a powerful personality. Something of the kind had been visible in the entire domain of American railroading since the war. But the Canadian undertaking has stood in many respects by itself as a picture of the new era in the science of transportation.

"RUMORS OF WAR" IN CHINA.

One of the unfortunate results of the censorship with which the Chinese Nationalists have sought to shroud their activities has been to lend importance to rumors which might otherwise pass unremarked. This is all the more distressing in that the Chinese have persistently tried to maintain the obvious fiction that every one in the country is in complete accord with the Nationalist leaders. One of their official spokesmen even went so far as to assert that there is only one party in China and that in this party there are no shades of differing opinion.

A more rational view accepts as inevitable—and as probably immaterial—the existence of dissatisfaction both within and without the ranks of the Kuomintang party. The faction headed by Generalissimo CHIANG KAI-SHEK has had its enemies from the beginning. While it is true that he appears to have had a larger measure of cooperation than his predecessors, it is equally obvious that other leaders have been jealous of his success. He was fortunate in preventing his most capable assistant—and brother-in-law—Mr. T. V. SOONG, from carrying out his announced intention to retire from his post of Finance Minister. He has so far prevailed on the erstwhile "Christian General" FENG and his ex-enemy associate YEN to withhold active attacks on the Nationalists.

But there have been lesser revolts which, to CHIANG'S credit be it said, have been quickly quelled. The latest threat comes from the most powerful of his former associates, who has longest refused to cooperate with him—WANG CHUNG-WEI. This gentleman is one of the older and earlier "revolutionists"—imprisoned by the old Imperial Government in connection with a plot on the life of one of the princes. He was a devoted follower of the late Dr. SUN YAT-SEN, and like others has sought to expound that leader's principles to the world. He is a vigorous, courageous man, but without the prestige that CHIANG KAI-SHEK has acquired as a result of his long dominance of the rest of his party.

WANG CHUNG-WEI was originally a radical. But he was never a close associate of EUGENE CHEN and the other extremists who belonged to the Communist group. These are, for the time being at least, out of the picture. It has been CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S good fortune to hold to the middle ground. He has had the support of the moderates, and so has saved his party from disintegration.

CHIANG, however, is now faced with the same serious problem which impelled Mr. T. V. SOONG to threaten to resign—an empty treasury. This has been the cause of the downfall of most Chinese leaders. It has, incidentally, been the cause of much of China's civil warfare, which has usually consisted of "living off the country," and so has brought food to starving soldiers and money to extravagant officials. Experience has shown that when the till is empty, wars begin. This is the ominous feature in the present situation in China.

PROTECTING THE MILK DEALERS.

Pure milk is again an issue: milk sold by dealers without having to pay tribute that affects prices to consumers. No less than 74,545 forty-quart cans are distributed every day in the city of New York. If the trade in a considerable part of this great quantity is controlled by any so-called protective association, there is a temptation, unless it is conducted honestly, to mulct dealers by dues and assessments and to use coercion to swell the profits of the principals. "There is no necessity," wrote Health Commissioner WYNNE to the loose-milk dealers the other day, "for any dealer to join any "organization and to pay enormous "sums of money in so-called dues "and assessments."

Commissioner WYNNE proposed an organization to correct trade abuses and adjust difficulties in the business, provided it was "under the "leadership and direction of disin"terested and high-minded persons."

For some time the acts and motives of the New York Milk Chain Association have been under investigation by Assistant Attorney General WILLIAM B. GROATE Jr. and District Attorney BANTON. On Thursday the former official announced that he would apply to the Supreme Court to dissolve the association. The District Attorney states that he will present his evidence to the grand jury. There is the usual protest that the organization has worked for the interests of milk dealers and the public, and within the law. If it can prove as much, it is in no danger of court proceedings. A review of milk scandals in the past would show the need of such a real protective organization as Commissioner WYNNE asks for. The Health Department demands that pure milk be sold and that it be handled in accordance with the Sanitary Code. Free competition would fix the price. But there has been much sordid politics, corruption and profiteering in the milk business in the city of New York.

The name of HENRY MORGENTHAU Jr. has been put forward in connection with a new association to protect dealers and to do away with abuses. Commissioner WYNNE has asked him to be the head of it. When Governor ROOSEVELT had the Agricultural Advisory Commission under consideration, his choice for chairman was Mr. MORGENTHAU. His industry, energy and probity mark him as eminently fit to undertake the reform of the milk business in this city.

WAR VETERAN RELIEF.

"No other nation has gone quite "so far in the hospitalization of its "citizens as the United States," General HINES, Director of the Veterans' Bureau, has said. While that is undoubtedly true, there is no American Legion convention in any State that does not put on record the declaration that thousands of veterans are still in sore need of hospitalization. EDWARD L. WHITE, national vice commander, in addressing the State convention in New Jersey recently went so far as to say that "some "of the men, the flower of our coun"try's manhood when the call came, "are now almost outcasts." National Commander MCNUTT had made the same charge at the first annual convention of the Disabled Emergency Officers of the World War in this city. With the need of adequate hospitalization in mind, he said that "a jail is no place for a disabled ex-service man." This was not entirely figurative. Sick and disabled veterans have to seek relief wherever they can find it, and they avail themselves of substitutes for government hospitals opened to them. To rail at the Veterans' Bureau and its indefatigable Director is unreasonable when Congress disregards his appeal for an appropriation of $11,480,000 for 3,576 additional beds in hospitals.

It should be recognized that relief of veterans of the war is a colossal job. Congress in the years immediately after the war did not realize how great it would be. There was sometimes ill-considered legislation, as when the law was amended to allow treatment for all veterans, even those who could not trace their disability to war service. A result was a heavy increase in mental cases. In an article contributed to THE TIMES last Armistice Day, General HINES said:

> Our medical experts estimate that the peak of such cases will not be reached until 1947, when, with the veterans at an average age of 53, there will probably be between 40,000 and 50,000 suffering from mental disorders.

There is still a lack of government hospitals, and nowhere else can the veteran expect the best medical treatment. But more such hospitals are being provided every year. In that respect New Jersey has been badly off; East and West the same story is told. In some of the States there are not sufficient facilities for patients who are not veterans. At a Legion auxiliary session in New Jersey the other day there was not only a demand for more rehabilitation work, but for increased army, navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard pay. President HOOVER has urged justice to the veterans, but has set his face against extravagance in their care. One of his proposals should cut a good deal of red tape, if adopted and reduce complaints that the Veterans' Bureau is neglecting ex-service men. He would have the bureau and its auxiliaries reorganized for greater efficiency in the dispatch of applications and in methods of relief.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Wonder of Electricity.

The "radio beacon" which in an electrical relation comes into descriptions of the "blind flight" of Lieutenant DOOLITTLE of the army at Mitchel Field, suggests to the nontechnical mind the powerful tower light set up to attract the notice of aviators in thick weather at points where they need guidance. But the aviator flying blind is dependent upon his illuminated instrument board. What has been called the "radio beacon" is the transmission of electricity from a ground station—a wave, in fact, that sets in motion, through a short-wave receiver, two vibrating reeds.

As these reeds move this way or that they tell the pilot whether he is flying his true course or in any degree deviating from it. If the reeds stop altogether, he is near the transmission station.

Instruments as Guides in Flight.

The aviator's altitude is indicated by an altimeter, so sensitive that he knows when he is only a few feet from the ground. He has also the help of a directional gyroscope and a standard air-speed indicator. A switch is turned on to show all these instruments at work.

Earlier in the year WESLEY L. SMITH, a division superintendent of the National Air Transport Company, used the "radio beacon" signals in landing at the Cleveland airport in a fog that "hung as low as 100 feet from the ground." As a result of his experience he suggested that, to give pilots full information, radio stations have their sets calibrated so that broadcasting and radio signaling could be done on the same wave length in emergencies. Thus they would hear the voice of an operator as well as see the beam signal on the dial.

A Big Business Man.

With fitting seriousness press and public have noted the succession of a prominent citizen to the top executive position in an important national industry. The industry is boxing; the new boss is JOSEF CUCOFSHAY, of Lithuanian extraction, known under his professional name of JACK SHARKEY. Thus America proves once again that its highest positions are open to emigrants of any land. Mr. SHARKEY won his place not by office politics or laboring overtime at his desk. He simply hit THOMAS LOUGHRAN of Philadelphia so hard on the nose that Mr. LOUGHRAN, in his own words, did not know where he was or what he was doing for several minutes. Ten seconds in this condition is all that the prize-ring requires.

Mr. SHARKEY has not found the road to the top a primrose path. Part of his difficulty is due to temperament. How he fights depends entirely on how he is feeling that evening. He had Mr. DEMPSEY, a serious rival, on the verge of a knockout and then made the mistake of trying to "slug with him," as the technical phrase goes. He showed like a second-rater with Mr. HEENEY, who is a third-rater himself. With others, notably Mr. LOUGHRAN, Mr. SHARKEY was on his game. He is to meet Mr. SCHMELING of Germany or Mr. SCOTT of Great Britain for the world's championship. If he is feeling in good humor he is perfectly able to flatten them both on the canvas, even if all three were in the same ring. But the interesting thing about this new millionaire is that no one, himself included, ever knows how his unconscious self will be working.

The Hit-and-Run Pedestrian.

The unsportsmanlike and cowardly impulse to run from the prospect of traffic troubles began with drivers of automobiles. The contagion has spread rapidly, and we now hear of hit-and-run airplane pilots and even hit-and-run policemen. But from a country district in England comes the first account of the other side of the story, the hit-and-run pedestrian.

A stout-hearted Britisher, fond of hiking, found the greatest hazards of the road for him were reckless and inconsiderate motorcyclists. Not to be intimidated by their brash manners, he decided to hold up his end of the road argument. "For protection," he writes to a London newspaper, "I carry a stout staff and a knuckle-duster. The staff, slipped between the wheels, brings the pest to a full stop, and a biff with the knuckle-duster makes him wonder what has happened when he wakes in an hour or two. Some cycle-pests are still wondering."

If a similar system could be worked out for use against motor-pests, a proper respect for the rights of pedestrians might be instilled in the most reckless and inconsiderate drivers.

LIGHTERAGE COSTS HERE.

New Jersey's Proposal Analyzed by a Traffic Man.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to present a few thoughts in connection with the controversy between New York City and the New Jersey communities over the so-called lighterage, or terminal factor, which enters into the construction of freight rates to and from points in New York Harbor and near-by districts. Particular reference is made to the letter from W. J. L. Banham to Mayor Walker, which is outlined in today's TIMES.

Mr. Banham states that the New Jersey interests seek to have the railroad rates stop with the car wheels. This statement is correct as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough; the New Jersey interests are making their contention only with respect to the cars, or shipments, which are consigned to concerns not on the waterfront, and therefore not to be reached by lighters or carfloats, and they point to the fact that many of the New Jersey cities, Newark, for example, are not included within the free lighterage limits of the harbor.

Mr. Banham states that the Jersey interests propose extra charges beyond the railhead where bulk is broken and the goods are moved to New York by lighter or truck. I am a party of record in the two Interstate Commerce Commission proceedings in which these proposals are to be found, and my files show that the proposals were made by the railroads rather than by the New Jersey interests, and were endorsed by the Port Authority.

It is proposed to make rates from, say, Harrisburg, Pa., to Newark, N. J., by applying a mileage scale of rates to the distance from Harrisburg to Jersey City (the railhead), plus ten miles; the same formula would be used in making rates to rail deliveries in Manhattan and in Brooklyn, and from, say, Pittsfield, Mass., via the Boston & Albany and New York Central to Newark, the distance to Sixtieth Street, plus ten miles would be used. In theory, or to the superficial thinker, the formula does substantial justice to the New York Harbor district.

In practice, the formula may work industrial havoc in New Jersey, even if the free lighterage limits were to be extended so as to include Newark, Hackensack and New Brunswick, for the reason that the rail commerce of New York does not flow in anything like an equal volume of tonnage to or from the four points of the compass. Newark cannot draw raw materials from Pittsfield; such materials must come from the West or the Southwest. Neither can Newark sell in Pittsfield except in competition with concerns there and drawing raw materials from the West through the Albany gateways or in competition with other New England manufacturers, who not only have the proximity in the New England markets, but can and do reach the Middle Atlantic markets without paying an inflated mileage basis in both directions.

Downtown New York consumes a large paper tonnage; a wallpaper mill at Hackensack is also a consumer of paper. One of our upper Hudson Valley paper mills will be able to ship to lower Manhattan by using the distance to Sixtieth Street, plus ten miles, while the shipment to Hackensack must pay the distance scale to Jersey City, beyond, and ten miles back to Hackensack.

The fact of the matter is that the greatest volume of your local and port tonnage reaches you through New Jersey and down the east bank of the Hudson, via the New York Central direct, and this proposed formula for rate making, while it may be proper for such traffic as must break bulk before delivery by or via the harbor facilities, does not fit the inland New Jersey conditions.

Your people should proceed with great caution in order to keep your great metropolitan commerce from becoming a liability to your neighbors. It would seem to be a situation where New Jersey is trying to hold the industries which it now has, rather than to obtain new industries. Mr. Banham to the contrary notwithstanding.

Developing Blind Flying.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Blind flying demonstrated is one of the most encouraging exhibitions of the wonderful coordination of the thoughtful men who have the safety of aeronautics at heart, and it surely is a brilliant victory in overcoming one of the most serious dangers that aviators have to face.

Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Safety in Aeronautics, Harry Guggenheim and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh deserve the thanks of the world for their efforts in this matter, and I sincerely hope that it will be perfected in the near future so that this part of flying will be made safe.

DEWEY'S WORK IN POLAND.

Former Treasury Official Is Financial Adviser There.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Ever since the close of the World War the story of the efforts of European countries to regain economic security has been more or less familiar to Americans. One of the most notable economic advances made by any Continental nation has for the past two years been under the guidance of an American. Since 1927, Charles S. Dewey, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has been financial adviser to the Polish Government and has most successfully directed its stabilization and reconstruction program.

Although Mr. Dewey is well known in official and banking circles for his keen financial ability and his broad knowledge of economic problems, his work has been done so quietly and efficiently that a large part of the public may be unaware of the vast improvement that has been effected in Poland under his leadership. A close associate of President Hoover, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations under the Dawes Plan, Mr. Dewey has performed an invaluable service for Polish business and finance in a relatively short time.

The thirteenth of Woodrow Wilson's Fourteen Points, guaranteeing the independence of Poland, liberated that country from the rule of Russia, Germany and Austria and established it as an independent government. Poland is an old State, with long historical traditions and is the sixth largest nation in Europe in size. It has a population of 30,000,000, and, although 65 per cent agricultural, has rich deposits of coal, oil, iron, zinc, potash and salt.

During the first years after the war Poland suffered the severe depression common to many European nations. Then, in 1927, a stabilization loan of $72,000,000 was floated in the United States and five countries of Europe. This loan was based upon a stabilization program which provided for the appointment of an American financial expert as adviser to the government for a term of three years. Because of his wide experience and proved ability Mr. Dewey was chosen for the difficult task—a selection that time has fully justified.

This was the first time a European country ever voluntarily appointed an American adviser in its financial affairs. Mr. Dewey was charged with supervision of the government budget, issuance of government loans and directorship in the Bank of Poland, and the economic reins of the nation were virtually placed in his hands.

Mr. Dewey's assumption of office in 1927 and the beginning of the operation of the stabilization plan was a turning point for Poland. Credits became cheaper and more plentiful and the people began to have confidence in the currency as the new financial adviser's work began to have its effect. It is a significant commentary on the immediate success of Mr. Dewey's plan that in no other year since the war has Poland enjoyed the degree of prosperity that the country experienced in 1928. Fundamental stability was imparted by a balanced national budget, firm currency and the absence of disturbing political issues. There developed a new pitch of business and industrial activity, purchasing power of wages rose 14 per cent and in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1929, the treasury showed a surplus of $22,440,000.

Another new note, beyond the physical volume and expansion of operations, has been a greater readiness of industrialists to cooperate and to make serious efforts to improve their organizations and methods. In bringing about this promising state of affairs Mr. Dewey has been a constant source of information and guidance to Polish business men and factory owners. He has placed Poland on a firmer basis and day by day is building a more secure foundation for her economic life. Each of his quarterly reports has rendered an accounting of the previous three months with impressive thoroughness and clarity and the whole series of these reports chronicles a remarkable story of progress and of difficulties overcome.

The Polish people fully appreciate what their American financial adviser has been accomplishing. Mr. Dewey has been awarded the Grand Cross with Stars of the Order of Polonia Restituta and everywhere is held in greatest esteem. His brilliant work is serving not only Poland but also the cause of international friendship and cooperation and is constantly heightening the regard of the Polish people for the United States.

THE WISHING BUDDHA.

Calmly indifferent the Buddha sat,
A lazy smile and apathetic grins
Upon his face—the belly, round and fat,
Maintaining where the solid truth begins.

A thousand wishes wished for gold and wealth;
A thousand wishes wished for peace of mind,
And peace of body, soul, and nations—health!
He heard and laid them in the years behind.

For he had sat more than a thousand years—
Ten thousand years the thing he represents.
He knew not the impatience nor the fears
Of humans, stirring up the fragrant scents

Of sandalwood. He knew that time alone
Would see a wish, expressed, at last complete.
And so he sat, something more than gray stone
With bending, praying humans at his feet.

CONDEMNS LEAVING YALE AT WEEK-END

President Angell Says Authorities May Be Forced to Require Sunday Registration.

CALLS PRACTICE HARMFUL

Dr. MacCracken Disagrees and Defends Vassar Custom of Allowing Monthly Week-End Absence.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—President James Rowland Angell defended the residential house plan at Yale, discussed the construction of new freshman dormitories and the completion of the Sheffield Vanderbilt quadrangle, and condemned student week-ends away from New Haven in a statement given out today.

"Yale's social life has long been built on and around the class," Dr. Angell said. "Undergraduate and alumni loyalty have alike been focalized on it. The elective system dealt it a staggering blow, as it did in all American colleges toward the end of the last century.

"But growth in size has been quite as serious and perhaps more disastrous. This is particularly true in the college or academic department, which, in addition to its own candidates for the A. B. degree, acquired by the reorganization of 1919 the candidates for the Ph. D. degree formerly connected with the Sheffield Scientific School. Obviously one cannot have very strong sentimental attachment to the members of a group most of whom, perhaps, one does not know even by sight.

"Nor is this possibly the most unfortunate consequence of the situation. There is convincing reason to believe that, under our present conditions, many types of men secure slender and inadequate opportunity for the development of their personalities, and little or no opportunity to make the peculiar and often valuable contribution which they have to offer to our common academic life.

"Under the present conditions, there is extremely inadequate opportunity for friendly informal contact between students and members of the faculty. Much that is finest and most stimulating in intellectual relations comes in that way.

Will Group College Classes.

"We are going to try creating residential groups of about 200 men, ultimately representing each college class, and with the ablest and most attractive faculty members on the house staff that we can command.

"We believe that sentiment may quickly become attached to houses based on friendship for fellow-members, based also on the beauty and attractiveness of the buildings, on athletic and other rivalries with other houses, and as a hospitable haven to which to return as alumni. We see in the possible development of such houses a system which may take over and absorb into itself most of the values which inhered in the class spirit of an earlier generation.

"The problem of the fraternities will require careful thought and there may be curiosity as to how the members of the house will be selected.

"We trust that there will be no necessity for anything but voluntary selection, though we should wish to establish certain negative relations which would bring it to pass that no one type of man should monopolize a particular house.

"While the elective system and the great size of our classes are the most commonly alleged causes of the breakdown of class spirit, I am disposed to think that another element even more serious is that of the week-end exodus, which takes men away from New Haven for a couple of days or more, time after time throughout the year.

Hits Student Restlessness.

"The generation to which you young men belong is notoriously restless and does not feel that it is really enjoying itself unless it is going somewhere at high speed, the destination often a matter of relatively small consequence. It will be only two or three years before the airplane will be taking our week-enders to points at present impossibly remote. Palm Beach is quite likely to be a rival with New York for undergraduate patronage.

"One of the few chances which you really have to make intimate friendship with your classmates is during the relative leisure of the week-end, and the men who systematically withdraw from New Haven at that time are not only depriving themselves of this very genuine source of value in their college experience, but they are subjecting themselves to fatigue and excitement which bring them back jaded and unfit to do their college work on Monday.

"Our university authorities have given frequent and serious consideration to this problem and there has more than once been urged the wisdom of establishing the habit of required registration in New Haven once or twice on Sunday.

"The objections to this will suggest themselves readily. At the same time, I think that the undergraduates should realize that, if this practice is not curbed, the university may be driven to take some action in the matter. The natural and normal cure for it is the building up of a responsible student opinion which will create a binding tradition that the Yale man is at Yale for the interest and value of the Yale life and not merely for the purpose of using it as a commuting station between New York and Boston, to say nothing of Northampton and Poughkeepsie."

Dr. MacCracken Disagrees.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 27. (AP).—President Henry N. MacCracken of Vassar College, replying today to a statement made by President Angell of Yale University that week-end trips of students to New York and to women's colleges were "harmful, physically and mentally," said he could not conceive of such trips being as harmful as they had been depicted by Dr. Angell. He said:

"Students off on a holiday are not so apt to take proper care of themselves. If they are allowed motors they may stop at roadside stands and eat sandwiches in place of good, wholesome food and are apt to keep most irregular hours.

"Here, we allow the students to go away for one week-end a month. I consider that sufficient. I believe that Yale University or any other university, either for men or women, would do well to follow such a plan."

DR. WARD, LINGUIST, DIES HERE AT 104

Colorful Career of Physician, Scholar and Traveler Ends at Dauhters' Home.

BORN ON MOUNT OF OLIVES

Son of British Consul and Was Empress Eugenie's Secretary—Became Citizen at 96.

Dr. James R. Wadel Ward, noted scholar of languages, physician and at one time private secretary to Empress Eugenie of France, who became a citizen of the United States at the age of 96, died early yesterday at the home of his two daughters, Miss Rashida Ward and Mrs. Leila Sterling, 557 West 148th Street, in his 104th year.

Born on the Mount of Olives, in Palestine, on Aug. 26, 1826, Dr. Ward's world-wide career, especially his sojourn for thirty years in the Holy Land and other countries of the Near East, where he practiced medicine among the Arabs and other natives, reads like the adventure tale of some highly imaginative fiction writer.

In his early ramblings, after graduating from Oxford and studying medicine at King's College, London; the Sorbonne, Heidelberg, Vienna and Naples, he went into the jungles of Africa with Henry M. Stanley. Later, while in Mecca, he became a convert to Mohammedanism. He spoke thirteen languages fluently, and conquered altogether as a linguist twenty-one tongues and seven dialects, including the Hebraic, Aramaic and Chaldaic.

Among Oldest of Masons.

Dr. Ward was one of the oldest living Masons, being a member of a lodge in Jerusalem. His father, Weldon Charles Wadel Ward, was British Consul in Palestine when the son was born on the Mount of Olives. Upon the death of his father at the age of 106 Dr. Ward was appointed to succeed him as Consul and held that post throughout his stay in the Holy Land.

His family is noted for longevity. His grandfather on the paternal side is said to have lived in England to the ripe old age of 112, when he met death by accident, falling from a horse.

Upon coming to the United States fifty years ago Dr. Ward abandoned his medical work and lectured extensively on Oriental subjects, appearing on the platform in native costume. He possessed such an extensive knowledge of the dead languages that he was called into consultation frequently by educational institutions.

He first visited the United States in 1842. During later visits he met Abraham Lincoln three times, and also met Presidents Garfield and Cleveland. He often recalled a weekend he spent as a guest of General Robert E. Lee. In more recent years he enjoyed the acquaintance of John D. Rockefeller, Frank A. Munsey, and other noted figures.

Wrote Book on Palestine.

It was during his thirty years in the Near East that his most colorful adventures took place. Dr. Ward's recollections of those days are told in a book he wrote called "Palestine Through the Eyes of a Native," and signed "Wad-El." It was about 1862, when he was in Mecca for eighteen months, that he became a Mohammedan. Five years later he was acting as secretary and interpreter for the Empress Eugenie in France.

Dr. Ward received his final naturalization papers on Sept. 12, 1922, and when he appeared in court to forswear allegiance to the British Empire he told the news writers that he attributed his longevity to the fact that he always minded his own business and never worried about anything. He boasted that he was among the first to "roll his own," and admitted that he smoked sixty cigarettes a day, and drank never fewer than six to eight cups of coffee a day.

At that time, he described the United States as the only country in the world where "genuine liberty of thought and education obtained," adding that he entertained this view despite the Eighteenth Amendment. He was a Republican in politics.

Dr. Ward is survived by five of his eight children, Weldon Ward, a New York artist; Roger Ward of Philadelphia, Miss Rashida Ward, Mrs. Leila Sterling and Mrs. Malcha Lincoln, all of New York.

Private funeral services will be held on Monday morning at the undertaking establishment of Frank C. David, 318 East Fifty-fourth Street. Interment will be at Elizabeth, N. J., in Evergreen Cemetery, where Dr. Ward's wife is buried.

ATTACHE'S IMMUNITY UP.

Status of Aide to Argentina's Embassy Attacked in Wife's Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 27.—A certificate from Secretary of State Stimson that Juan Mitchell is commercial attaché of the Argentine Embassy in Washington was filed with Supreme Court Justice Young here today in support of Mr. Mitchell's contention that being immune from civil action in the courts of this country, the motion of his wife, Mrs. Mae Mitchell of Bronxville for temporary alimony and counsel fees in her separation action should be denied.

The court reserved decision, remarking that the case raises a question of international law.

Counsel for plaintiff contended that civil immunity applies only in cases of Ambassadors and Plenipotentiaries. Mr. Mitchell was born in this country, is connected with a New York brokerage firm. Mrs. Mitchell charges he forced her to leave their Bronxville home when he knew she was to become a mother. She has been living with her father, James J. Martin, of Mount Vernon.

LOUISVILLE BEDECKED FOR LEGION CONVENTION

Mayor Will Welcome Commander McNutt Today—One New York Delegation There.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 27 (AP).—Bedecked in holiday dress and with flags flying from almost every building, Louisville tonight was prepared to welcome the vanguard of American Legion visitors here for the national convention, which begins Monday.

There will be an official welcome tomorrow morning for Commander Paul V. McNutt of Indianapolis. Mayor William Harrison will extend the city's official welcome at the City Hall. Past National Commander Howard P. Savage will arrive Sunday.

Four hundred Louisville patrolmen and members of the detective bureau will be assisted by some 550 members of the National Guard in handling the crowds. The downtown district will be turned over to the legion-aires, traffic and parking in that sector being forbidden. Governor Sampson of Kentucky and Mayor Harrison issued proclamations urging all business houses to close Tuesday, the day of the parade, in which 50,000 marchers are expected to take part.

One of the earliest arrivals was the first delegation from New York, which registered today. Massachusetts, Florida and California delegations started impromptu parades during the day.

Enactment of the cruiser bill by Congress last February is listed as one of the outstanding legislative victories of the American Legion during the year, in the annual report of the organization's legislative committee.

The report lists the various legislative measures affecting World War veterans in general and disabled veterans in particular, which have become laws in the last year with Legion endorsement.

SAYS HE FOUND PEOPLE OF STONE AGE ON ISLES

Scientist, Back From Trip, Reports Aborigines North of Australia Cook Food on Hot Rocks.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27 (AP).—The existence of a people of Stone Age culture on a group of small islands in the Arafura Sea, north of Australia, was vouched for here today by W. Lloyd Warner, anthropologist, upon his return from an expedition.

Mr. Warner said he had lived among the aborigines on the Crocodile Islands off the northern coast of Australia. The Crocodile Islanders have no religion and have not reached the stage where they can use bows and arrows, he said.

"The inhabitants of the Crocodile Islands are the last Stone Age people in the world," Mr. Warner said. "They cook their food in holes among hot rocks. They have polygamy. Their only weapon is a stone-headed spear. The women do most of the work. There is no money, everything is by exchange."

Mr. Warner said the islanders were big and strong, had an elaborate social organization with marked rules of conduct, and that their children were obedient. They had no liquor, but used a primitive tobacco, he said. Warner is on his way to Harvard University.

Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, referred the request to an associate for consideration, but it was said it probably would not be granted. Dr. O'Shea pointed out that it was the policy of the board to name the schools after the Presidents, but added that if the city seeks a name in the future for an industrial school the board may then consider naming it after the labor leader.

EX-ACTRESS, 75, DIES OF GAS IN TINY FLAT

Lula Leslie, Who Danced in "Black Crook" Half Century Ago, Lived Alone Here.

CLIPPINGS FOUND IN TRUNKS

She Also Had Tattered Stage Dresses and Jewelry—Undertaker's Note Reassured Her on Burial.

Lula Leslie, who half a century ago danced in "The Black Crook" and "King Cole the Second," was found dead yesterday morning in a room of her small, sparsely furnished basement apartment at 139 West 101st Street. The gas was on—the police believe through accident rather than design—and she was fully dressed.

About 75 years old, she lived alone. She had been in the tiny apartment since early last July, when she moved from Staten Island. Her only possessions were a rickety table, an ancient, creaking rocking-chair and four solid-appearing trunks of the type theatrical people use. In the trunks were newspaper clippings about her parts in "The Black Crook" and "King Cole" and a few tattered, gaudy dresses she had worn in them.

There were no notes of any kind, but lying on top of one trunk was a letter from a Staten Island undertaker. It was torn and crumpled from many unfoldings, and it advised the aged woman that she should not worry any longer about being properly buried. Apparently the thought of Potter's Field had preyed on her mind, so she made the arrangements for her funeral before moving to her new home.

She also had some jewelry which the police tentatively valued at about $5,000. There were nine rings, two watches and two chains, bracelets, earrings, cameos and a gold pen and holder. In a small purse was $722 in bills and $3.85 in change.

Joseph McCallum of 48 Clifford's Lane, Great Kills, S. I., who had written the letter, said that he had known the aged woman for some time. He knew that she once had been on the stage, he said, but for many years she had been living "with her family" on Staten Island. But "her family" had died—the last one in June—so she gave up her home and moved to Manhattan.

She was always afraid that she might die among strangers, with no one to care for her funeral. So last July she went to McCallum and paid for the burial. Many times after she moved to Manhattan she called to make sure he had not forgotten; finally he wrote the letter to reassure her. She will be buried in Claremont Cemetery, Philadelphia, beside "her family."

27TH DIVISION OPENS SARATOGA REUNION

"O'Ryan's Roughnecks" Gather to Commemorate Breaking of the Hindenburg Line.

1,000 ON HAND, MORE COMING

Convention Begins With Banquet—Veterans Plan to Meet Next Year in London.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—One thousand veterans of the Twenty-seventh Division, New York State's National Guard division in the World War, who eleven years ago were breaking their way yard by yard through the Hindenburg Line, relived their wartime adventures here tonight at the opening of their reunion.

The reunion was formally launched with a dinner tonight attended by about three hundred of the veterans, while outside on the streets and in crowded hotel lobbies hundreds more former members of the division gathered in knots to discuss old times.

The streets of the town were hung with American flags and the emblem of the division, and the veterans themselves brandished elaborately tasseled banners inscribed with the division's nickname, "O'Ryan's Roughnecks," won in the shell holes of Flanders.

The reunion officially began with the arrival from New York late today of Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who organized the division, commanded it on the Mexican border and in Belgium and France, and brought it home triumphant. General O'Ryan came by airplane and was met at the field by an escort of his former officers.

Recalls War's Denouement.

The General was the chief figure at the dinner tonight, and joined with other notables of the division in brief informal reminiscences of the historic crushing of the Hindenburg Line, whose anniversary the division is celebrating here.

Other prominent figures were Major Gen. William H. Haskell, John T. Bennett of Brooklyn, newly elected State commander of the American Legion; Major George E. Ramsey of Schenectady, president of the Twenty-seventh Division Association of the World War; Rev. Francis P. Kelley of Cairo, divisional chaplain; Colonel Walter G. Robinson, assistant adjutant general of the State; Colonel Thomas Fair Servis, commanding the One Hundred and Sixth Infantry of Brooklyn; Colonel Edward McLeer Jr., chief-of-staff of the division; Jess M. Cannaugh of Saratoga, chairman of the reunion committee, and Major C. Pemberton Lenart of Albany.

The registration of the veterans reached 1,000 tonight, and officials of the association expected that it would approach 3,000 tomorrow. Delegations from fifty-six posts scattered through the State already have arrived. The largest was a detail of 106 men from Post Twenty-three of the One Hundred and Sixth Infantry of Brooklyn, led by the commander, Edward F. Dunn.

Large Number from New York City.

Forty-eight men led by Major James H. McSweeney came from Brooklyn, representing the post of the 105th Field Artillery. Headquarters Post 27, of which General O'Ryan is commander, came from New York City.

The Seventy-first Regiment of Manhattan, with twenty-eight men, was commanded by Captain Harry Maslin. New York City Post 22, is represented by thirty-nine veterans of the 102d Engineers under the command of Frank O'Neill. Other large delegations have arrived from Cohoes, Troy, Auburn, Mount Vernon, Schenectady and Syracuse.

A definite decision has been reached to hold the 1930 reunion of the division in Europe, it was announced this afternoon by Major Ramsey. Detailed arrangements have been perfected by a committee headed by Brig. Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid, who in 1918 commanded the second battalion of the 106th Infantry in its assault on the Hindenburg Line.

Other Divisions to Go.

The plans were to have been announced to the division at the business session this afternoon. But the session was postponed to tomorrow morning. Veterans of other divisions, included the Rainbow and the Twenty-sixth, also will hold their reunions in Europe next year.

The veterans are to sail from New York on the Republic, which during the war was the transport President Grant. The sailing will be within three days of the twelfth anniversary of the sailing of the 150th Infantry on the same ship for its service overseas.

The formal reunion will be held in London, to be followed by visits to the battlefields on which the division fought in France and Belgium. Memorial Day ceremonies will be held in the cemetery at Bony, on the field over which the division advanced in its break through the Hindenburg Line.

About 250 Gold Star mothers of members of the division will make the trip, Major Ramsey announced.

The principal events of the reunion will occur tomorrow. Addresses will be delivered by T. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation; Lieut. Gov. Lehman, former Governor Charles S. Whitman, Major Gen. Haskell, commanding the New York National Guard; Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding the Second Corps Area; Captain George S. Godfrey, military attaché of the British Embassy, and General O'Ryan.

Secretary Davison will arrive by air from Washington and will direct a simulated air raid over the city. A parade of the division will be held, followed by an aerial circus at McGregor Field.

AGAINST NEWARK BAY PLAN.

Army Engineer Favors Further Tests Before Deepening Channel.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—An unfavorable report on further improvement of Newark Bay and the channels leading to it was made today by Colonel R. T. Ward, district engineer for the second district.

A survey was ordered in a House resolution passed at the last session of Congress and referred to the district engineer. The engineer's report said the existing project in Newark Bay and the approaches in the Arthur Kill should be tested to prove their adequacy before further deepening or widening of the channel was considered.

FAMOUS PORTRAITS REHUNG BY HOOVER

Paintings of Washington and Martha Are Put in East Room Where More Can See Them.

SAVED BY DOLLY MADISON

She Carried Them Away When the British Moved on Capital in the War of 1812.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—After very careful consideration the President and Mrs. Hoover have caused large oil portraits of George Washington and Martha, his wife, to be removed from the Red Room of the White House and rehung in the spacious East Room, where they were displayed for many years, until 1903, when President Roosevelt had them placed in the Red Room.

The chief reason for the action of the President and Mrs. Hoover is understood to be that few persons saw these portraits, one of which has a notable historic interest, while they hung in the Red Room, one of the semi-private state apartments of the White House. The East Room is open to visitors during specified hours several days each week.

The portrait of the first President was painted from life. It is full length and shows General Washington in formal civilian dress with sword. The portrait of Mrs. Washington, also full length, was painted in 1875 by the Eliphalet Andrews, a Washington artist, who was curator of the Corcoran Art Gallery. It was copied from an original.

This portrait of General Washington figured in an interesting episode on Aug. 24, 1814, when British troops and sailors under General Ross, who was killed a few days later in the British attack on Baltimore, defeated the American troops at Bladensburg, Md., captured the national capital and burned many buildings, including the White House.

When Mrs. James Madison, the popular Dolly, wife of the President, was notified that the enemy was approaching the capital, her first thought was to save the portrait of General Washington, which hung in the East Room. President Madison had gone out to the battle line and then was fleeing into Maryland to escape capture by the British.

A Mr. Carroll and another man who were passing the White House were called in by Mrs. Madison, and they broke the frame of the Washington portrait and took out the canvas. With the rolled-up portrait in her possession, Mrs. Madison was escorted to Mr. Carroll's home, Belvue, in what is now U Street, where she remained only long enough to write a note to her sister and then fled into Virginia.

After the restoration of the White House, the Washington portrait was replaced in the East Room. It remained until the interior of the White House was remodeled twenty-six years ago in the Roosevelt Administration, when it was hung in the Red Room. At the same time the portrait of Mrs. Washington was removed from the East Room to the Red Room.

The remodeling of the White House in 1903 aimed to restore the interior to its appearance when the building was first occupied as a Presidential residence by John Adams in 1800. Wood panelling was placed over the plastered walls, and President Roosevelt thought that the two oil portraits were incongruous on the panels.

Belvue, to which the Washington portrait was taken in 1814 and where it remained for some time, was purchased recently by the National Society of Colonial Dames for a national headquarters.

HEAVY COAT OF TAN IS CALLED HARMFUL

Bars Sun's Curative Rays From Entering Body, Lighting Experts Declare.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Too much tan serves to shut out the sunlight and bars its curative rays from entering the body, delegates to the annual convention of the Illuminating Engineering Society were informed here today. A very mild coating of tan is all that should be sought, for any more may have an injurious effect, speakers at a symposium on ultra-violet radiation declared.

At the same time it was said that scientists were engaged in extensive research work, the results of which are hoped to prevent future generations from "sunlight starvation." Such measures were described as necessary because of the concentration of population in large cities and industrial centres and the fact that murky atmospheres and indoor jobs tend to reduce greatly the amount of beneficial sunlight received by the individual.

Henry Phelps Gage of the Corning, N. Y., glass works, who led a discussion on the curative effects of sunlight, condemned the vogue for heavy coats of tan.

"The amount of sunshine required to prevent or cure rickets and other diseases affected by light is less than is necessary to cause sunburn or tanning," he said.

"Tanning results when sun treatments are raised to a level giving an erythema. Aside from its discomforts, this also increases the necessary time for subsequent irradiations and constitutes and obstacle for later treatment.

"One's body must not acquire a coppery veneer to derive the full benefit of sunlight. In fact, the curative qualities of sunlight decrease with each additional coat of tan."

C. E. Greider and A. C. Downes of the National Carbon Company's research laboratory reported that the most satisfactory solution of the problem of sunlight starvation for the present generation would be the use of an artificial-light source duplicating sunlight in ultra-violet, visible and infra-red rays.

Washing Window, Dies in Fall.

While washing a window in her apartment on the third floor of 3,114 Davidson Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Helen Lillienthal, 57 years old, lost her balance, fell into the courtyard and was killed. Mrs. Lillienthal shared the apartment with a nephew, who was at work at the time of the accident.

When a Man Discovers That He Has Made a Poor Job

in making himself what he is, why sit down in the dumps and fret over it? Why not be up and doing to undo his mistakes? No one but himself can understand so well what is to be taken down and how the rebuilding can best go forward.

SIX CITY PLAY AREAS BOUGHT BY BERRY

Controller Reports Purchase of Four in Brooklyn and Two in Manhattan.

WANTS TASK TRANSFERRED

In Accounting for $6,000,000 Park Fund, He Urges a New Agency to Acquire Lands.

CIVIC GROUP PRAISES HIM

Battle, Speaking at Meeting of City Recreation Board, Is "Positively Thrilled" at Playground News.

Controller Charles W. Berry announced yesterday at a luncheon of the City Recreation Committee at the Town Hall Club, 123 West Forty-third Street, that he had just purchased for the city six new open-air playgrounds. Purchase of four of the playgrounds in Brooklyn last week and two in Manhattan on Thursday was mentioned casually by Mr. Berry in reporting on the city's $6,000,000 fund for new parks to representatives of fifty-four organizations represented at the luncheon.

George Gordon Battle, president of the Parks and Playgrounds Association of the City of New York, in an address following Controller Berry, asserted that he was "positively thrilled" by the Controller's announcement. He said the meeting was the "most inspiring" of its kind he had ever attended.

"Why a few years ago," said Mr. Battle, "delegations of citizens interested in parks and playgrounds had to make about ten visits to the Board of Estimate and they had to make innumerable appeals to the newspapers to get the City of New York to buy even one playground."

Mrs. Vladimir G. Simkhovitch, chairman of the executive committee of the City Recreation Committee, presided at the luncheon, and commended Mr. Berry and other members of the city administration for the progress in the purchase of parks and playgrounds.

City Real Estate Sold.

Controller Berry explained how early in 1926, when making a survey of city-owned real estate, he had assembled all property of that class and with the permission of the Board of Estimate and the Sinking Fund Commission sold it at public auction for an aggregate of $2,225,000. He further told how the Board of Estimate had adopted his recommendation that the money as well as proceeds from future sales of that kind be made available for the purchase of park lands.

"Under the policy thus adopted we acquired nearly 1,400 acres of land at a cost of nearly $6,000,000," said Controller Berry.

The Controller cited the Board of Estimate's appropriations of $500,000 each in 1928 and 1929 to purchase open air playgrounds. He asserted that the old law, requiring public hearings on sites and approval of them by the Board of Estimate and Sinking Fund Commission, had made the acquisition of sites difficult because owners would boost prices when they discovered that they city was buyer. That difficulty was eliminated by the bill introduced by the Controller on May 16, 1929, and passed by the Municipal Assembly.

"The Controller has accepted this work," continued Mr. Berry, "in order that progress might be made in such an important project and that something might really be accomplished, but it is not a function of my office and something which cannot be continued very long.

"Some person or agency who has this problem at heart should make up a plan for future development, should seek the places of greatest need for establishment of such centers, it can be obtained at once and every year should submit to the Board of Estimate a program for the ensuing year which would make recommendations for acquirement of new sites, development and maintenance of those already in our possession, also of new playground features derived either from suggestions or observation; in other words, this matter should be a growing project of the City of New York, keeping pace with our development in other directions.

Sees Divided Responsibility.

"As the law stands at the present time this must be a divided responsibility. Two great agencies, education and parks, have the problem between them and this must continue so under the present charter.

"Besides this the Park Department is divided into five boroughs with a separate commissioner in each, so that it would not always be possible to have a complete unanimity of opinion.

"By a consolidation of the park commissioners and the cooperation of the Department of Education a small governing body might be made available which could concentrate on and study out this problem, or it could be done by one person who had the necessary training, vision and practical experience and who could act as an adviser to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, who in turn could transmit these views to the departments involved.

"Such may not be the final solution to the problem but we must all admit that very little progress can or will be made until some real hard thinking has been done by some individuals along these lines.

"New York City today has 13,710 acres of park lands, divided as follows:

	Total Area (Acres).	Park Area (Acres).	Pc.
Brooklyn	47,449	3,083	6.5
Bronx	27,335	4,400	16.1
Queens	70,231	2,165	3.1
Richmond	38,304	2,300	6.0
Total	197,727	13,710	7.0

"Of this amount 2,000 acres, or 19 per cent of the entire amount, has been secured by the present administration in the last four years.

"The city has 578 outdoor playgrounds, including school playgrounds, divided as follows:

Brooklyn	207
Bronx	101
Manhattan	107
Queens	120
Richmond	43
Total	578

"Of this amount, 202, or 35 per cent, have been secured by the present administration in the last four years."

Raymond V. Ingersoll, vice chairman of the City Recreation Committee, introduced Mr. Berry.

The following resolution, presented by M. J. Sticiel of the Y. M. C. A., was adopted unanimously:

"Be it Resolved, That it is the opinion of those present at this meeting, representing the organizations in New York City interested in municipal provision of playgrounds and recreation, that the city authorities are to be commended for the recent park and playground purchases; for the method of acquiring plots by direct purchase and the consequent great saving to the taxpayers, and particularly for the $6,000,000 program devoted half to new park acquisitions and half to the purchase of playground sites in the congested areas.

"Especially do we approve the method by which Controller Berry has sought to locate sites for new playgrounds in those localities where there is the greatest congestion of child population and the least present playground provision, his use of information and studies both of an official nature and that offered by disinterested but experienced civic and recreation agencies, and the development of what is hoped may be the beginnings of an official city plan for playgrounds.

"Appreciation should also be expressed for the conscientious fashion in which the interests of the social organizations have been presented to the city authorities by Raymond V. Ingersoll, vice chairman of the City Recreation Committee, and chairman of the parks and playgrounds committee of the City Club; Harry W. Marsh, civic director of the City Club; LeRoy E. Bowman, secretary of the City Recreation Committee, and Charles J. Storey of the Russell Sage Foundation."

A statement by the officers of the City Recreation Committee on the subject of parks and playgrounds was read by LeRoy E. Bowman, secretary of the committee. It said:

"The problem of the immediate as well as the more distant future is to continue to acquire land and facilities for play to catch up and keep pace with a growing population, and to improve constantly the administration of play activities. With the funds at their disposal recreation bureaus in park and education departments have done well, but there is need for more trained workers, and need especially for funds to make school play space available for community use all the hours during which children play."

CHARGES EMBEZZLING OF UNION CITY FUNDS

Taxpayers' Lawyer Says Evidence Got by Detectives Will Be Presented Next Thursday.

Evidence of embezzlement of city funds by officials and employes of the 1927-1928 Republican administration in Union City will be presented to Supreme Court Commissioner Charles L. Carrick at the resumption of the Supreme Court investigation of the financial transactions of the administration next Thursday, it was disclosed last night by A. G. Gabriel, counsel for the taxpayers who instituted the investigation.

Mr. Gabriel said that a staff of private detectives had completed a survey of transactions and activities which will be "rendered to the Supreme Court Commissioner in all their odious and criminal viciousness."

The disclosures by witnesses at Thursday's session in which it was testified that more than $1,000,000 of city funds were paid out in the two years without verification of claims by affidavit will be followed up next Thursday, Mr. Gabriel said. The expenditure of $570,000 on repairs to the City Hall and the Second Precinct police station and adjoining firehouse will be thoroughly examined.

The lawyer declared that Union City had spent $215,000 on renovating an antiquated and run-down building. For the same amount the city could have a City Hall twice the size and of modern standard and equipment. Transcripts of the testimony of three witnesses who appeared at earlier sessions will be presented next week by Mr. Gabriel to Prosecutor John Drewen for examination for possible perjury. The three are Arthur J. Spitzmagle, City Clerk of Union City, who is a holdover of the administration; Albert Rapp and Emil Barchi, both of whom were foremen in the Street Cleaning Department.

It was indicated by Mr. Gabriel that the investigation will require at least five additional weekly sessions to complete the record, after which it is expected that the principal officials will be subpoenaed. Mayor Charles A. Mohn, Republican, who heads the administration will not be called for at least six weeks.

WOMAN FOUND SLAIN NEAR PEACOX PYRE

Wife of Butler on Greenburgh Estate of Henry Kelly Jr. Murdered With Shotgun.

BODY HIDDEN IN BUSHES

Husband Discovers It When She Fails to Return Home—Two Negroes Questioned.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The body of Mrs. Elsa Marshall, 24 years old and married eight months, was found today in a cluster of bushes near the Knollwood Country Club in the township of Greenburgh. After fatally wounding her with a shotgun her assailant had dragged the dying woman into the shrubbery.

The body was found at 1:15 P. M. by her husband, John Marshall, an Englishman employed as butler at Kelcourt, the estate of Henry Kelly Jr., produce merchant in New York City. Mrs. Marshall had been employed as cook at the estate. Two negroes were held tonight for questioning after Marshall had identified them as men he had seen near the spot where his wife was found.

The butler said that he and his wife had planned to go to New York City yesterday to celebrate her birthday. He had felt indisposed, he told the police, and had postponed the party. Mrs. Marshall, he said, had been keenly disappointed and at 11 A. M. yesterday she had announced that she was going for a walk.

Wore Her "Kitchen" Clothes.

She set out along a pathway which would have brought her to Hawthorne Road. She was bareheaded and wore what were described as her "kitchen" clothes. Shortly after his wife left the house, Marshall told the police, he went to visit friends in Elmsford, N. Y. He returned to Kelcourt at 7 P. M.

The butler said that when his wife failed to come home last night he thought she had decided to spend the night with her friends. This morning, however, he said he became alarmed and told other servants of Mrs. Marshall's absence.

He set out to search for her. About 500 yards from the borders of the estate and in the neighborhood where Earle Peacox tried to burn the body of his wife, Dorothy, the butler saw some of his wife's clothing protruding from the undergrowth.

He ran back and notified his mistress, who summoned Captain Philip McQuillan of the Greenburgh police. McQuillan found the body, and Assistant District Attorneys Lester Albertson and James Dempsey were called. They questioned Marshall and made a search for clues.

They established by stains that Mrs. Marshall had been shot as she walked along Hawthorne Road. The man who wounded her had held the shotgun pressed against her left side just below the heart. A comb belonging to the victim was picked up midway between the highway and the bushes.

Negroes Are Questioned.

After Marshall had told of seeing the negroes near the scene, the men appeared at the Greenburgh Police Headquarters. They were Willard James, 26 years old, and Frank Cooper, 24. The negroes drove an automobile from North Carolina several weeks ago and got jobs clearing land being developed as Knorwood Manor.

Cooper said that he had been cutting grass when Marshall saw them. James was standing on the running board of their automobile. The men told Albertson and Dempsey that about 2 o'clock yesterday they were walking through Knollwood Acres, another realty development which adjoins the manor property, when they saw a dark-skinned man, who they said might have been a negro, hurrying toward them.

The spot where they saw this man is 500 feet from the spot where the body was discovered today. The man was coming from that direction. He carried a gun, which he brandished as he ran past them, the negro said.

Dr. Amos Squire, Westchester County Medical Examiner, came here to perform an autopsy at the morgue of Lyon & Hartnett. He said that Mrs. Marshall had been attacked while unconscious. He characterized the crime as the "most dastardly act of its kind ever committed in this county."

The butler, who was born in West Hartlepool, England, and his wife, a Swede, had been employed by the Kellys since July 23.

This evening District Attorney Frank H. Coyne, who had prosecuted Peacox, assumed charge of the investigation. He questioned James and Cooper and had a long talk with Marshall. He said that he had no clues to the identity of the murderer.

HELD IN FRIEND'S DEATH IN A HUNTING ACCIDENT

Millville (N. J.) Contractor Tells of Shooting at Deer and Finding Comrade Wounded.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Raymond Goodwin, 37 years old, building contractor, of Millville, is being held today by Atlantic County authorities following the death of his friend Cecil Peterson, 30, of Newcombtown Road, Millville, after a hunting accident. The police are checking up Goodwin's story.

Peterson died on the operating table in Millville Hospital while physicians tried to extract buckshot from his body. There was one wound just above the heart, two in the abdomen and one in the right arm.

Late last night Goodwin was arrested on instructions from the Atlantic County Prosecutor's office.

Peterson is survived by a widow and two children, Brinton, 10, and Dorothy T.

According to the police, Goodwin says he, Peterson and Charles Thompson of 925 Pine Street, Millville, went to Weymouth Woods yesterday in Peterson's truck. The first two had their guns and Thompson had a dog. Goodwin is quoted as saying that they went out into the woods, walking a short distance apart. He said he lost sight of Peterson and when he saw a deer he shot. He heard Peterson cry out and ran to some bushes, behind which he found Peterson on the ground.

Both Goodwin and Thompson were deeply affected by the accident. The three men had long been friends.

It is the closed season for deer.

Daylight Saving Time Ends at 2 A.M. Tomorrow; Clocks to Be Set Back One Hour in Many Cities

Daylight saving for this year will end at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning and millions of persons throughout the city, State and country will readjust themselves to Standard Time. Clocks and watches will be set back one hour by some at bedtime tonight, while others will defer the function until their usual time for arising to enjoy an extra hour for sleep.

In New York State 186 cities and towns, including this city, will restore the borrowed hour which, since April 28, has made possible the enjoyment of sixty additional minutes of natural light each day and, incidentally, has reduced the cost of artificial illumination.

Virtually all of New Jersey and some New England States will also observe the change. In New Jersey 118 towns and villages were officially under Daylight Saving Time; while in Connecticut, despite a legislative ban against Daylight Time for public clocks, banks, stores and factories, thirty-three cities and towns observed the daylight saving system.

All railroads entering New York which had adopted Daylight Time in whole or in part will return to Eastern Standard Time at 2 A. M. tomorrow on all schedules. The change mainly affects suburban trains, but as these were operated during the Summer on the same time used throughout the city there will be little, if any, confusion among commuters.

Eleven new twenty-hour trains to Chicago will be put into service by the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads tomorrow. The schedules of these trains have been included in the new Winter timetables.

Schedules of mail and passenger airplanes will not be greatly affected by the return to Standard Time.

5 HIJACKERS HELD IN JERSEY KILLINGS

Trenton Gang Mistook Twelve Barrels of Cider, Worth $120, for Whisky.

POLICE GET CONFESSIONS

Gunmen Who Shot Two Say They Aimed at Ground—Identified by Brother of One Victim.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Five men were held for murder today in connection with the killing last night of Anthony Tafrow and Michael Radice. Twelve barrels of cider, valued at $120, which the gang of hijackers thought were whisky, caused the murders.

The men under arrest are Joseph (Little Joe) Marrazzo, 28 years old; Joseph Panderi, alias Baker, 24; Samuel Scazzaro, 19; John (Porky) Cammoratta, 19, and Daniel Tomasulo, 34. Marrazzo was released several months ago after serving six years for manslaughter. Panderi, also recently freed, had served three years for robbery.

The men admitted they had banded together to prey on bootleggers Scazzaro was the "lookout." Camoratta was the driver of the gang and Tomasulo was the "spotter." Marrazzo and Panderi carried the revolvers.

Late last night they trailed the cider truck from the store of Thomas Tafrow, a brother of the dead man, who is a fruit merchant at 117 Cummings Avenue. Anthony Tafrow was driving the automobile. He noticed a car following him and halted in front of his brother's home in Lyndale Avenue.

Tafrow hurried into the house. He shouted to his brother, who ran out with Radice, who had been eating ice cream with his wife. The five men in the trailing machine alighted.

Panderi and Marrazzo moved over to meet the brothers and Radice. According to the confessions of the accused, they fired their revolvers, but aimed at the ground. Anthony Tafrow died instantly, while Radice died within an hour.

Panderi was traced to a cellar where he had hidden his revolver. Following his arrest Thomas Tafrow told the police the identities of the other men and they were speedily rounded up.

A curious fact was that all of the men, except Panderi, went to their homes after the shootings although aware that Thomas Tafrow could identify them.

FALL STARTS TO FACE OIL TRIAL AT CAPITAL

Leaves El Paso With His Physician—Doheny on His Way to Testify in Case.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 27 (AP).—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, left here last night for Washington, where he is scheduled to go on trial Oct. 7 on bribery charges in connection with the leasing of the Elk Hills Oil Reserve. He was accompanied by Mrs. Fall and two daughters and his physician, Dr. G. T. Safford.

Dr. Safford said Mr. Fall "seems to be fairly well, but he is not as strong as the last time he was in Washington. I am going with him to guard his health during the trip."

The physician said he did not think it would be necessary for him to remain with his patient during the trial.

REFEREE TO INQUIRE INTO MILK 'RACKET'

Supreme Court Appointee Will Begin Hearings Tuesday in Dissolution Action.

PRICE WAR BEGUN IN BRONX

Incorporation Papers Filed for New Association—Split in the Fay Organization Indicated.

Events moved rapidly yesterday in connection with the joint county and State investigation of the affairs of the New York Milk Chain Association, of which Lawrence Fay is still president, although his resignation has been in the hands of its directors for several days.

Assistant Attorney General William B. Groate Jr. announced that a referee appointed by the Supreme Court would begin hearings Tuesday morning in Attorney General Hamilton Ward's office, 51 Chambers Street, and that witnesses would be called in an action legally to dissolve the milk chain association on grounds of conspiracy to violate the Donnelly act relating to combinations in restraint of trade. Assistant District Attorney Albert B. Unger or Assistant District Attorney W. N. Brothers will attend the hearings, seeking evidence upon which to base grand jury action.

A group of members of the milk chain took steps to form another association and papers were filed in the County Clerk's office to incorporate the Wholesale Dairy Products Dealers of New York.

Shortly afterward a "reorganizing committee" met at Palm Garden, and because no quorum was present decided to meet at 101 Avenue A at 3 P. M. Wednesday to elect officers.

Wholesale milk dealers in the Bronx who appeared at Palm Garden disclosed that for several days another "milk war" has been going on in the Bronx, with wholesale milk dealers selling at a loss. It was asserted that retail dealers, seeing an opportunity to profit by a weakening of the wholesalers' association, have compelled wholesalers to sell milk at $4 a can or less.

There were indications that Fay's association might split up into two associations, one formed by the nucleus of dealers who complained to Health Commissioner Wynne and the other formed by adherents of Fay.

Mr. Fay intimated that he had called to Dr. Wynne's attention a "rotten condition," which he said the commissioner had verified but had not "cleaned up." Dr. Wynne explained that Fay complained that William Smith, whose Smith Brothers' Milk and Cream Company lost its license two years ago on charges of adulterating milk, was again in business, actively associated with Henry Morris, Inc.

Dr. Wynne said his investigation disclosed that Smith was a stockholder in Henry Morris, Inc., but that the Corporation Counsel had advised that he could not be ousted by legal action. Recently, however, said the Health Commissioner, reports have come to him that Smith has been active, and he accordingly has asked the Corporation Counsel for another opinion.

District Attorney Banton announced that the results of the milk investigation would be placed before the grand jury during the second week in October.

Fay told reporters that the milk chain had collected not more than $250,000 since its organization, instead of $800,000 as estimated by Dr. Wynne.

Harold G. Aron, Republican nominee for Controller, yesterday denied ever having met Mr. Fay and introduced him to F. H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Mayor. It had been said that Mr. Fay had told Dr. Wynne that Aron had met him at Moore's restaurant and had introduced him to Mr. La Guardia, who said to Fay: "If you have anything on the Health Department I wish you would let me have it."

Mr. La Guardia said that he had visited Moore's restaurant with Mrs. La Guardia, that Ben Newman had introduced him to Mr. Fay and that some jocular remarks had passed with reference to his attacks upon the milk "racketeers," but that he had not asked Fay for information regarding the Health Department.

Mr. Fay later told an emissary from Mr. La Guardia in the presence of reporters that he had not made the statement attributed to him to Dr. Wynne or anybody else and there was no truth in the statement that La Guardia had asked him for such information.

WAGGONER PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN FRAUD

At Tuttle's Request Trial of $500,000 Bank Swindle Case Is Set for Friday.

DEFENSE TO SEE LETTERS

But Prosecutor Refuses to Permit Inspection of Telegrams Among Evidence.

Charles Delos Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride, Col., who has insisted he alone engineered the $500,000 credit fraud on six New York banks, pleaded not guilty yesterday to an indictment alleging use of the mails to defraud the banks. Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy, at the request of United States Attorney Tuttle, set the trial for next Friday.

Former State Senator Ellwood Rabenold and Allen R. Campbell, both of the firm of Rabenold & Scribner, Waggoner's attorneys, asked permission to examine the letters upon which the indictment is based, as well as the telegrams in the case. Mr. Tuttle said they might see the letters at any time, but the telegrams were part of the general evidence which he did not feel they had a right to examine without very good reason. He pointed out that a mail-fraud indictment could not be based on telegrams.

"We can't hold that," remarked Mr. Campbell.

"No, that is your good fortune," replied Mr. Tuttle.

Mr. Campbell then said he would have to ask for a bill of particulars, whereupon Mr. Tuttle asked him to call at his office and talk the matter over with him before formally making such a demand. Although neither Mr. Rabenold nor Mr. Campbell made any outspoken objection to going to trial on that Friday, Mr. Tuttle told Judge Kennedy he thought an early trial advisable, largely because witnesses were here from the West attempting to live in New York "on the comparatively small sustenance allowance of $5 a day."

Waggoner, who is still in the Federal House of Detention because of his inability to put up $100,000 bail, appeared in court in the custody of Chief United States Deputy Marshal Raymond J. Mulligan. Neither his wife nor his son was in the court room. He received a friendly greeting, however, from C. E. Downtain, former cashier of the Bank of Telluride, and from Harry Miller, his barber and friend of twenty years.

Smiling, Waggoner showed interest in the proceedings and gave no sign that he was in the least perturbed. The plea of not guilty of all six counts in the indictment was entered for him by Mr. Campbell. Each count deals with the alleged mailing of a letter in connection with the fraud. Once, during his plea for an early trial, Mr. Tuttle said the defendant, according to "extended newspaper accounts, entertains views about this matter which may simplify certain aspects of the trial." Asked later what he meant by that remark, Mr. Tuttle replied:

"That was cryptic, I admit."

Mr. Rabenold admitted that his firm represented several New York banks, but said none of them was in any way involved in Waggoner's financial manipulations.

Judge Kennedy called attention to the fact that he would not be in the city on the date set for trial of the case. Mr. Tuttle said later that it was likely that Judge Frank C. Coleman or Judge Alfred C. Coxe would preside.

TRY TO WIDEN 'RACKET,' THREE ARE ARRESTED

Held for Attempted Extortion From Laundry Man—Boast of Success in Junk Field.

Attempted expansion from successful "racketeering" in the junk business to the "bigger and better" laundry field yesterday proved the undoing of Thomas Micell, 28 years old, of 469 East Seventy-fourth Street; Michael Scudder, 21, of 1,468 First Avenue, and Frank Florio of 1,405 Avenue A.

The three, who boasted to detectives that they were the founders and moving spirits of the Greater New York Junk Dealers Association, with headquarters at 417 East Seventy-fourth Street and a paid-up membership of about 100, were arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of attempted extortion on the complaint of Martin Kandel, president of the Golden Rule Laundry, 337 East Seventy-fifth Street.

Kandel charges they first approached him about a week ago to buy tickets in a raffle being held to raise money to obtain the release of a deserving friend from Sing Sing. When Kandel refused to buy any tickets, they warned him they'd "be back."

Two days later they returned and in a positive manner, according to the complainant, urged him to join the "Laundry Owners' Association" they were forming. Kandel again refused. About three days ago they returned with the plans for their enterprise fully made. These plans consisted of full protection for all participating laundry owners, and quite the contrary for all others. Mr. Kandel asked time to think it over, arranging another meeting with the man in his laundry. During the meeting yesterday afternoon Detectives O'Shaughnessy and Krans of the East Sixty-seventh Street station "listened in" from behind a partition and then made the arrests.

The three made about $1,000 a month in the junk "racket," they told the police.

FILES REPLY TO TUNNEY.

Attorney for Fogarty Denies Charge of Slander.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 27 (AP).—The $500,000 alienation-of-affections suit brought by John S. Fogarty, civil engineer, of Fort Worth, Texas, against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, moved a step nearer trial today when Charles J. Martin, an attorney of New Haven, filed a reply in Superior Court to a counter suit by Tunney charging slander and asking damages of $100,000. Mr. Martin denied all the charges.

Fogarty's reply to Tunney's counter suit in denying the charges brings to a close the pleadings in the alienation action, and the next move will be the plaintiff's claim for trial list.

No reply has been filed to Tunney's answer in the $500,000 breach-of-promise action brought against him by Mrs. Katherine Fogarty of New York, divorced wife of the Texas engineer. Mrs. Fogarty alleges that Tunney proposed marriage to her previous to his marriage to Polly Lauder, which Tunney has denied.

Will Rogers Learns Result Of Experiments With Rats

To the Editor of The New York Times:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 27.—Say, there is an awful lot in the papers the last few days about these experiments these college professors are making with rats. One professor had to turn his out, for the rats knew enough not to try any of the experiments.

Another one wanted to find out what effect athletics had on any one's intelligence. They wanted to see if he was dumber, or keener, after running back punts and tackling another rat for awhile.

The experiment showed that the rat was keener with athletics by him demanding tuition and board for nothing and 10 per cent of the gate on all big games. The rat with no exercise wound up as a bond salesman.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

50 VICTIMS HEAR 'BROKER' SENTENCED

Women in Court as Frederick Bell Gets Five to Ten Years in Sing Sing.

TOTAL THEFTS $150,000

Judge Brands Him a Merciless Thief Who Preyed on Hard-Working Servants.

While nearly fifty of his women victims looked on in General Sessions yesterday, Frederick Bell, 50 years old, former bathhouse attendant at Narragansett Pier, R. I., who turned "stock broker" and stole more than $150,000, was sentenced by Judge Levine to from five to ten years in Sing Sing.

Bell, who lived in an expensive home at Douglaston Park, L. I., when he disappeared four years ago, to be captured last August in the little village of Monroe, La., had pleaded guilty to the specific theft of $3,000 from Julia Cahill, whose present whereabouts could not be obtained by Chief Probation Officer Edwin J. Cooley up to the time of arraignment yesterday.

"You are a merciless thief," Judge Levine told Bell, and thirty women servants who crowded the court and others who stood in the doorway nodded in acquiescence. "You preyed on hard-working people who least could afford to lose the money you stole from them under pretense that you would invest it in stock transactions. You used religion to gain the confidence of these unfortunate people. I regret that the laws prevent me from imposing a heavier sentence."

Bell, glib of tongue and with a smattering of the phraseology of the financial district he had obtained years ago when he was messenger for a trust company there, had learned the foundation for his thefts while working at a Narragansett Pier bathhouse which was patronized almost exclusively by servants of wealthy persons there.

He opened a small office in Wall Street, promising his victims profits of from 20 to 25 per cent, but kept no books, according to Mr. Cooley, "and became the pompous, self-assured and precise figure whose patronizing attentions were found most flattering by his dupes." Mr. Cooley's report added that Bell used the names of prominent clergymen to further his schemes. He left most of his victims penniless, it was revealed.

Bell became a race track tout after his disappearance from this city, the report went on, and up to four days before his arrest had unsuccessfully conducted a grocery in a shanty in the poorer section of Monroe. He was reduced to such straits at the time Detective William Sullivan of the District Attorney's office took him into custody there, that Sullivan had to enlist the aid of a tailor to mend his prisoner's worn clothes.

WEINBERGERS SEEK TO VOID INDICTMENTS

Assert Justice Black's Charge to Passaic County Grand Jury Violated Constitution.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Notice of a motion to quash the six indictments voted against Harry H. Weinberger in the New Jersey Bankers' Securities case on the ground that his constitutional rights were jeopardized was served today on Assistant Prosecutor James M. Dunn. A brother, Joseph Weinberger, who was named in one of the six bills, is also a party to the litigation. The motion will be made before Common Pleas Judge William B. Harley on Oct. 4.

Harry Weinberger charges that the indictments are illegal, and the result of "bias, prejudice, passion and malice." He asserts that Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Black's charge to the Passaic County grand jury violated the New Jersey Constitution and that the court "usurped the function and power of the grand jury and, in effect, directed the grand jury to return an indictment in a manner denounced by the law."

Other reasons advanced in the notice are that the judge's charge was prejudicial to the defendants; that the court's charge expressed an opinion as to the guilt of the defendants and thereby vitiated the efficacy of the indictments; that Assistant Prosecutor Dunn had knowledge of and permitted his brother-in-law, Lester Johnson, to sit on the grand jury; that Justice Black held a conference with Ellsworth Lee, grand jury foreman, "to influence the return of the indictments"; that persons other than those permitted by law were in the grand jury room; that hearsay evidence formed the basis of the indictments; that Mr. Dunn and D. Frederick Burnett, associate prosecutor, gave testimony without being sworn; that the grand jurors obtained evidence from improper sources, and that evidence elicited in a legislative inquiry was used by the State.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN SELLING WAVE

Active Issues Off From 2 to 25 Points in One of Most Violent Reactions of Year.

BROKERS' LOANS A FACTOR

Realization of Significance of England's Bank Rate Rise Also an Influence.

STEEL LEADS IN DECLINE

Break Seen as Culmination of Liquidating Movement That Started on Aug. 9.

Staggered by the $192,000,000 increase in brokers' loans announced late Thursday, the stock market passed yesterday through one of the most violent reactions of the year. Active issues were driven down from 2 to 25 points, losing hundreds of millions of dollars in open market values.

The selling movement was of such proportions that Wall Street seemed powerless to arrest it. The market, its virility sapped by almost a month of steady liquidation, fell slowly in the morning, but took a nose-dive in the afternoon when leading issues failed to develop resistive powers. What had started as moderate irregularity turned into a complete rout, and prices melted when fresh volumes of selling orders came from frightened speculators.

England's Bank Rate a Factor.

There were three primary causes for the decline. First, was the heavy expansion in the brokers' loan account to a new maximum total. Second, was the belated realization of the significance of the advance in the Bank of England's discount rate, which is expected to bring about drastic readjustments in the international money markets. Third, was the continued irregularity and lower trend of the market over a sufficiently long period to turn many handsome speculative profits into losses and the abandonment of the market by many of its recent friends, including powerful pools which have stepped aside, momentarily at least, until the equilibrium can be regained.

United States Steel common, many times the leader of vigorous upswings, was just as prominent in the decline yesterday. It showed no power of resistance to the selling which pressed upon the market and its quick recession from the morning high of 232½ to a low of 223¼ spread dismay among thousands who were watching the tape for a clue to the market's immediate future.

It was not Steel alone, however, which was swept lower. Virtually all of the "blue chip" issues broke sharply. These included General Electric, which yielded 12¾ points; Westinghouse, which lost 11; Western Union, 8; Consolidated Gas, 6¼; Simmons Company, 6¾; Republic Iron and Steel, 6¾; Allied Chemical and Dye, 10¾; Auburn Auto, 25; American Telephone and Telegraph, 5½; Columbian Carbon, 17½; Eastman Kodak, 8½, and Johns-Manville, 8¾. There were a few issues which stood out prominently because of their strength. Among these was American Water Works, which gained 9½; Industrial Rayon, which was up 9 on the day, and Standard Gas, which was up 10½.

The price movements of stocks which led yesterday's decline are shown in the following table, giving the high, low and last prices and the net losses:

Biggest Drop Since Aug. 9.

The day's decline did not establish a record loss in the averages of THE NEW YORK TIMES, but it brought these figures down more sharply than they have fallen since the wide-open break of Aug. 9, precipitated by the advance in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate from 5 to 6 per cent. The average price of twenty-five representative industrial stocks declined $11.75 yesterday, as compared with $15.46 on Aug. 9. Twenty-five railway stocks declined $3.42, against $3.80 on Aug. 9, and the combined averages, covering fifty issues, fell $7.08, comparing with $9.86 on Aug. 9.

DR. POTTER EMBARKS ON A 'NEW RELIGION'

"Humanist" Creed Is to Be Launched Here Tomorrow at Meeting as an "Adventure."

NEAR STRATON'S CHURCH

Sponsor Disclaims Any "Malice Aforethought" in Location Close to Fundamentalist.

The opening of a "new religion"—the Rev Charles Francis Potter's First Humanist Society of New York—takes place tomorrow, when the former pastor of the Church of the Divine Paternity embarks on what he terms "an adventure in religion which differs not only from Fundamentalism but also from Modernism."

The first meeting of the society is to take place in Steinway Hall, 113 West Fifty-seventh Street, only a step from the site of the Calvary Baptist Church. There was no "malice aforethought" in the location of the meeting, Dr. Potter said last night, recalling the debates between himself and the Rev. John Roach Straton, pastor of Cavalry, which attracted notice five years ago.

"Indeed," said Dr. Potter, "I expect to have in the audience of the First Humanist Society some of the people who live in the church hotel, which is going up on the site of old Calvary. I doubt if those who rent apartments there will find in their contracts a clause requiring them to attend the church in the same building."

Dr. Potter said he did not expect any great competition from Dr. Straton, "as the two faiths are as far apart theologically as they are close geographically." He admitted that the contrast in religion in Fifty-seventh Street would be striking.

Not only Fundamentalists, but Modernists are perturbed by the recent growth of the creed of Humanism, Dr. Potter said, and certain high theologians are already calling upon both branches of Christianity "to forget their differences and make a common cause against the Humanists."

"Few people realize how widespread and virile the Humanistic movement already is. There are Humanists in Japan and India, as well as in the United States. New groups are rising in this country every month. There are strong societies in Chicago, Dayton, Louisville, Minneapolis, Hollywood and Los Angeles. They are springing up in the colleges. Most significant of all, and most alarming to the defenders of orthodoxy, is the remarkable revolt to Humanism of theological seminary students. This is, perhaps, most noticeable in Chicago and New York.

"If any one has doubt that Humanism among students at Union Theological Seminary here is a problem, let him reflect on the pronouncement of its president, the Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin, last Spring when he called Humanism 'the religious scourge of Christendom.'"

Defining Humanism, Dr. Potter said:

"In the challenge to make the world better here and now the Humanist will find all the incentives and thrills which formerly intrigued the seekers of celestial bliss in the hereafter. Not that the Humanist is necessarily unconcerned with the great problem of immortality. He simply approaches it in another and more scientific way. Heaven as a reward concerns him even less than hell as a punishment. The continuance of personality he believes more likely to find its explanation by scientific research and the study of personality itself than by any revelation from the skies made to favored prophets."

PENNSYLVANIA PROVOST URGES LIFE OF INQUIRY

Dr. Penniman Tells Students at Opening Education Only Begins in University.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—College life presents a challenge to manhood, Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, provost of the University of Pennsylvania, declared at exercises today opening the university's academic year. More than 3,000 students attended the exercises.

"However well students may stand in their studies," said Dr. Penniman, "they are to recognize a university course as only the beginning of their intellectual development and are to learn that ceasing to acquire knowledge is indicative of mental apathy, which deprives life of the highest joys.

"Education that consists only of learning what is already known or of imitating and repeating what has already been done is of course necessary, but we must go beyond the education of imitation to the education of investigation and of individual thinking and imagining.

"Every great forward movement in the life of an individual or in the life of a community has been the result of the efforts of a man or men who saw a vision and tried to realize it; who saw a peak and tried to climb it; who saw an obstacle and tried to remove it; who saw a need and tried to meet it; who saw a mystery and tried to solve it; who saw a great spiritually-minded ideal man and tried to be one; who saw that nothing is ultimate except the necessity, which never changes, of being true to what we believe to be true."

It is estimated that there will be about 6,700 full-time candidates for degrees, the same as last year's total. Candidates for degrees or part time will aggregate about 2,150 and in addition there will be many candidates for certificates.

PAPAL AUDIENCE STIRS TALK

Rumors of Betrothal of Humbert Follow Belgian Primate's Visit.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 27 (AP).—An audience granted by Pope Pius today to Cardinal Van Roey, Primate of Belgium, caused renewal of talk that the Princess Marie José of Belgium and Crown Prince Humbert of Italy were about to be betrothed. Official confirmation or denial was not forthcoming either here or in diplomatic circles of Rome.

The talk received fresh impetus because the reception of Cardinal Van Roey came so soon after similar audiences between the Pope and Nuncio to Belgium; Mgr. Micara, Nuncio to Belgium; Mgr. Borgongini-Duca, Nuncio to Italy, and Count de Venchi, Italian Ambassador to the Holy See.

CHURCH HEADS ACT IN BLACKSHEAR CASE

Federal Council Orders Inquiry on Relation of White and Negro Communicants.

The recent action of the Rev. William St. John Blackshear, Brooklyn Protestant Episcopal clergyman, in discouraging negro membership and attendance at his church, led the administrative committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America yesterday to direct its Race Relations Commission to undertake an immediate study of the interracial question. It will report its findings at the annual meeting of the executive committee Dec. 4 to 6 at Chicago.

The resolution did not mention the Blackshear incident, but said that "in view of the widespread discussion on the relation of white and negro members in the same churches and in view of the fundamental questions of principle involved affecting all races," a thorough study of the question should be started at once.

It is understood that inside the committee room the discussion of the Blackshear case waxed warm at times, some strongly condemning the clergyman's action. The discussion lasted for more than two hours. Mr. Blackshear was not present. Forty members of the administrative committee attended the meeting. A large majority were white, but negro churches were represented.

One group in the committee insisted that the Blackshear incident and others of like character were symptomatic of a condition that needed a definite remedy, but first of all a thorough analysis to determine what that remedy should be. They succeeded in steering the committee clear of naming any particular case and obtained approval of the order for an investigation of the racial problem.

The resolution read:

"In view of the widespread discussion of the relation of white and negro members in the same churches and in view of the fundamental questions of principle involved affecting all races, the Commission on the Church and Race Relations is hereby requested to study the whole problem thoroughly and to prepare a report for submission to the annual meeting of the executive committee of the council."

The Race Relations Commission has fourteen members, about half of whom are negroes. It is headed by the Rev. Charles N. Lathrop of New York, social service secretary of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Bishop James Cannon Jr., militant dry leader, offered a resolution that the administrative committee "record its high appreciation" of President Hoover's declared intention of prohibition enforcement in the District of Columbia. The committee unanimously adopted the resolution, copies of which will be sent to President Hoover, to Vice President Curtis and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Bishop insisted that the resolution should be mailed last night, as he wanted the President to get it before Monday.

EPISCOPAL MEETING IGNORES RACE ISSUE

Long Island Clergy End Their Session Without Action on Blackshear Case.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., Sept. 27.—Without official action on the racial problem raised by the Rev. William S. Blackshear in publicly "discouraging" the attendance of negroes at St. Matthew's Church in Brooklyn, the conference of the clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island closed this afternoon.

The Rev. John L. Zacker, rector of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Brooklyn, and others of the younger delegates who had said they would bring the question before the conference, said today that they were satisfied with Mr. Blackshear's explanatory statement and considered the matter closed.

The Rev. William Grainger, rector of St. Luke's Church here, apparently expressed the view of the majority of the delegates when he said that Mr. Blackshear's action had no pertinence to a conference on "purely spiritual matters."

Bishop Ernest M. Stires told reporters that he had conferred with Mr. Blackshear before the rector issued the statement. He reiterated that the rector and vestry of a church have the right to determine the policy of their parish.

Mr. Blackshear thanked the reporters for publishing his lengthy statement, which, he said, "precluded further misrepresentation of the true reasons for my policy."

Negro Church Protests.

The vestry of St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Church (colored), 1,610 Dean Street, Brooklyn, made public yesterday a resolution protesting against the action of the Rev. William S. Blackshear in discouraging the attendance of negroes at his church. The vestry also went on record "as maintaining a house of prayer, the portals of which are ever open to all peoples alike, irrespective of their racial identity."

MADE COLLEGE TREASURER.

Roger H. Motten of Rye Is Appointed at Trinity.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 27.—The appointment of Roger Henwood Motten of Rye, N. Y., as treasurer of Trinity College was announced tonight by President Remsen B. Ogilby.

Mr. Motten, who has been executive secretary of the Woodcraft League of America, will assume his duties next week, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation last Spring of Edgar F. Waterman.

Mr. Motten has had both academic and administrative experience, having been professor of English and assistant to the president of Colorado College. He was graduated from Allegheny College in 1901. In 1915 the college gave him the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

City College Seniors Elect.

Balloting by the senior class at the College of the City of New York yesterday resulted in the elections of David Roemer, president; Joseph Winkler, vice president; Louis Klein, secretary; Jack Siegel, treasurer, and Herman Winkleman, athletic manager. Leo Bradspies and George Schwartz were elected yesterday as junior and sophomore representatives to the Students Council, the college governing board.

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO THE CHURCH-GOER

Portraits of Embury and Wife, Founders of American Methodism, to Be Presented.

SPECIAL SERVICES PLANNED

Cardinal Hayes Will Bless Newly Completed Parochial School Tomorrow Afternoon.

Portraits of Philip Embury and his wife, founders of Methodism in America, will be presented to John Street Methodist Church, known as "the Cradle of American Methodism," at 44 John Street, tomorrow morning. Mrs. Anna Onstott of Mansfield, Ohio, will tell the stories of the pictures and how they came to be presented through the generosity of the Rev. Howard M. Ingham, an Episcopal clergyman of Philadelphia, who has owned them for thirty years. He has given the portraits as a memorial to his father, the late W. A. Ingham, who lived in Cleveland and was for many years a trustee and lecturer at Ohio Wesleyan University.

The pictures, which were painted by Jno Barnes in 1733, are oil portraits on wood. They have been retouched by J. Uhl and are the only copies of the subjects extant. Photographic illustrations of the portraits appeared in Harper's Weekly of Nov. 1, 1873. Mrs. Onstott has been in this city since July 1 doing research work connected with early Methodist history. The portraits will be accepted by the Rev. Dr. Francis B. Upham, the pastor, who has just returned from England, where on Aug. 11 he preached from John Wesley's pulpit in the City Road Chapel, London.

The winner of the religious novel contest conducted by The Christian Herald and the Doubleday-Doran Company was announced yesterday as Eli Millen of New York. The prize is $2,500. The award was made "for the novel which best interprets the spirit of Christianity to the modern world." Millen's novel, "Bethel," was picked out of the hundreds that were submitted. The setting is in the Kentucky blue grass country and the hero is a blacksmith parson. "Bethel" will be run as a serial in The Christian Herald and published in book form later by Doubleday-Doran.

Cardinal Hayes will bless the recently completed parochial school of Holy Trinity Church, 211 West Eighty-second Street, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The dedication was delayed because of the death some weeks ago of the Rev. Joseph G. Cushman, the pastor.

The Cardinal will officiate tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the dedication of the new Roman Catholic edifice and school of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Beach and Gleason Avenues, the Bronx. Mgr. Joseph H. McMahon, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, will preach the sermon. The pastor is the Rev. Edward A. Loehr and the parish was established in 1927.

Bishop William T. Manning returned yesterday to his office in Synod House within Cathedral Close. The Bishop and his wife arrived home Thursday night from Mount Desert, Me., where they have been since early in July. Dr. Manning said he was in excellent health, that he had spent a restful, quiet Summer and was ready for the Winter's work. Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock he will dedicate a number of memorial gifts to St. Andrew's Church, 73 Morris Street, Yonkers.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, will rededicate Trinity Lutheran Church, Hartford, Conn., tomorrow morning. The Rev. O. E. Heydenreich is the pastor. In the evening Dr. Trexler will preach at the fifteenth anniversary service of Trinity Lutheran Church, Stapleton, S. I., of which the Rev. Dr. Frederic Sutter is the pastor.

The first meeting of the Eastern Conference of the United Lutheran Synod of New York will be held Monday and Tuesday in the First Lutheran Church, Troy, and the first meeting of the New England Conference of the synod will be held Tuesday and Wednesday in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Norwich, Conn. Both will be addressed by Dr. Trexler and the Rev. Paul Andrew Kirsch, secretary of the synod.

A new throne for Cardinal Hayes is being installed in the sanctuary of St. Patrick's Cathedral. It is of solid oak elaborately carved and is fourteen feet high. It matches the carved oak screen and gridwork which now encircles the sanctuary, as part of the general improvements being made in the interior of the cathedral for the celebration in the Spring of its golden jubilee. The wood work is being installed by Irving and Casson of Boston.

A life-size picture of the late Florence M. Heberling, known because of her work for many years among the girls of Chinatown, will be unveiled this evening at a memorial service to her at the Rescue Society, 5 Doyers Street.

Pending the completion of a new rectory, which will not be until Spring, the Rev. Edward F. Leonard, pastor of St. Malachy's Church, in Forty-ninth Street west of Broadway, and his assistants have moved to the Knights of Columbus Club-Hotel, Eighth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. The church office is on the third floor and the priests are domiciled higher up.

The Rev. Dr. J. Valdemar Moldenhawer, collegiate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, will return to town Thursday from his Summer home at Rensselaerville, N. Y. He has been very ill all Summer. In August he underwent an operation in the Albany (N. Y.) Hospital for appendicitis.

The cornerstone of a new edifice for Bethany Evangelical Lutheran Church at Willow and Cottage Places, Yonkers, will be laid tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. W. O. Hill, the pastor, will officiate and the Rev. Adolf F. Mayer will preach the sermon.

The cornerstone of a new edifice and parish house of Christ Lutheran Church, Brinkerhoff Street, Jersey City, N. J., will be laid tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. L. G. Hause, the pastor, will officiate, and the Rev. John A. Wey, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, West Seventy-first Street, will make the address.

A tablet in memory of Professor Henry Fith, who died July 29, 1927, will be unveiled tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at Concordia Lutheran Collegiate Institute, Bronxville.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary emeritus of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, accompanied by his wife, returned this week from Europe where he attended four international religious conferences of which he is a member.

A corps exclusively for colored people will be opened by the Salvation Army tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at 206 West Sixty-first Street. Brigadier Alexander W. Ebbs, divisional commander of the metropolitan area, will officiate.

The only ordained woman minister in this city will serve this Winter on the staff of the Broadway Congregational Tabernacle at Fifty-sixth Street. She is the Rev. Louise Saxe Eby, who was graduated two years ago from Union Theological Seminary. She was ordained in the tabernacle last Spring after two years of post-graduate work at the Universities of Edinburgh and Marburg.

ORDERS HEALTH INQUIRY IN PANAMA CANAL ZONE

Secretary Good Notifies Publisher There That Hurley Will Investigate Charges.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Sept. 27.—Investigation of charges against the Health Department of the Panama Canal Zone and of Dr. Henry Goldthwaite, American health officer at Panama City, will bemade by Patrick J. Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War, according to a cablegram received today from Secretary Good by Nelson Rounsevell, publisher of The Panama American.

The Panama American, in a series of editorials signed by Mr. Rounsevell, attacked the administration of the Panama health office by Dr. Goldthwaite and contended that the spread of smallpox in the present epidemic warranted an investigation. Last Wednesday The Panama American began publication of a petition to President Hoover requesting an investigation, and the day before Mr. Rounsevell sent a cablegram to President Hoover and Secretary Good announcing the action taken.

Secretary Good acknowledged both messages, and in his reply to Mr. Rounsevell today he stated that Mr. Hurley would arrive here Oct. 21 and suggested presentation of the charges with evidence in support of them.

Mr. Rounsevell informed Secretary Good that the publication of a petition to the President would be discontinued and that no further charges would be published pending the findings of the investigator.

"We agree that all possible is now being done in the present spread of the disease," Mr. Rounsevell said in his cablegram.

The total number of cases of smallpox has reached 244, with six new cases reported today, as compared with thirteen the day before.

ISABELLE POPE TO WED.

Fiancee of Late "Billy" McClintock Will Marry Melvin Vooder.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancée of young "Billy" McClintock, whose sudden death in 1924 caused one of Chicago's most sensational murder trials, will be married tomorrow night to Melvin Vooder of Winnetka at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Pope, 910 Lake Avenue, Wilmette.

Announcement of the marriage comes on the heels of a partial settlement of the contest over McClintock's will. William D. Shepherd, the wealthy young orphan's guardian, who was acquitted of his murder, has signed a contract bringing to an end the long suits involving McClintock's $1,000,000 estate. Miss Pope has also signed.

The only hitch in complete settlement is the fact that McClintock's cousins are holding back.

EXPERT ADOPTS A BABY.

Dr. Louise Stanley, Head of Home Economics Bureau, Takes Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, has adopted a baby girl, following the example set by her friend and housemate, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, a few years ago.

Nancy, aged 18 months, joined early in September the family circle in the big old-fashioned house in Eighteenth Street which includes Mrs. Willebrandt, Miss Stanley and Miss Annabel Matthews, a Treasury Department solicitor, and which in Washington's inner circles is known as "The Brain Trust."

With the recent purchase by Mrs. Willebrandt of a house in Georgetown, however, partial dissolution confronted the "Brain Trust" and Dr. Stanley sent for Nancy, whose adoption had been considered for more than a year, so that there might still be a child in the house when little Dorothy, Mrs. Willebrandt's adopted daughter, goes with her to her new home.

Nancy comes from the University of Iowa, where she has been a "practics baby" from earliest infancy.

SOUSA DECORATED IN BED.

Bandmaster Is Too Ill to Keep Engagements in Syracuse.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Confined to his bed in a hotel here, John Philip Sousa was unable to conduct either of the two concerts of his band today.

This morning relatives found he was too weak to leave his room. He made an effort to carry out his afternoon engagements, but was compelled to return to bed.

It is believed a cold contracted in Colorado last week when a car carrying his band was derailed was aggravated in the trip East. He was decorated tonight in bed with the Order of the Phoenix by General Guido Verbeck of Manlius School.

"The changing mentality of women," Dr. Myerson declared, "represents an evolution which is very good for the human race. The fact that women are more free today and have opportunities that they never had before does not mean that women are more masculine, but that they are more human."

FAMILY GETS ESTATE OF F. F. FITZPATRICK

Property Is Appraised at $1,015,297, Not Including $448,750 Put in Trust Funds in 1926.

The estate of the Frederick F. Fitzpatrick was appraised at a net of $1,015,297 in the appraisal report filed yesterday with the State Tax Commission. Mr. Fitzpatrick, who was president of the Railway Steel Springs Company until its merger with the American Locomotive Company and then head of the latter company, died on Nov. 16, 1927. In 1926 Mr. Fitzpatrick created four trust funds totaling $448,750 for the members of his family, and these amounts were not included in the appraisal for transfer tax purposes. He was a resident of Westchester County.

The $1,015,297 estate also passes to the family. Mrs. Margaret N. Fitzpatrick, the widow, of 20 Maple Avenue, Larchmont, N. Y., receives $300,719. The three children, Paul J. Fitzpatrick and Frederick F. Fitzpatrick Jr. of the same address, and Mrs. Virginia F. Watkins of Blind Brook Lodge, Rye, N. Y., receive $238,192 each. In his will Mr. Fitzpatrick had left his residuary estate to the four members of the family in trust for five years and then outright except in the case of Frederick F. Fitzpatrick Jr., but this provision was set aside by Surrogate Slater.

The estate included real estate valued at $122,738 and stocks and bonds to the amount of $933,477. These included 2,000 shares of American Locomotive Company common at $212,750, 1,000 shares of American Locomotive Company preferred at $124,000, 416 shares of Seaboard National Bank capital stock at $327,184 and 2,000 shares of Loew's, Inc., capital stock at $112,250.

Bequest to Police Relief.

Bequests of $5,000 to four charities are contained in the will of Mrs. Clara Cahn, which disposes of an estate of about $150,000, and was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogate's Court. The Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, 121 West 105th Street, receives $2,500; the Sigmund Neustadt Memorial Fund, and the Cripppled Children's East Side Home at 157 Henry Street, $1,000 each, and the Police Relief Fund of the city of New York, $500. After small legacies are paid to nine grandchildren and two others, the residue of the estate goes to Mrs. Cahn's three children. Mrs. Cahn, the widow of Leopold Cahn, died on Sept. 20.

Old Glassware Left to College.

Mrs. Sarah E. Cook, widow of Charles T. Cook, left a collection of ancient glassware to Williams College, according to her will, which was filed for probate yesterday. Mrs. Cook died on Sept. 17 and left an estate estimated at "more than $10,000." After the payment of legacies to four grandchildren and nine servants, the residue goes to two sons.

COUNTS JAZZ CHURCH ALLY.

Kansas City Methodist Bishop Says It Reaches 30,000,000.

MONETTE, Mo., Sept. 27 (AP).—Jazz music, with some of its new tendencies, is seen as an aid to the Church by Bishop E. L. Waldorf of the Kansas City diocese of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"Jazz reigns in 10,000 halls in this country where no preacher will ever be heard," he said in an address before the St. Louis conference of the church here. "It catches probably 30,000,000 people that the Church will not affect. So it is that song hits which encourage smiling in the face of difficulty have a great opportunity for good."

"It may be that the lines about 'Mary and Me, the Baby Makes Three' have had a part indirectly in discouraging companionate marriage."

ESMOND CRITICIZES 'CODDLING' OF CONVICTS

Tells Magistrates at Oneonta That Reform of Prisoners Is a Secondary Matter.

Special to The New York Times.

ONEONTA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Coddling of criminals produces calamitous results, said Assemblyman Burton D. Esmond of Ballston Spa tonight at the conference of the State Association of Magistrates.

Mr. Esmond, who is vice chairman of the Crime Commission of the State, said in his address that the State should not be oblivious to the desirability of reforming those who offend against its laws, but that not all criminals are reformable.

Which are and which are not, he said, is a problem not determinable with scientific accuracy. The presumption may be indulged that the first offender is sometimes reformable and the repeating offender is ordinarily not reformable. Beyond such generalizations, he declared, neither science nor experience can give a trustworthy answer.

The first duty of the State is to protect its citizens, said Mr. Esmond. To the law-abiding "the State owes a duty paramount to any consideration of reformation or amelioration of the condition of those who war against society."

The Baumes laws, he said, have been generally approved by the people, the press and the courts, adding that criticism of life sentences come from the uninformed and the tender-hearted, whose symp

Stocks Break Sharply as Brokers' Loan Account Shows Further Inflation.

A wide decline in stocks, amid nervous and erratic trading conditions, was the market's answer yesterday to the expansion of $192,000,000 in brokers' loans, to the new maximum total of $6,761,000,000. There was a show of resistance at the start; in fact, many stocks opened moderately higher. But the double obstacle to higher prices—the increase in the Bank of England's rediscount rate and the fresh inflation of the loan account here had so undermined speculative opinion that the market was unprepared for the wave after wave of liquidation which struck it.

There was little resistance to this selling and no exhibition of fighting spirit in the leaders. Prices melted away with a rapidity that astonished Wall Street. As the price structure weakened, stops were caught, bears became bolder with their hammering tactics, and by midday the market was in full flight, with final quotations in many cases the lows for the day. It was evidently the lack of the powers of resistance exhibited by the leading issues, such as Steel common, General Electric, Radio and others of the sort, which accelerated the decline, and with two single exceptions, those of May 22 and Aug. 9, it was the year's widest break.

In the five trading days of this week, from Monday to Friday, there have been four days of decline and one of recovery. As measured by the average of fifty representative issues compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES, the net recession this week has been 12.14, of which a large share was accounted for by yesterday's drop of 7.08. The declines which have taken place have not only put an abrupt stop to the upswing which was in progress a month or so ago, but they represent a corrective reaction of major proportions. The question which now confronts the financial district is just how much of a recession will be necessary to once more put the market in a healthy condition. Possibly it will not be until the declines which have taken place are fully reflected in the brokers-loan figures.

The readjustments which are naturally expected as a result of the advance in its rediscount rate to 6½ per cent by the Bank of England have not yet taken place, adding a further note of uncertainty to the general international money situation. It is yet much too early to see indications of the possible results of this delayed piece of financial strategy. The obvious conclusion is that the differential of ½ per cent between the rate at London and at New York will be sufficient to throw the burden of financing Autumn international trade on our institutions. This, however, may not prove exactly true. Sterling was virtually unchanged yesterday, and there was apparent an uncertain atmosphere in all of the exchanges. The pressure for funds in our own markets was again a heavy one, with the spectre of month-end settlements again looming large in the account.

The weekly reports on the state of Fall trade emphasized the fact that business generally has retained its equilibrium and that steadiness is one of its chief characteristics. The trend in some of the heavier lines, notably steel, automobiles, building generally, lumber and similar merchandise, is toward lessened activity, counted a normal let-down in pace after an extraordinarily active Summer. Comparisons with a year ago naturally are difficult because of the sharp upswing in both trade and industry under way at that time.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Stocks were driven down at a furious rate yesterday, almost the entire Stock Exchange list yielding to the most aggressive selling pressure that had been seen in weeks. Only a handful of issues stood up against the onslaught. The rest of the market sold off with such ease as to discourage traders who might ordinarily have been induced to pick up stocks at the low levels. The selling came in waves, each one carrying stocks lower. Prices at the close were at or near the lowest levels of the day. United States Steel was off 6¾ points on the day, General Electric 12¾, Anaconda 5, Allied Chemical 10¾, Columbia Gas 10½, Consolidated Gas 8¼, Sante Fe 4¼, American Telephone and Telegraph 8¾, New York Central 7¼ and Radio 4½. Many explanations were offered for the wide break, but the $192,000,000 increase in brokers' loans announced on the afternoon before was believed to have given the signal for the downturn.

Speculation on Brokers' Loans.

After having had overnight to speculate on the causes for the $192,000,000 increase in brokers' loans this week, the financial community was as much at sea yesterday over a satisfactory explanation as when the news was flashed at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. With stock prices on the decline, there was every reason to believe that a reduction would be in order. On this score, however, it should be remembered that while the figures are as of the close of business on Wednesday, they do not actually take into account the changes in stock prices on that day, and it was on Wednesday that some of the severest declines were experienced. However, with a long list of new securities being brought out daily, the requirements for loans to carry these new issues automatically add to the total of brokers' loans. However, banking authorities in general are inclined to pay more attention to the changes in the figures of the loans over a period of weeks that to the net change of a single week.

Conspicuous Absences.

To some of the harassed speculators who looked on gloomily yesterday while the bottom seemed to be dropping out of the market it seemed highly significant that certain of the big financial figures who generally are looked upon as the overlords of the financial community were out of the city. Some were on the Pacific Coast, others in Canada and a few at near-by recreation places. Their absence was taken to mean that they had little interest in the market in its present phase, although it was believed that they would be in communication with their representatives here should the expected "turn" develop.

***

A Confused Outlook.

Most bankers and brokers were willing to admit yesterday that the money situation, so far as the immediate outlook is concerned, is more confused now than at any time this year. This is mainly because of the yet unknown effects of the advance of the British rediscount rate, and whether or not it is true, as many men suspected yesterday, that the burden of financing the Autumn international trade, particularly in agricultural commodities, will fall on the shoulders of this market. It now seems likely that this will be true, but it is yet far too early to make an accurate appraisal of the international money situation.

Distress Selling Completed.

Many Wall Street brokers expressed the opinion last night that the distress selling, which worked such havoc in the stock market yesterday, was about complete. It is expected that there will be some minor liquidation this morning because of the large number of margin calls which went out of the financial district last night, but with this out of the way the opinion that leading stocks should get some semblance of organized support was rather general in the financial district. Incidentally, Stock Exchange brokers were congratulating themselves yesterday at the comparatively small number of margin calls which it was necessary to send out. This, of course, was due to the demands that customers keep their margins at 30 to 50 per cent. Even in such markets as those of the last few days—unless he be operating in particularly volatile stocks—the customer with a 50 per cent margin has little to worry about.

Watching Steel.

Most Wall Street eyes were glued on the fluctuations of United States Steel common yesterday and its inability to give a good account of itself spread some measure of consternation and lots of gloom throughout the market. That mystical party "they" came in for lots of criticism, too. "Well, if they won't support Steel, they won't support anything," was the spirit with which many brokerage office customers signed sales slips. Of course, the market and those who watched it did not take into consideration the fact that it would have cost many millions of dollars to advance Steel, or even hold it pegged, in yesterday's swift decline. Every speculator in the Street who wants to sell something picks out Steel because of the excellent market maintained in it and the assurance that there always will be a near-by bid for the stock.

Scale Orders.

In such a market as yesterday's, scale orders are entirely ineffectual to stop the decline. They are broken through so quickly and are so readily absorbed, that at times they do not even check the decline. A case in point might be cited. The head of a big pool in a prominent industrial issue put in an order of protection for 2 points down from his market, agreeing to buy 1,000 shares every quarter down for the two points. His 8,000 shares were furnished to him at the rate of a thousand a minute, and he had it to do all over again. Scale buying in such a disorderly affair as was yesterday's market may be a fine means of accumulating wanted stock, but it is no barrier to a decline.

BIG JUMP IN STOCK OF STANDARD GAS

Rise of 40 Points in Price in Three Days Causes Report of Fight for Control.

NOW IN BYLLESBY'S HANDS

Company's Properties Cover Wide Territory—Officials Silent on Market Rumors.

An advance of 40 points in three days in the price of Standard Gas and Electric Company common stock on the New York Stock Exchange in a generally weak market brought in its wake yesterday rumors of a battle between powerful groups for control of the company. The stock opened at 219 yesterday, the closing price of the day before; soared to 243¾, the highest level in its history, and closed at 235½, up 16½ points. This followed a gain of 19¼ points on Thursday and one of 3¾ points on Wednesday. Prior to this movement the high record for the shares was 205. The low point this year was 80¾, or one-third of yesterday's high mark.

The Standard Gas and Electric Company is one of the few billion-dollar utilities in this country. Since its organization in 1910 it has been controlled by H. M. Byllesby & Co. of Chicago, who owns all of the 1,000,000 shares of $1 par 6 per cent preferred stock, which is a voting stock. There also are outstanding 1,560,841 no-par common shares, also with voting rights. Utility and Industrials, an investment trust organized and controlled by the Byllesby group last Spring, is believed to own sufficient Standard Gas common stock to prevent control from passing into other hands without the consent of Byllesby & Co.

Hydroelectric Securities.

The Hydroelectric Securities Corporation, which participated in forming the United States Electric Power Corporation recently, were holders of substantial blocks of Standard Gas stock, according to informed quarters in Wall Street, and through affiliations with Langley interests, bankers for American Water Works and Electric, are reputed to be building up a public utility system in the Central States in territory adjacent to that of Standard Gas and certain of its leading subsidiaries.

Officials of United States Electric Power last night would not comment on the reports that their plans had reference to any Standard Gas properties. J. J. O'Brien, head of the Byllesby system, who has been in New York City several days, left yesterday afternoon for Chicago, where the main offices of the company are located, without making any statement.

The principal companies controlled by Standard Gas, which the United States Electric Power and affiliated interests might find useful to their plans, are the Philadelphia Company, which serves the industrial territory of Pittsburgh and vicinity, and the Louisville Gas and Electric Company of Louisville, Ky. Standard Gas also has a substantial interest in Pacific Gas and Electric and controls Mountain States Power and other Pacific Coast properties. Both the Harrison Williams-Goldman Sachs and Harris-Forbes groups recently made public offers for stocks in certain of the independent Pacific Coast companies.

Byllesby & Co. Closely Held.

Byllesby & Co. is tightly controlled by the directors, who are reported to have undertaken some years ago an agreement whereby no director can dispose of his holdings except to other members of the board, thereby assuring permanence of control to the ownership. A small part of Byllesby & Co. voting stock is held outside of the company.

Byllesby officials in this city would not comment on the action of the stock or on the reports of competitive bidding for the shares in the market, and would not discuss rumors that Mr. O'Brien had visited New York utility interests with regard to a prospective affiliation. Both the Electric Bond and Share and North American groups have been referred to in Wall Street as possible allies of the Standard Gas group.

SALE OF STOCK RESTRAINED

Consolidated Power and Light Issue Involved in Fraud Charge.

Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May in Brooklyn signed a temporary order yesterday restraining the Consolidated Power and Light Corporation and Morris Singer from continuing the sale of stock in the corporation. The order was signed after Clarence W. Donovan, Deputy Assistant Attorney General, had submitted an affidavit alleging fraud in the sale of the stock.

Mr. Donovan charged that the Consolidated Power and Light Corporation was organized by Singer immediately after the Southern Industrial Utilities Corporation had been enjoined from selling stock, had taken over the assets of the latter and was selling stock on the same misrepresentation.

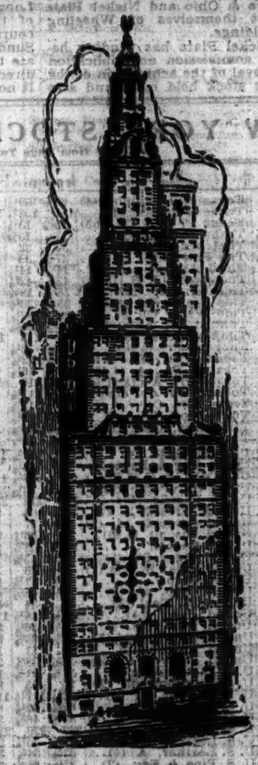
Individual Service Since 1784



INDIVIDUAL service is one of the principles on which the Bank of New York and Trust Company was founded by Alexander Hamilton in 1784.

In the one hundred and forty-five years of its existence, this bank has adhered to that principle, adopting new methods only as they were shown to contribute to the success of such a policy. In this way it has achieved a personal and cordial relation with its clients resulting in a sympathetic understanding otherwise difficult to attain.

ASK NOTE ISSUE TO BUY WHEELING

Van Sweringens, Through the Nickel Plate, Apply to I. C. C. to Authorize the Deal.

$20,000,000 ISSUE SOUGHT

This Would Be Used to Acquire Stock Held by Trustees Under Commission Order.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The Van Sweringen interests took another step today toward acquisition of control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad by the Nickel Plate, when the latter road filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission an application to issue $20,000,000 of 6 per cent three-year promissory notes, with the intention of purchasing from the Alleghany Corporation certificates of deposit for 76,795 shares of prior lien stock of the Wheeling, 9,857 shares of preferred stock and 112,000 shares of common stock.

It is set forth that the total cost of this purchase to the Nickel Plate, as of Oct. 1, will be $21,382,638, plus $733,033 interest, less $2,150,260 of dividends, or a net total of $19,965,410.

The Nickel Plate proposes to sell the notes at such a price that the net cost to it, including discount and commission but excluding the premiums, will not exceed 6.748 per cent a year. While no contract or other arrangement has been made, the proposition has been discussed with bankers and it is believed the notes can be sold for cash on that basis.

The proposed issue of notes, although payable three years after date, would be callable at the end of the first year at 101 per cent of par and accrued interest, and at the end of the second year at 100½ per cent of par and accrued interest.

Some months ago the Wheeling stock held by the Nickel Plate and other shares bought from the other two roads, the New York Central and the Baltimore & Ohio, by the Alleghany Corporation was transferred to a trustee, Governor E. R. Fancher of the Federal Reserve Bank at Cleveland, under a trust agreement approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a compliance with its anti-trust orders requiring the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Nickel Plate to divest themselves of Wheeling stock holdings.

The Nickel Plate has pending before the commission an application for approval of the acquisition of the Wheeling stock held by it and also of the purchase of the Wheeling stock held by the Alleghany Corporation. There is also pending before the commission the application of the Chesapeake & Ohio for authority to acquire the Nickel Plate, Wheeling and other lines sought to be included in a new Van Sweringen system.

If the latest move by the Van Sweringens is successful, it will amount to transferring ownership of the Wheeling stock from the Alleghany Corporation to the Nickel Plate until such time as the commission shall finally decide what is to be the ultimate disposition of control of the Wheeling.

OPTION NEAR EXPIRATION.

Nickle Plate Has Until Next Tuesday to Exercise Its Right.

The New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad, or Nickel Plate, took action yesterday to acquire from the Alleghany Corporation the latter's certificates of interest in stock of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad which was vested with a trustee under a recent agreement with the Interstate Commerce Commission. An option for this purchase was arranged when the stock was trusteed. It will expire on Tuesday.

Exercise of the option would give the Nickel Plate certificates of interest in 53 per cent of Wheeling stock outstanding. During the trusteeship none of the functions of ownership could be exercised.

Recently the Wheeling declared a back dividend of $24.50 on prior lien stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 26. This would involve a payment of $1,881,477 to the Nickel Plate as the new owner of the stock, thereby reducing its cost. Dividends on the 38,398 shares of prior lien already held by the Nickel Plate will total $940,751.

SANTA FE REPORTS BIG GAIN IN INCOME

Net for Eight Months Increased About $16,000,000 and for August $2,000,000.

OTHER STATEMENTS ISSUED

Improvement Shown by Chesapeake & Ohio and Western Roads—Canadian National Off.

Railroad earnings announced yesterday showed general increases from those reported a year previously. This was the case with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, which showed for the eight months a net operating income, including $2,493,000 of back mail pay, of $42,018,000, against $36,944,000 in the same period last year. In August net operating income was $8,543,000, exactly $2,000,000 more than in August, 1928. The Chesapeake & Ohio also reported increases, but the Baltimore & Ohio reported a decrease in net for August.

Other roads to gain were the Chicago Great Western, the Chicago & North Western, the Chicago & Eastern Illinois and the Illinois Central.

Reflecting the smaller Canadian wheat crop, the Canadian National Railways reported decreases in both gross and net receipts in August.

NORTHERN PACIFIC OUTLOOK

Road's President Is Hopeful That Earnings Record Will Gain.

Returning on the Aquitania yesterday, Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, said he was hopeful that earnings of the road in 1929 would show an improvement over those of last year. Traffic, he said, was holding up well in comparison with last year and should continue its lead. Discussing the application for merging of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern now before the Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Donnelly said:

"We feel that we have presented a pretty strong argument in favor of consolidation of the two roads and are hopeful that it will be accepted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. A decision is expected shortly."

Faster Washington-Montreal Trains.

The running time of trains between Washington, New York, Montreal and Ottawa will be cut 1 hour and 15 minutes on Sunday. It was announced yesterday by the Canadian National Railways. The trains affected are the Washingtonian from Montreal and the Montrealer from Washington. The New Haven will eliminate stops at Stamford, Bridgeport and Meriden, Conn., and the Pennsylvania, the Boston & Maine, the Central Vermont and the Canadian National also will expedite the service.

Rates of Freight Movement.

The average speed of freight trains in July was 13.4 miles an hour, the same as in July, the Bureau of Railway Economics reports. This was the highest average reached in any July and an increase of 0.3 of one mile from July, 1928. The daily average movement of a freight car was 23.1 miles, a record for July, and 1.3 miles greater than in July, 1928, and 2 miles greater than in July, 1927. The average load was 27.3 tons to a car, including less than carload lots, an increase of 0.7 of a ton from July, 1928, and of 0.3 from July, 1927.

Huge New Engines in Service.

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Five new locomotives, each 100 feet long, costing $100,000 and with the pulling power of 3,400 horses, were put into service today by the Boston & Maine Railroad. They can make the run from Mechanicville, N. Y., to Boston with a single stop, a trip that formerly required three stops en route for fuel and water.

MUNICIPAL ISSUES LIGHT NEXT WEEK

Seventy-three Listed for Total of $16,117,216, Against an Average of $31,555,574.

DALLAS TO OFFER $4,490,000

Blocks of Unsold Bonds Are Reduced—This Week's Sales Marked by Close Bids.

Another sharp reduction in new municipal financing will occur next week. The aggregate will be $16,117,216, representing the financial requirements of seventy-three communities, compared with this week's revised total of $25,841,457. The weekly average for the year to date is $31,555,574.

Of this week's total, the largest issue, that of $6,000,000 city of St. Louis improvement 4½s, failed to sell because of the size of the issue at this low interest rate. The city has set no date for the reoffering of the bonds.

Chief among next week's issues are $4,490,000 city of Dallas (Texas), 4½ per cent various improvement bonds which are to be awarded on Friday, and an issue of $2,000,000 Atlantic City (N. J.) convention hall bonds which have been scheduled for Thursday. All of the other issues up for sale next week are for amounts less than $1,000,000.

The relatively light offerings of new issues this week enabled municipal dealers to reduce materially the amount of bonds carried on their lists. Numerous syndicate accounts have been wound up this week and blocks of unsold bonds of other issues have been cut down appreciably. Despite the fact that many dealers are admittedly without any considerable amount of bonds, there is little inclination to bid up the market for new issues. Most of the sales this week were marked by close bidding.

Some Large Offerings Impend.

Several important pieces of municipal financing will be up for authorization shortly, among them $20,000,000 Chicago, West Park District elevated drive bonds, which will come up at the November election; $20,000,000 City of Detroit bonds to be offered probably next month; $6,000,000 City of Chicago Fire Department bonds, which will be voted on at the November election, and $3,000,000 City of Albany waterworks bonds which have already been authorized by the City Council.

The city of Austin, Texas, will be in the market about Oct. 20 with a new issue of $1,500,000 bonds, according to private advices received here yesterday. The city of San Francisco is endeavoring to find a buyer for the issue of $2,000,000 4½ per cent various improvement bonds which failed to sell on July 22.

At present there appears to be a strong demand for bonds of New York State municipalities. Insurance companies and other institutions are said to be the principal buyers. Out-of-town banks are doing little in the market at present, as has been the case for some months.

Due to a flood, the New Mexico Agricultural College at State College, N. M., was unable to market a bond issue of $90,000. According to a wire received here yesterday from H. L. Kent, president of the board of regents, the flood cut off the regular mail route to the town.

Municipal Bond Syndicates Close Books on Seven Issues

Closing of syndicate books on seven municipal bond issues totaling $64,126,000 which have been brought out in recent weeks was announced yesterday by Lehman Brothers as head of the syndicates. It was said this probably was the high-water mark for the week for a single house. It also was said that virtually all of the bonds had been sold.

The syndicates dissolved include the following: $50,000,000 City of Chicago 5% and 6 per cent notes, marketed in April; $5,000,000 State of Alabama 6 per cent bridge bonds, offered early in June, which account was managed by E. H. Rollins & Sons; $4,000,000 State of Tennessee 5% and 6 per cent notes, offered last week; $800,000 City of Montgomery (Ala.) 5s, offered in mid-August; $619,000 City of El Paso (Texas) 5s, offered early in August, and $380,000 Harrison (N. Y.) 5s and 5½s, marketed a fortnight ago.

Several other important syndicate accounts were wound up this week by other municipal dealers.

BOND MARKET WEAK, WITH MANY LOSSES

Convertibles Generally Decline, With A. T. & T. 4½s Off 7½ Points.

LOWS FOR WEEK NUMEROUS

In Some Instances Issues Reach the Lowest Point of Year—Some Show Strength.

The listed bond market weakened appreciably yesterday and many issues went to new lows for the week. In a few instances lows for the year were established. Convertible bonds were nearly all lower in sympathy with stocks. The principal losses in the active issues were recorded in American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s and International Telephone convertible 4½s, which were down 7½ and 7 points, respectively.

In the convertible list, Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1944 were off a point and the 5s of 1949, 1½ points. American International 5½s dropped 1½, Santa Fé 4½s, a point, Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, a point, and Commercial Investment Trust 5½s, 1¾ points. New Haven 6s were backed down half a point.

There were several strong spots in the list of railroad bonds but the majority of issues were unalbe to make much headway in the general selling movement which enveloped the security markets in general.

Union Oil of California touched a new low at 96½, off 2½ points. Oil, steel, sugar, rubber and other industrial issues closed very irregular.

Little interest was shown in the foreign bond group and prices showed no changes of importance. Trading in the individual issues was the lightest in several weeks.

United States Government bonds were irregular throughout the day. Selling was rather active at times in the fourth Liberty 4¼s, which closed with a net loss of 4-32, while the registered bonds of this issue were up 7-32. Other issues were up 6-32 to off 2-32.

STOCK ISSUE IS DOUBLED.

Houdaille-Hershey Approves Plan for 1,000,000 New B Shares.

A proposal to increase the authorized B stock from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 shares was approved by the Houdaille-Hershey Company yesterday. No change was made in the authorized amount of A stock. The board was authorized to issue any or all of the increased stock for the acquisition of securities or property of other corporations.

The number of shares of B stock which the board is authorized to sell to employes and officers of the corporation was increased to enable the company to carry out its original plan of employes' participation in ownership. The increase was made necessary by the recent acquisition of the General Spring Bumper Corporation and the Skinner Company, Ltd., of Canada.

DENY SAXONY LOAN REPORT.

Bankers Trust Only Renewed Credit Granted Last Year.

Cabled advices from Berlin yesterday that the Bankers Trust Company had concluded a loan of $20,000,000 with the State of Saxony, contingent on the consent of the Reich authorities, were denied yesterday at the offices of the bank. It was said that the transaction was merely the renewal of a credit granted by the Bankers Trust Company about a year ago, and that the amount involved was much less than the figure stated in the cables.

It was stated that the affair was strictly a banking transaction and that no public offering of bonds was involved.

MUNICIPAL BOND YIELD VIEWED AS ATTRACTIVE

Review by Halsey, Stuart & Co. Says Present Income Is Unusually Liberal.

The current municipal bond market offers more liberal income return than has been obtainable in some time, according to a review of the situation published by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. It is pointed out that values have been recognized in this field and that a sustained demand for high-grade tax-exempt obligations has existed during recent months. The review says:

"There has been a marked preference throughout the Spring and Summer months for bonds of long maturity, indicating that buyers have wished to avail themselves of the present prevailing attractive rates over an extended investment period. Recently a good demand has also developed for the shorter maturities, although the preference still runs to long-term bonds.

"There has probably been no more signal recognition of the values available in the tax-exempt field than that reflected in the increasing accumulation of municipal bonds by life insurance companies during the present year."

$26,331,000 BONDS OFFERED IN WEEK

Volume of New Financing Kept Small by Conditions in Stock and Money Markets.

PUBLIC UTILITIES IN LEAD

One Issue Accounts for Almost Half of Total Business—Municipal Loans Light.

New offerings of bonds continue to decrease in volume, the total for the week ended yesterday being only $26,331,000. Last week the aggregate was $47,966,500, and in the previous week it was $152,695,000. For the corresponding week last year the total was $58,500,000.

In view of the high rates ruling in the call money market this week and the irregularity in the movement of stock prices, investment bankers were not inclined to tax the market unduly with large offerings of bonds. Even the total of municipal bonds was smaller than had been expected. The reason for this was that the largest municipal issue scheduled for award this week, that of $6,000,000 City of St. Louis 4½s, failed to elicit any bidding because of the low interest rate on the issue.

The largest single offering of the week was that of $12,500,000 Tri-Utilities Corporation 5s which were brought out at a price of 96. All of the municipal loans were for amounts less than $1,000,000 each, the largest being the issue of $865,000 City of Memphis (Tenn.) 5s marketed at prices to net 4.70 to 5.50 per cent.

Only one offering of foreign bonds was made, this being that of $2,500,000 Province of Alberta 5s. The largest foreign bond issue scheduled for award during the week was that of $2,720,000 Province of New Brunswick bonds. These went to a group of Canadian banks.

The offering of bonds by groups this and last week follows:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Public utility	$10,200,000	$5,200,000
State and municipal	3,631,000	31,730,000
Foreign	2,500,000	11,036,500

Several important foreign loans are reported in various stages of negotiation.

W. T. GRANT COMPANY PLANS STOCK SPLIT-UP

Holders Would Get Rights to Subscribe at $30 Each for New Shares.

Plans for amending the charter of the W. T. Grant Company and splitting the stock on a two-for-one basis, with a subsequent offering of rights to stockholders to subscribe for additional shares at $30 each in the ratio of one new for every ten shares held, have been proposed in a letter sent to stockholders by C. E. Freeman, president. The stockholders will vote on Oct. 7 on the proposal, which involves an increase in the authorized number of no par shares from 550,000 to 2,000,000.

Based on yesterday's closing price of around $135 a share, rights will be worth approximately $7 each on the present stock, or $3.50 a share on the split-up shares. The directors believe earnings would justify continuing dividends at the present annual rate of $1 a share after the proposed split-up.

Under the plan the outstanding 538,900 shares would be increased to 1,185,580 out of 2,000,000 authorized. An offering of additional shares would yield about $3,823,400, which it is expected would be used by the company to open additional stores. Application will be made to list all of the stock to be issued on the New York Stock Exchange.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

Reaction on English Exchange Follows Early Gains—Credit in Fair Demand.

FRENCH STOCKS DECLINE

Trading, However, Is Almost at a Standstill—Merger Rumors Strengthen German Tone.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—In the absence of any material support from domestic sources the stock market today was largely dominated by New York influences. Yesterday's firmness in Wall Street was reflected in further early advances by the internationals, also a sharp rise in oils, although prices reacted sharply toward the close following today's weaker opening in New York.

Gilt-edge securities improved despite the unfavorable Stock Exchange movements today. The 5 per cent war loan advanced to £101 1-16 and the 3½ per cent conversion loan to £72 11-16. Activity among the industrials was confined mainly to Anglo-Americans. Hydro electric after rising further to 82¼ declined to 81¼. International holding was 11¾ and nickel fell to 59¾.

In the talking machine group His Master's Voice Gramophone was in renewed demand up to £7⅝. Columbia Gramophone also was higher at £12¾. The margarines continued to attract interest on rumors of a coming new capital issue and a bonus offer. Union at one time was £5¼ and subsequently £5½. Unie fell to £5¼ after £5 5-16 and Wireless B ordinary was lower at 59 and A ordinary was steady at 82½.

In the shipping section Royal Mail declined to 40 after a firm opening. Oils opened stronger on New York support but closed below their highest of the day. Royal Dutch was prominent with a rise to £36⅝. Anglo-American improved to £3 1-16. Rubber opened a shade better at 10d a pound, reacting to £9 5-16. The shares were dull. Trading in mining shares was quiet.

Short-term credit was in fair demand in Lombard Street, the overnight charge being 5¼ per cent. A feature of the discount market was the buying by the banks. October treasuries changed hands at 5⅝ per cent. Old bills called for 6 per cent. The Bank of England sold £283,767 of bar gold for France. Sterling on New York after easing to $4.85 7-32, firmed up to $4.85 11-32.

Paris Bourse Dull and Lower.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—With trading almost at a standstill a few offers were enough to cause further declines, though activity was so slight as to make today's Bourse negligible.

The pound sterling today fell below the figure where it was advantageous for French banks to import gold from England. Financial circles believe this drop, however, was due to the fact that many French bankers have been repatriating part of their assets held abroad in order to meet the third trimestrial settlement which comes at the end of this month.

The market closed generally on the day's lows, with the exception of rentes which mostly maintained yesterday's level. They closed as follows: The 3 per cents, 79.20; 1918 4s, 96.20; 1920 amortizable 5s, 130.40; 1928 5s, 102.90; 1920 6s, 104.90, and 1927 amortizable 6s, 111.75.

Tone Irregular in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Today's Boerse was dominated by bank shares and shipping stocks, which were pronouncedly firm. Handelsteile advanced 9 points, including Contango, following a rumor that other leading banks, including the Handelsteile and Danatbank, would probably follow the merger example set by the Deutsche Bank and the Disconto Gesellschaft. Other banks also profited. Danatbank advanced 4½ and the Dresdner and Commerce Banks 4 point each. Disconto Gesellschaft drew up even with the Deutsche Bank, both shares being quoted at 165.

Shipping stocks were stimulated by rumors that America intended to release sequestrated funds after ratification of the Young plan, while other rumors mentioned a coming merger between the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American Line, which caused the shares to advance 4½ and 5¼ points, respectively. In addition to the above two groups, Lahmeyer shares of the electricals sections were very firm, gaining 10 points. Otherwise the market opened several points weaker, but was able to recover part of the losses toward the close which was again slightly firmer though many groups were neglected.

The money market was tighter. Call loans were 7 to 9½ per cent.

GAIN IN THE CITY WAS 8%

Percentage of Outstanding Charge Accounts Is Decreased, but Only Slightly.

The reporting department stores in this district had a substantial increase in sales for August, compared with the same month last year, and all localities had at least a small increase, according to the monthly review of credit and business conditions of the Federal Reserve Agent at New York. Totals sales were 4.2 per cent higher, although there were five Saturdays in the month. In New York City the daily average of sales reported was 8 per cent higher than a year ago.

Stocks of merchandise on hand in department stores are reported as slightly higher than a year ago, but the rate of turnover is said to be somewhat more rapid than in the same month of 1928. A slight decline in the percentage of outstanding charge accounts also was noted.

In New York City the amount of stock on hand as compared with the month in 1928 was unchanged. The outstanding gain in stock sales was in toys and sporting goods, which increased 22.2 per cent, while stocks on hand increased 1.2 per cent. PRICES IN JAPAN DECLINE.

Government's Retrenchment Policy Continues to Affect Business.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The Japanese Government's retrenchment policy continues to affect business, although financial conditions in Japan are improving, the Department of Commerce stated today.

Commodity prices are declining, the department said, and the Tokio retail price index is reported by the Bank of Japan to have fallen to 177.8 (based on July, 1914, prices), which is the lowest point since 1922, the recent drop being the sharpest in many months past.

"Yen exchange continued to show signs of strengthening with little fluctuation during August," the department said. "The New York telegraphic rate ranged from a low of $0.4658 to $0.4695, with an average for the month of $0.4669, compared with $0.4556 in the preceding month.

"The national debt of Japan totaled 5,890,000,000 yen on Aug. 31, an increase over the previous month of 8,000,000 yen which appeared wholly in domestic loans. August distribution was 4,439,000,000 yen in domestic loans and 1,451,000,000 in foreign obligations."

SAME TERMS TO BANKERS

Stock of Oregon Concern Must Be Deposited by Oct. 19—E. W. Clark Advises Acceptance.

Holders of each ten common shares of the Portland Electric Power Company have received offers of the choice of $300 in cash or twenty-two shares of common stock of the Public Utility Holding Corporation of America, it was announced yesterday by the Harris-Forbes, American Founders and United Founders group, which recently acquired a controlling interest in the Oregon company from the E. W. Clark interests of Philadelphia. The terms offered the minority stockholders are the same as those made to the bankers, it was reported.

On this basis, and including offers made for preferred shares outstanding, the purchase value of the Portland (Ore.) utility is about $20,750,000. Details of the offer of the Public Utility Holding Corporation are contained in a letter to stockholders from E. W. Clark & Co. in Philadelphia.

To the holders of each ten shares of 6 per cent non-cumulative second preferred stock of the Portland company are offered $300 in cash or twenty-four shares of common stock of the Public Utility Holding Corporation of America, at the option of stockholders, and to the holders of each ten shares of 7 per cent prior preference stock of the Portland company are offered twenty-eight shares of common stock of the Public Utility Holding Corporation. Fifty cents a share will be deducted from the price paid for stock sold for cash for expenses and compensation. No allowance will be made for dividends accrued on either of the preferred stocks.

Scrip for Fractional Shares.

The offer includes the purchase of shares of stock of the Portland company in less than ten-share lots, but the Public Utility Holding Corporation will be under no obligation to deliver certificates for any fractional shares or warrants, but will deliver in lieu thereof scrip certificates expiring on Nov. 15, 1934, which may be combined with other similar scrip certificates and exchanged for one or more whole shares and warrants.

Holders of the Portland stocks must deposit their stock on or before Oct. 19, unless the time is extended, with either E. W. Clark & Co., Philadelphia; the Chase National Bank, New York, or the First National Bank, Portland, Ore., which will act as depositaries. If less than 185,000 shares of prior preference, second preferred and common stocks, including at least 100,000 shares of common stock, are deposited on or before Oct. 19, the purchaser has the right to take up and pay for the amount of stock deposited or to refuse to complete the purchase. The purchase is also conditioned on the approval by counsel of all legal matters connected with the offer and acceptance thereof.

The Clark firm announced that they, as a firm, and all individual members, had accepted the offer with respect to all stocks of Portland Electric Power of the classes named owned by them, and they recommended to the stockholders that they accept the offer.

Assets of Holding Company.

The Public Utility Holding Corporation states that as of Sept. 22, 1929, it had net assets of over $50,000,000, consisting of cash and stock or other securities of a diversified group of domestic public utility companies, valued at them current market prices, a portion of which was purchased from the organizers at a profit to them but at prices less than quoted market prices at the date of purchase.

Each share of common stock of the Public Utility Holding Corporation will carry a warrant, non-detachable, until Sept. 30, 1930, entitling the bearer to purchase one share of such common stock at any time without limit as from time to time constituted at $20 a share, subject to the provisions of the warrant respecting combinations and split-ups of stock and consolidation or dissolution of the issuing corporation. F. S. Burroughs of Harris, Forbes & Co., is president of the new holding company.

PRICE RANGE SMALL ON COTTON MARKET

Contrary Influences Prevent Wide Fluctuations—Close Is 2 to 8 Points Lower.

DECEMBER FORCED DOWN

Southern and Western Interests Hedge—Local Relations With New Orleans Change.

Torrential rains in sections of Georgia and South Carolina had a steadying influence on prices on the Cotton Exchange yesterday. Although hedging pressure, from sections of the Mississippi Valley and Western States, where conditions continued to be excellent for harvesting cotton, carried December into new low ground for the movement, the demand for near months on a basis of 18½ cents maintained quotations within a 10-point range, so that the market closed with a loss of 2 to 8 points on the day.

The suspension of a cotton firm in Liverpool and a break of nearly a cent a pound in Alexandria weakened foreign prices for both spots and contracts and over-night selling orders caused a slightly lower range of quotations here and in New Orleans. As December approached 18½ cents, scale buying orders for trade and speculative account developed at each point of recession, and the demand for contracts exceeded the supply.

Relations between New York and New Orleans shifted further as October sold about 85 points over quotations on the Southern exchange at one time, while the December spread widened to 19 points, as compared with 9 points a few weeks ago.

Week-end figures showed a decrease in port receipts, as compared with last year, and an increase in the excess of receipts over shipments at interior towns. Into-sight figures fell below those of the corresponding week of last season.

GRAIN TIE-UP THREATENED.

Canadian National Railways to Start Apportioning of Cars.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 27 (Canadian Press).—Threat of a grain blockade in rapidly filling lake-head elevators today brought the first move from railway officials. A system of car rationing for shipments from prairie points to the head of the Great Lakes is to be placed in effect on the Canadian National Railways lines on next Tuesday, Oct. 1, it was announced.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has made no move to combat a tie-up, although officials of the company have conferred with grain interests and are ready to place a parallel car-rationing program in effect on short notice. The only congestion on the Canadian Pacific now is at the lake head, W. M. Neal, general manager of Western lines, said late today.

Grain stored at the lake head today showed an increase of 1,000,000 bushels over yesterday and approached within 16,500,000 bushels of the 86,000,000-bushel capacity.

WHEAT PRICES FALL ON STOCK WEAKNESS

Persistent Selling by Longs Offsets Buying and the Close Is at Net Losses.

LIVERPOOL IS UNCHANGED

Corn Is Depressed and Finishes Lower—Oats and Rye Decline in Sympathy.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—The wheat market developed a reactionary tendency today, the weakness in stocks having some effect. There also was rather persistent selling in small lots by scattered longs which finally offset buying by houses with Northwestern connections. The finish was at the bottom, with net losses of 1⅛ to 2¼ cents.

There was some buying early by houses with Northwestern connections, and both Minneapolis and Duluth mills reported an excellent flour demand, one Minneapolis mill making the largest single day's sales in its history. The Minneapolis market was strong early, but broke late and and finished ⅞ to 1⅝ cents lower, while Winnipeg was off 1 to 1¾ cents. Buenos Aires closed 1⅛c to 1¼c lower.

Wheat traders were much less confident of the bull side after the close and aggressive buying of bids was in evidence. A failure in the Liverpool cotton market was a factor in causing a c'line of over 1 penny in the grain market there early, but there was a strong rally, with the finish unchanged to ⅛ penny higher.

Export demand was slow, with sales of 200,000 bushels estimated in all positions and London cabled that No. 1 hard Winter afloat sold at $1.29 per bushel, equal to about 7 cents under Chicago December.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 1,626,000 bushels; week ago, 1,749,000 bushels; last year, 3,445,000 bushels. Shipments, 1,045,000 bushels; week ago, 762,000 bushels; last year, 1,171,000 bushels.

Local operators were on the selling side of corn and the finish was ⅞ to 1⅝ cents lower, the latter on the September, which was as heavy today as it was strong yesterday, although country offerings were much smaller. The best buying of the deferred deliveries was by holders of bids. Buenos Aires closed ½c lower.

Primary receipts of corn today, 805,000; week ago, 811,000; last year, 628,000. Shipments, 493,000; week ago, 386,000; last year, 396,000.

Weakness in other grains and liberal country offerings to arrive caused a decline of ⅞ to 1¼ cents in oats after the market had shown a firm undertone early. Bids of 60 cents, track Chicago, for oats to arrive resulted in bookings of 130,000 bushels, mainly from Illinois and Iowa. Rye closed 1¼ to 1¾ cents lower, with wheat, the weakness in the latter more than offsetting buying of December and March by a cash house on scale orders.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

CHECK PAYMENTS REFLECT ACTIVITY

Increase Shown Over Preceding Week and a Year Ago—Steel Operations Ebb.

SOFT COAL OUTPUT GAINS

Crude Petroleum Production Also Advances—Cotton and Cattle Receipts Smaller.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Commercial transactions, as reflected by the volume of check payments covering the week ended Sept. 21, were considerably larger than in either the preceding week or the corresponding period of 1928, according to today's weekly statement of the Department of Commerce.

Operations in steel plants continued to reflect further recession as compared with recent weeks, but were on a higher level than at this time last year.

The production of bituminous coal during the reported week was greater than in either the preceding week or the same period of a year ago.

Crude petroleum production also showed gains over both periods. The receipts of cotton were somewhat smaller than a year ago. Cattle receipts at primary markets showed a decline from last year, while receipts of hogs showed a gain. The movement of commodities into consumption, as reflected by data on freight car loadings, covering the latest reported period, continued above the corresponding period of 1928.

The general level of wholesale prices was fractionally lower than in the preceding week and showed a decline of about 4 per cent from the same period of last year. Iron and steel prices and prices for copper showed no change from the preceding week, but were higher than a year ago.

Cotton prices were lower than in the preceding week, but showed a fractional gain over last year.

Bank loans and discounts showed expansion as compared with both the preceding week and the same period of 1928. Interest rates on call funds averaged higher than in either period, while rates on time money, showing no change from the previous week, were higher than a year ago.

Stock prices showed a gain as compared with the preceding week, being higher also than a year ago. Prices for bonds showed no change from the previous week but were lower than last year. Business failures were less numerous than in either the previous week or the same period of 1928.

The business indicators for the week ended Sept. 21, 1929, as compared with those for the week ended Sept. 22, 1928 and with the 1923-25 average of 100 were given as follows:

BEETLE QUARANTINE ON FARMS IS LIFTED

Department of Agriculture Removes Bans on Products of Affected Areas, Flowers Excepted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—All restrictions on the interstate movement of farm products in the area covered by the Japanese beetle quarantine have been removed by the plant quarantine and control administration under an order issued today by R. W. Dunlap, Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

Restrictions on the movement interstate of cut flowers will remain in force until Oct. 15. Restrictions on the movement of nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock are in force throughout the year and are not affected by the order.

WOOL MARKET HESITANT.

Reaction at London Brings Activities to a Standstill.

BOSTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "World markets for wool have been more or less at a standstill this week, especially in Europe and this market. The slump in prices at London has had its effect here, and especially on fine wools which are about 5 per cent lower than before the London sales. Wools of three-eighths grade and lower are fairly steady at former rates.

"Of 4,000,000 pounds of wool offered in the Albuquerque sale, about 15 per cent was carried over. Prices at the close ruled in the clean range landed Boston of 75 to 80 cents, mostly. Some wools brought a little more."

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—A good selection, amounting to 10,606 bales, was offered at the wool sales today. Demand was slow. Fine sorts were steady at current rates, but lower grades were irregular and in buyers' favor. Withdrawals were frequent.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—6¼ per cent for the best names. Thursday—6¼ per cent for the best names. The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

Weather Eases Retail Turnover.

A slight slowing up of retail turnover of Fall merchandise, reflecting a recurrence of warmer weather, was noted during the week. The retail business thus far this month compares very well with the same period last year. Manufacturers see in the lull a chance to catch up with orders which in a number of lines have passed deliveries ahead by from two to four weeks. At this stage retail stocks are light and warm weather now means much less than it would a month from now as far as turnover and stocks are concerned.

To Promote Spiral Hose.

Promotion of entirely new spiral knit silk stockings of superfine quality was decided on yesterday at a meeting of hosiery manufacturers. The hose will carry a trade-mark of the organization to be formed of manufacturers having 300-needle or finer machines equipped to turn them out. Licenses to use it will probably be issued. The tentative name chosen for the organization is the Spiral Knit Hosiery Guild. A definite program will be submitted at a meeting next Friday. Chairman D. L. Galbraith presided.

***

Greeting Card Orders Small.

Initial orders for St. Valentine's, Easter and Mother's Day greeting cards are beginning to reach the market from retailers, but dealers complain that the purchases are smaller in quantity than in previous years. The same condition prevailed in early ordering of Christmas cards, it is stated, and at present the reorder business for the holidays is still far under the average volume. Credit conditions are causing concern, and one jobber reports he has placed more accounts with his attorneys for collection this year than in any two previous seasons.

No Shift in Dress Price Lines.

Makers of popular-priced apparel for women see no probability of a shift in price lines as a result of the greater production cost of dresses embodying the new silhouette. In other words, the $3.75, $6.75 and $10.75 dividing lines will be continued. This will be done at some loss of profit per garment, except in cases where there is successful "sharpshooting" at piece-goods prices, but there is one powerful factor which promises to offset this. It is the absence of surplus stocks—due to the later cutting and more active retail buying resulting from the style change—and the strong probability that the season-end losses usually taken from such stocks will be absent this season.

See Colored Shirts for Spring.

Manufacturers of better grade shirts see a continued vogue for colored shirts and will feature them in lines to be opened in October and November for Spring delivery. Color ranges will be expanded, although blues are expected to retain their leadership. Producers see a trend toward smaller designs, with the best grades getting away from decorations into the finer stripings. Broadcloths and fine woven madrases are held the leading fabrics. For the early season the better lines will stress collar-to-match styles, the trend later swinging into the collar-attached effects. Collar points will be slightly shorter.

***

Fibre Baskets in Colors Selling.

Fibre scrap baskets made up in all popular colors are now being offered the home furnishings trade. The articles have been produced in two styles, onein plain colors and the other decorated with a Godey print. The latter, which retail at about $2.39, have proved more popular, although costing 80 cents more than the plain type. Production of the scrap baskets is an outgrowth of the manufacture of clothes hampers of the same material. The latter were introduced a year ago and have been selling in satisfactory volume.

Huth Fur Auction Ends.

The annual Fall fur auction of Frederick Huth & Co. ended here yesterday with sales aggregating $3,250,000. The final day realized $600,000. Bidding was the most active of the whole sale, with silver fox, beaver, Kamchatka red fox and gray fox in the foreground. "Silvers" sold to $345 for a prime three-quarter pelt. The best red fox, a Kamchatka skin, brought $98. These were the best prices received for the rest of the important articles sold yesterday. Lynx, $73; fisher, $112.50; white fox, $77; blue fox, $125; cross fox, $285; gray fox, $5.60, and beaver, $45. Prompt day for this sale will be Oct. 23.

Small Gain in Window Glass.

The expected marked stimulus in demand for window glass, already overdue, has not yet developed and buying of this commodity was only slightly more active during the week, the American Glass Review will say today. With production now well below normal for this time of the year, however, the demand is sufficient to absorb output and is making some inroads on factory warehouse stocks. The situation in the plate glass market continues quite satisfactory. Demand is well in excess of the seasonal average and production is in keeping with trade requirements.

***

Bituminous Market Firm.

Prospects of better profits for bituminous producers are bright at the present time, Seward's Journal will say today. Demand is gaining in force, a heavier tonnage is moving and prices are advancing in some fields and becoming firmer in others. Operators who have raised asking prices have lost business in some cases, but the orders received at the higher figures have compensated for such losses. In the anthracite coal trade the past week has been the best of the year to date. Retailers are enjoying excellent business and are buying freely themselves.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A fair amount of gray goods was moved here yesterday, with a firmer tone to printcloths a feature. Spot business was done in 38½-inch 64-60s at 7¾ cents, and similar shipments of 38½-inch 60-48s were sold at 6¾ cents. October-November shipments of the latter were traded in at an eighth less. Buyers of 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings paid 8¼ cents for them. That price was also paid for 36-inch 4.25s, while 36-inch 56-60, four-yard sheetings brought 8¼ cents. In the specialties there was some buying of Eastern 37½-inch 4.87-yard sateens at 11½ cents. Southern goods of the same construction sold at an eighth less. In the fine yarns cloths business was done in 40-inch 88-80, 3.50-yard combed lawns at 11½ cents.

AUSTRIAN TRADE IS SPOTTY.

But Boom Continues in Iron, Steel and Machinery.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Austrian business conditions are spotty and the general tone is increasingly pessimistic, John A. Embry, acting commercial attaché at Vienna, reported to the Department of Commerce today. The reasons for this feeling, he explained, are a disappointing harvest, an unprofitable tourist season, unsatisfactory business at the Vienna fair, continued tightness of money and uncertainty over the political situation.

Boom conditions continue in the iron and steel and machinery industries, Electro-chemical, paper, coal, shoe, leather and ready-made clothing branches are well occupied, the report continued. Depression prevails in the textile, lumber and automobile industries.

Recipients of unemployment relief on Sept. 15 numbered 102,000, a decline of 2,000 in a month.

Unfilled orders in the cotton spinning mills at the end of July totaled 9,100,000 pounds.

BUILDING INCREASES IN THE LARGE CITIES

Six Months' National Survey Shows Gain Over Same Period Last Year.

YONKERS HEADS THE LIST

Had Per Capita Expenditure of $122.64—New York City Is Second With $115.35.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Building permits calling for an expenditure of $1,421,106,668 were issued in the first half of 1929 in eighty-five cities having a population of 100,000 or over. This represents an increase of three-tenths of 1 per cent as compared with the amount expended in the comparable period of last year, according to a survey by the Department of Labor.

Yonkers, with an estimated population of 121,900, led with a per capita expenditure of $122.64. New York, with a population of 6,017,500, came second, with $115.35.

Per capita expenditures by other cities in New York State follow:

Albany, $68.53; Buffalo, $13.91; Rochester, $26.10; Syracuse, $50.11, and Utica, $10.54.

The expenditure per capita in some of the other cities covered by the survey follows:

Boston, $38.06; Camden, N. J., $13.05; Chicago, $37.68; Detroit, $40.51; Hartford, Conn., $68.81; Long Beach, Cal., $166.08; Miami, Fla., $12.12; Newark, N. J., $27.43; New Haven, Conn., $22.24; Paterson, N. J., $19.84; Philadelphia, $28.36; Pittsburgh, $26.46; Trenton, N. J., $12.40; Washington, $69.53.

Of the total expenditure, the department said, 64.1 per cent was for residential buildings, with apartment houses accounting for the largest part of this type, with $353,234,280. Hotels ranked second in residential buildings with a valuation of $243,345,689, and one-family dwellings third with $212,357,370.

There was a decrease of 1.3 per cent in the cost of residential building, but an increase of 6.6 per cent in the cost of non-residential building. Valuation of permits for hotels increased from $76,717,000 in the first half of 1928 to $243,345,689 in the first half of 1929. The valuation of permits for public buildings increased from $9,819,047 to $45,997,805.

"The large increase of $36,678,258 for public buildings comes at an opportune time," the department said. "The erection of public buildings and works is highly desirable when there is a drop in general building, and such construction work can do much to stabilize employment in the building trades and the building supply trades as well."

GREETS ITALIAN ENGINEERS.

Mayor Welcomes Group on Way to Congress in Tokio.

A delegation of Italian engineers, led by Senator Luigi Luiggi, who are en route to the world engineering conference in Tokio, called yesterday at the City hall and were received by Mayor Walker. They were presented to the Mayor by General William Barclay Parsons, consulting engineer on subway work. Since their arrival here last Monday they have been the guests of the American Engineering Societies.

Senator Luiggi told the Mayor that it seemed to him and his colleagues a wonder that New York handles its avalanche of traffic so well in such comparatively narrow streets. Mayor Walker, welcoming the visitors, said that such tours afforded a splendid opportunity for an exchange of ideas among engineers and he looked forward to the day when American and European engineering schools should have an exchange of students and professors.

In a tour of the city the Italian engineers inspected the new subways, the Hudson River bridge, the Holland Tunnel and the Bronx River Parkway. They left here last night for the Pacific Coast by way of the Canadian Pacific Railroad and will sail from Seattle for Tokio on Oct. 5.

Accompanying Senator Luiggi are the following Italian engineers who are official delegates to the congress:

Professor FRANCESCO MAURO, vice president of the Technical Institute of Milan.
Professor LUIGI LOMBARDI of the Royal School of Engineers of Rome.
Professor GIULIO ANNONI of the Royal School Engineers of Milan.
Signor JACOBINI, chief of electrical railway at the Ministry of Communications, Rome.
Signor LAVALLE, chief construction engineer, Railway Department, Rome.
Signor CORBELLINI, traction engineer, Railway Department, Rome.
Signor PALLUCCHINI, general inspector, Inland Navigation and Hydrologic Service, Venice.
Signor ROMANO, railway construction engineer, Rome.
Signor EMILIO ARE BOBBIANI, irrigation engineer, Milan.

HELD IN SMUGGLING PLOT.

Richard Bieshuns Accused of Helping to Bring in Watches.

Richard Bieshuns was held in $15,000 bail by United States Commissioner Cotter yesterday on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle watches and watch movements into this port. The defendant is charged with being an associate of Louis Poller, who is under $15,000 bail on charges of bringing in two shipments of Swiss watches and movements.

The arrest of Bieshuns followed the discovery of documents in the possession of Poller which directed the latter, a truckman, about the delivery of the contraband. The directions were written on a letterhead which described Bieshuns as a dealer in chocolates at 436 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn. Federal agents reported that there is only a shoe store at this address.

Alvin McK. Sylvester, the Federal prosecutor, said that the case against Poller and Bieshuns would be presented to the grand jury within a few days and that the evidence against Paul Rabkin and Sol Rubman, held in bail on a similar charge, had already been presented and that a return by the grand jury is expected on Monday.

Fire started by a pipe which he had been smoking yesterday morning caused the death of Patrick O'Donnell, 70 years old, who was alone in his three-room apartment at 142 West Ninety-sixth Street. He was overcome in bed.

MANY NEW DEALS PENDING

Old Morgan Holding at 47th St. Sought for Apartment Project —Schulte Interests Buy.

The activity along Second Avenue, which in recent weeks has followed in the wake of the city's announcement of the proposed Second Avenue subway, gains force daily with announcements of new deals closed and reports of deals in the contract stage. Operators and investors announced purchases of tenement buildings along the avenue yesterday, while reports of other important transactions were current in realty circles.

Negotiations were said to be well advanced for the sale of 1,511-19 Second Avenue, southwest corner of Seventy-ninth Street. This is a plot of 10,720 square feet, fronting 102 feet on the avenue and 105 feet on the street, improved with four-story flats.

Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum, Inc., operators, who recently bought the northwest corner of Second Avenue and Forty-seventh Street from J. P. Morgan, are negotiating for a resale of the site for improvement with a large apartment house.

A feature of activity along the route of the proposed subway is the sale of holdings that have been held in one ownership for upward of fifty years.

The Schulte Real Estate Company followed up its recent purchases with another deal yesterday. This involves the two four-story buildings at 1,623 and 1,635 Second Avenue, between Eighty-fourth and Eighty-fifth Streets, on the west side of the avenue. The buildings are on a plot 50 by 100 feet and had not changed hands in forty-seven years, according to George A. Bowman, broker in the deal. The seller was Mrs. Ada K. Reid, who was represented by George Mercer & Son, brokers.

Celia Lechner sold through Samuel Sason and Arthur Lichtner, brokers, the apartment property at 1,470 Second Avenue, southeast corner of Seventy-second Street. The property is 27 by 86 feet and was sold for all cash above mortgages aggregating $84,250.

Bachrach & Rosenstock, operators, added to their Second Avenue holdings by purchasing the four-story tenement house at 464, adjoining the northeast corner of Twenty-sixth Street. Friedlander & Abramchik were the brokers.

Through their west side office, Pease & Elliman sold to a physician the three and one-half story house at 256 West Ninetieth Street, between West End Avenue and Broadway, for the estate of Herman Conheim. The house is on a lot 20 by 100 feet and will be used by the purchaser as a residence and office.

Maurice Holt, operator, has purchased a six-story elevator apartment house containing eighty apartments and six stores. This parcel is located on the northwest corner of Broadway and 189th Street, and is built on a plot 110 feet on 189th Street and 154 feet on Broadway.

HITS ELASTIC HOTEL RATES.

E. C. Green Tells Hotel Association Practice Aids Tourist Camps.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—Hotel executives were urged today by E. C. Green, president of the New York State Hotel Association, to continue to give a maximum of service and abun "elastic rates." To compete with the serious competition now offered by farm and village homes and tourist cabins or cottage camps, Mr. Green spoke before the delegates to the American Hotel Association of the United States and Canada in convention here.

In condemning the practice of "elastic rates," where hotels in a congested period are inclined to raise their rates, Mr. Green declared that "the sooner all hotels adopt a standard rate the sooner they will overcome to an appreciable extent, the inroads which the tourist camps have made in the hotel business.

"All hotels should post their rates in their guest rooms, he said.

TEST SUIT WITHDRAWN.

Dwelling Law Defenders Win Fourth Case by Realty Firm's Action.

The Namreh Realty Company yesterday requested the State to consent to a withdrawal of its suit against Tenement House Commissioner William F. Deegan, instituted for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the multiple-dwelling law passed by the 1929 State Legislature. The action of the realty firm marks the unsuccessful termination of the fourth court case attacking the constitutionality of the measure.

According to Harold Riegelman, who served as Special Assistant Attorney General in defending the law against the test suits, the action was started to enjoin Commissioner Deegan from enforcing the sections of the statute requiring fire-retarding walls and ceilings in business spaces of multiple dwellings.

"That section of the law," Mr. Riegelman said yesterday, "was based on data placed before the commission for the revision of the tenement house law showing that stores are a prolific source of fire in multiple dwellings and that the resulting hazards can be minimized by slowing up the progress of the flames through the walls and ceilings of the business space."

One test suit against the law was dismissed by the Court of Appeals, two others have been withdrawn and a fifth, the Goldschlag case, is in the hands of Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan for decision.

Warren S. Gault, an official of the W. T. Grant Company store chain, has leased for a term of years the residence of Major John F. Fairchild in Ancon Avenue, Pelham Heights. Murray B. Parks was the broker.

Charles M. Reagle, vice president of the Cooper-Bessemer Corporation, Grove City, Pa., has purchased a residence of eleven rooms and four baths in Cotswold, Greenburgh, from the Triune Construction and Development Corporation. The buyer will occupy about Nov. 1. George Howe, Inc., negotiated the sale.

WHITE PLAINS VALUES UP.

$20,000,000 Gain in Assessed Value of City's Realty.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 27.—An increase of more than $20,000,000 in the assessed valuation of the city of White Plains is seen today in the announcement by Tax Assessor William J. Weise of the assessment rolls for 1930. The value of real property in the city is given as $159,119,495, an increase of $22,334,664 over that of last year. Of the total increase $12,170,965 was the advance in the valuations as given in last year's assessments.

The remaining $9,684,950 was added by new buildings, the assessor said. Exempt property was valued at about $31,000,000. This includes all of the county office buildings and county land holdings. White Plains being the county seat of Westchester County.

BUSINESS SPOTTED AS QUARTER ENDS

Trade Reports Show Varying Trends With Several Lines Noting Good Gains.

COMPARISONS INADEQUATE

Because of Sharp Upswing in Same Period Last Year They Fail to Reflect Early Activity.

Trade and industrial reports are spotted near the close of the present quarterly period, which has been distinguished by economic phenomena in which strictly commercial trends have been eclipsed by financial and speculative movements, according to the weekly trade and business reviews. They point out that because of the sharp upward swing a year ago comparisons of the present with last year fail to show the gains registered early this year.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of business says in part:

"It is important, in viewing the lessened momentum of the great basic steel industry, to consider the unparalleled record already made this year, and the present slackening seems a not unnatural phase. An offset, moreover, has appeared in the quickened activities in numerous other branches of enterprise, which are responding to the stimulus of a changing season, and footwear and the wide range of textile lines have been prominent in the broadening of operations.

Commodities Also Decline.

"In commodities, as in stocks, the present week was marked by an excess of declines. The easing in wholesale quotations, however, was by no means general, although in Dun's list 33 of a total of 55 changes were in a downward direction. That margin of reductions was considerably wider than was witnessed last week, and it contrasted with a slight upward trend a year ago.

"The relative stability of trade, which on many occasions has contrasted sharply with speculative disorder, is a reassuring feature, and quarterly insolvency returns soon to be compiled give promise of being comparatively favorable."

Bradstreet's State of Trade says, in part:

"In lighter lines of steel there is some sagging shown in new buying and backlogs are being reduced, but there has been enough buying of steel rails and cars to indicate that losses in tonnage orders in some lines may be partly offset by gains in others. The largest single order for steel rails ever recorded was taken this week. Lighter forms of finished steel show easing in prices, and heavy steel scrap is off at several markets.

Increased Activity Reported.

"Industries sending reports of sustained or increased activity this week were furniture manufacturers, hosiery lines, men's and women's clothing and millinery; the lighter lines, so-called, showing relatively more animation than the heavier ones, and trade as a whole tending to show up relatively better when compared with industry than a while ago. Through the earlier part of the year the latter had seemed to hold a premier position.

"Tobacco factories were less active in August than in earlier months, and heavy gaines in all lines were shaded, but, as for some years past, cigarette manufacturing still occupied a prominent place. Shoe manufacturers have been actively employed, but reports on books reduced as result of earlier active operations. Leather buying has been better, and prices tend to harden. In the lumber trade, production had caught up with and passed orders, and there is some softening in prices reported in the Pacific Northwest.

"In retail trade, a feature stressed this week is the continued absorption of large retail distributers by mail-order houses, this tending to lessen still further the distinction between the latter and ordinary chain-distributing concerns."

$544,000 LOWEST BID ON STATEN ISLAND SPAN

Charles Meade & Co. of 217 West Fourteenth Street submitted the lowest bid of those received yesterday by the Department of Plant and Structures for the construction of the new Fresh Kills Bridge on Staten Island. The bid was $544,000, which is $6,000 under the estimate approved by the Board of Estimate.

Chief Engineer Edward Byrne of the Department of Plant and Structures recommended to Commissioner Albert Goldman that the company's bid be accepted. The other bidders were:

The Phoenix Construction, $547,000.

P. L. Carlin Construction Company, $547,500.

Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corporation, $568,000.

P. T. Cox Contracting Company, Inc., $572,000.

George H. Spearin, $575,000.

H. F. Converse, $580,000.

John P. Welsh Engineering Corporation, $593,800.

Lane Ogle, Inc., $596,000.

Frederick Snare Corporation, $604,300.

Walter S. Rae, $618,000.

Arthur McMullen Company, $630,000.

The bridge, which will be built on the line of Richmond Avenue, should be completed in about one year, according to Engineer Byrne. It will have six traffic lanes and two footwalks, and will replace a structure at that point which has only two traffic lanes. The new structure will be a lift bridge of steel construction with granite and cement piers and abutments. The span will be about 400 feet long. Dirt fill approaches from either side across swampy land will add 1,600 feet to it.

The bridge will be directly east of the present structure, and Richmond Avenue will be re-aligned with it.

SHAWNEE ASKS REPARATION

Master of Ship Shelled by Coast Guard Appeals to Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 27 (Canadian Press).—A request that steps be taken to obtain reparation for damage sustained by the motor vessel Shawnee when it was shelled by the United States Coast Guard has been received by the Department of External Affairs.

Some days ago the department received a telegram from the legal representatives of Captain John McLeod of the Shawnee, protesting against the action of the Coast Guard. The communication received today from Halifax is an elaboration of the telegram.

The department is expected to follow the usual course of apprising the Canadian Minister at Washington of the facts as stated by Captain McLeod and asking for an investigation of the case.

The declaration of Captain McLeod makes it clear that the Shawnee was engaged in the liquor traffic. He states that on Sept. 7 he cleared from Bermuda with a cargo of liquor which was subsequently disposed of on the high seas.

GETS ORDER FOR TANKERS.

Sun Co. to Build Two of 13,450 Tons for Tide Water Oil.

The Tide Water Oil Company has awarded to the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company of Chester, Pa., a contract to construct two tankers, each to be of 13,450 deadweight tons. This brings the total to nine such craft now under construction at the Sun yards, two of the tankers being almost complete. The five others are being built for the Motor Tank Ship Company, which received a loan of $6,304,687 this week from the Shipping Board to finance the construction.

These tankers will be of 13,450 deadweight tons and capable of a speed of eleven knots. It is understood in shipping circles that contracts for several more tankers will be awarded by the Sinclair Navigation Company, a subsidiary of the Sinclair Oil Company, and by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

BUNKER GOES TO EUROPE.

United States Lines Vice President to Study Terminal Problems.

William L. Bunker, vice president in charge of operations of the United States Lines, sailed on the Leviathan Wednesday to spend several weeks inspecting its properties in Europe. Edgard Molitor, recently promoted from treasurer to be vice president in charge of foreign business, was also on the Leviathan.

Several important problems will be investigated by Mr. Bunker. It was recently announced that the line would abandon its terminal at Bremen in favor of Hamburg. The possibilities of Havre, where extensive development has taken place, are being studied also.

At Bremen the line's general agency work has been done by the North German Lloyd Line, which is the principal transatlantic line sharing that terminal. This contract has not been terminated, but the transfer of terminal is expected to result in new agency arrangements.

INSPECT PORT TODAY.

60 Delegates to Port Authorities Convention Will Be Guests Here.

Sixty delegates to the convention of the American Association of Port Authorities, which was recently held at Quebec, will be the guests of the Port of New York Authority today on an inspection trip about the harbor. They represent the various ports on the Atlantic Coast and the Gulf district and have made New York their stop-off point en route to their homes.

The party will board the steamer Riverside this morning at the West 129th Street pier of the Hudson River Day Line, proceeding thence up the river to the site of the new bridge, which is being built between Fort Lee, N. J., and Fort Washington Park, Manhattan. After this project has been explained the visitors will be taken to the upper bay and then to the Pennsylvania Railroad piers at Jersey City, where they will debark and return to Manhattan through the Holland Tunnel.

Cunard Liner in Crash at Liverpool.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Cunard liner Antonia, proceeding to its dock today to embark passengers for Quebec and Montreal, was in collision with a foreign cargo boat. The Antonia was only slightly damaged and the cargo boat, after heeling over, righted herself.

Dedicate New Pittsburgh Airport.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—A large crowd saw forty-seven airplanes take part in the dedication today of the airport of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation. Rain fell heavily during the balloon-attacking contest. R. W. Robbins, vice president and general manager of the corporation, read the dedicatory address.

WOULD SAFEGUARD STORAGE OF FILMS

Bureau of Standards Recommends Using the Vaults for Nitro-Cellulose Substance.

HANDLING HAZARDS SHOWN

Material Ignites in Low Heat and Gives Off Poisonous Gases, the Bureau Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Recommendations for safeguarding the storage of photographic, motion picture and X-ray films have been made by the Bureau of Standards, on the basis of its recent study of the hazards incident to the storage of such films, following the Cleveland clinic disaster.

"The storage of nitrocellulose photographic, motion picture and X-ray films presents special hazards to both life and property," the bureau declared today. "These films are very flammable and can be decomposed and ignited at relatively low temperatures. The gases given off are very poisonous and also more or less explosive when mixed with acid. For this reason care should be taken in storage, which should be made in proper structures."

For safe storage the bureau recommended that films in any quantity should be kept either in fire resistive cabinets or vaults protected by automatic sprinklers and vented to the outside air. Vaults should preferably be located on the roof or in a separate building, the bureau said.

"Special requirements are to be met in lighting and heating," it declared. "Smoking and the carrying of open flames into the film storage are to be prohibited. The handling of the film should be done by a trained personnel who understand the hazards involved.

"Nitrocellulose forms the base for nitrate films. This material is similar to celluloid and on heating to temperatures somewhat above the boiling point of water, decomposition will begin, which proceeds very rapidly and develops heat, so that flaming often results. Large quantities of toxic gases are produced which include oxides of nitrogen and carbon monoxide. Due to the moderate temperature at which decomposition can start, sources of heat such as electric light bulbs, high pressure steam pipes and glowing cigarettes are capable of igniting the film.

"The use of cellulose acetate or 'safety' film is recommended, as this film is no more hazardous in storage than ordinary paper. The requirements for storage of safety film, therefore, do not have to be nearly as rigid as those for the more flammable nitrocellulose film."

DERBY YACHT BURNS AT SEA

Skipper, Alone, Abandons New Yorker's Craft Off Nova Scotia.

LIVERPOOL, N. S., Sept. 27 (AP).—Captain Rod MacNeil arrived here early today alone in a small skiff and reported the loss of the American schooner-yacht Shagwang off the Nova Scotia coast yesterday.

Captain MacNeil, who had trouble with his crew in Halifax, was sailing the eight-ton vessel alone when fire broke out in the engine room. Flames enveloped the craft in a few minutes and the navigator was forced to take to the skiff, in which he rowed to Liverpool through a heavy sea.

The Shagwang was owned by James L. Derby, a New York lawyer, and came to Nova Scotia waters a few weeks ago. Mr. Derby and several friends left the yacht at Halifax to return to New York by steamer. Captain MacNeil was under orders to take the yacht to Gloucester, Mass.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—The tropical disturbance is certain tonight about 100 miles southeast of Miami, Fla. and apparently moving very slowly westward, attended by strong shifting gales and probably by winds over hurricane force near its centre. Caution is advised vessels in the Florida Straits and off the southeast Florida coast within the next 24 hours. Storm warnings remain displayed from Key West to Jupiter.

A disturbance of slight intensity is centred about 150 miles southeast of Nantucket, Mass., and pressure remains relatively low from Arizona and southern Nevada, eastward to Colorado and western Texas. High pressure prevails from the North Pacific Coast eastward to the Dakotas and Manitoba, and from Ontario eastward to New Foundland and Nova Scotia.

The temperature was risen in the lower lake region, the upper Mississippi valley and the northern plateau region and it has not changed materially in other parts of the country. The indications are for showers in Northern New England, Northern and Central New York Saturday in portions of the South Atlantic States and Tennessee Saturday and Sunday.

Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail in the Washington forecast district Saturday and Sunday, followed by showers Sunday afternoon in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region. Temperature changes will be unimportant.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperature was low in the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours, from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M. and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

CITY'S COMMITTEE ON AIRPORT TOUR

Advisory Group Picked by Mayor Inspects Sites in Bronx, Queens and Manhattan.

WILL SUBMIT A REPORT

Walker Failed to Make Trip as Expected—Represented by Kerrigan.

City engineer Arthur S. Tuttle, Peter J. Brady, Clarence D. Chamberlin and other members of the subcommittee on airports of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Aeronautics spent yesterday on a tour of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, completing a survey of possible future airport sites for the city.

In the morning they made a quick inspection of possible seaplane bases on Manhattan, visiting the shores of the East and Hudson Rivers. They then drove to the Bronx where they examined the site recently purchased by the Curtiss Airports Corporation near the junction of the Hutchinson River Parkway and the Boston Post Road. Next they inspected lands on the Clason Point Peninsula near the Clason Point Ferry to College Point, Queens.

Crossing the ferry they visited a site in the Flushing Meadows between Flushing and College Point which is now being used as a small airport and then drove to the Holmes Airport on Northern Boulevard near Jackson Heights.

After lunch the party visited the "Juniper Swamp" site in Queens Village. The committee also drove to the North Beach seaplane port.

Floyd Bennett Field, the city's municipal airport at Barren Island, which is nearing completion, had been on the list of fields to be visited but this trip was postponed.

Mayor Walker had planned to make the inspection trip and Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove had also been expected. The Mayor, however, was represented by his assistant, Charles Kerrigan, and Engineers T. F. Keller and John McKenzie represented the Dock Department. Major John F. Sullivan, consulting engineer for the city, also made the tour.

The committee will formulate a report, it was said, which may be the basis of recommendations to the Board of Estimate for the purchase of sites.

COSTE FLIES TO BEAT LONG-DISTANCE MARK

French Aviator, Accompanied by Maurice Bellonte, Goes East From Paris in Non-Stop Attempt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—In an attempt to break the world's record for long-distance flying in a straight line, Captain Dieudonne Coste and his flying partner, Maurice Bellonte, took off from Le Bourget at 8:20 o'clock this morning and flew eastward.

Until the last minute Coste still was tempted to try to cross the Atlantic again as conditions were favorable, but he decided last night to go east instead. It is possible that if the fliers succeed in making a new record they will continue the flight to Tokio and return to France across America.

If the season is then not too far advanced they may try a west-to-east Atlantic flight, which Coste maintains is very much easier than a flight from Paris to New York. The plans of the aviators, however, will depend entirely upon the circumstances.

With a full load of 6,000 kilograms (13,233 pounds) the plane made an easy take-off and was reported after two hours over Cologne flying at 200 kilometers (124 miles) an hour.

ARMLESS GIRL FLIER KILLED

Wealthy Californian Crashes in Texas—License Had Been Refused.

ABILENE, Texas, Sept. 27 (AP).—An armless woman, who became a flier despite warnings of the Commerce Department, fell to her death near here today in an unlicensed airplane.

The plane, piloted by Miss Josephine Callaghan, wealthy rancher of Encino, Cal., who used a shoulder lith control stick which she manipulated with her stub arms, got out of control at an altitude of several thousand feet and crashed in a cotton field.

A letter in her effects, signed by W. P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, dated Aug. 2 at Washington said:

"I note that you have one exceedingly serious physical defect, namely, that you lack your forearms, and another moderately serious defect, namely, a vision of only 20-70 in each eye.

"These defects are of such a nature that I do not feel justified in granting your request for a waiver."

Miss Callaghan took up flying about a year ago and declared it was easier to manage a plane than to ride horseback or drive an automobile. She was an expert at each of these.

WILL AID AIRPORT PLANS.

Government Specialists to Advise on Projects in 39 States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Airport specialists of the Department of Commerce will visit thirty-nine States, during the next few months to assist communities and civic organizations in the furtherance of airport projects, it was announced today.

They will advise communities in the selection of sites, the rating of airports and construction and maintenance. Although regulations were issued some months ago, no airports have yet been officially rated.

Airports in various stages of completion number 925, and 1,124 are projected. Until recently the Commerce Department's specialists were engaged principally in assisting in the selection of sites. Many of these airports are now rounding into shape and their owners are seeking Federal rating.

LINDBERGH TO SURVEY VENEZUELA AIR ROUTE

Rests at Maracay While Wife Goes Sightseeing—Starts for Curacao Today.

MARACAY, Venezuela, Sept. 27 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, explorer of aerial highways, rested today at this halfway point in his trail blazing 7,000-mile air mail tour of the West Indies, Latin America and Mexico.

The flying Colonel was not idle during his stop-over of the flight over the northern coast of South America from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, to Cristobal, Canal Zone, first leg of his homeward bound journey. He made his plans for a survey of a new Venezuelan air mail route, sponsored by Pan-American Airways, as is his present 7,000-mile tour.

Cooperating with Colonel Lindbergh in the preparations for the air mail route survey was Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways and a passenger on the Caribbean circle tour. Mrs. Lindbergh and Mrs. Trippe, also passengers on the flight, spent the day resting and sightseeing in this Venezuelan town.

Colonel Lindbergh flew here yesterday over the 415-mile coast line between Port of Spain, Trinidad, through clear weather which contrasted with the squalls which failed to hinder his progress Wednesday from Paramaribo to the Trinidad city.

En route the flying Colonel complacently climbed over the bow of the big amphibian to make photographs from the anchor compartment of the territory over which the plane passed. Another feature of the day's flight was his aerial salute to Caracas, Venezuelan capital, and to President Gomez, who had requested that America's famous transatlantic flier circle over the city.

The flying Colonel's schedule tomorrow calls for a 7 o'clock departure on the 177-mile hop to Curacao, Dutch West Indies. From there he will fly to Maracaibo, 225 miles, where the party expects to have lunch. The last stop of the day will be made at Barranquilla, Colombia, where the plane is expected to arrive at 3:30 o'clock.

The flier will conclude his tour over the South American Coast Sunday as he flies to Cristobal, Canal Zone, where a nine-day stopover will be made before the last leg of the homeward-bound journey to Miami is undertaken.

SOVIET PLANE REACHES SEWARD ON WAY HERE

Russian Fliers Complete Last Leg of Pacific Portion of Flight.

SEWARD, Alaska, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Russian plane Land of the Soviets landed here at 3:42 P. M. [9:42 P. M., Eastern Daylight Time] today.

The Russians took off at 9:30 A. M., Pacific Time (12:30 P. M. in New York) today from Dutch Harbor, 700 miles west of Seward.

The landing at Seward today was their first contact with the Alaskan mainland and their third landing on Alaskan soil, they having previously touched at Attu, the most westward of the Aleutian Islands, and then at Dutch Harbor, on Unalaska Island.

The flight today from Dutch Harbor to Seward was the last the aviators will have to make over extended areas of water.

They next will fly to Sitka, Alaska, a distance of 583 miles, skirting the Alaskan coast, and from there will take off for Seattle, a flight of 1,174 miles. They will follow the coast line on this flight.

STEALS PLANE, CRASHES.

Pilot Disappears at Riverside, Ont., After Fall—Police After Him.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—The police of the border cities are searching for an unidentified man who stole an airplane from a field near Riverside, Ont., last night and stunted with it for nearly an hour before he crashed into a rutted pasture less than 500 yards from where he took off.

The wrecked plane, nose buried in the earth, was surrounded by witnesses less than five minutes after it came down, but the pilot had disappeared. He had been seen frantically working the controls as the plane went into the spin which caused the crash.

There is a possibility that the pilot fell into the Detroit River, as the plane landed only about 200 yards from the bank.

ZEPPELIN AT GENEVA AGAIN.

Members of Staff of Japanese Embassy at Berlin on Trip.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—The Graf Zeppelin this morning again flew slowly over Geneva. The dirigible left Friedrichshafen at 8:30 A. M. and did the trip in three hours, half an hour quicker than yesterday over practically the same route. Today there were twenty-four passengers, including a large contingent from the Japanese Embassy at Berlin, and two movie operators.

THREE COMMIT HARA-KIRI.

Family Tragedy in Japan Follows Suicide of Merchant at Lima.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Lima Nippo, a local Japanese publication, says today that last year's failure and subsequent suicide of a wealthy Japanese merchant, S. G. Katsutani, has had a tragic epilogue in Japan in the suicides of the merchant's family.

The paper says that his wife, his brother and his son decided to commit suicide when they learned how and why their Lima relative had died. Their decision to commit hara-kiri was said to have been based in accordance with the Japanese rules of conduct, in view of the fact that they were unable to pay for the moral and material wrongs of their relative.

Katsutani had been one of the wealthiest Japanese merchants in Peru.

London Lord Mayor Gets Baronetcy

LONDON, Sept. 27 (Canadian Press)—A baronetcy has been conferred upon Sir Kynaston Studd, Lord Mayor of London, as is customary when the capital's Chief Magistrate retires. Knighthoods have been granted to the retiring Sheriffs for many years, and Major William Cozen receives this honor. The other Sheriff, Sir William Waterlow, already knighted, is expected to be the next Lord Mayor. He is joint managing director of a large firm of printers and stationers.

EXPERTS ANALYZE CHEMICAL ACTIONS

Lecture in the New Princeton Laboratory on Data of Recent Researches.

DR. LANGMUIR A SPEAKER

Tells of Discovery Which Improved Radio Tubes—Bodenstein Talks on Nitric Acid Production.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 27.—The new chemical laboratory at Princeton University was used for the first time today when a series of public lectures on the mechanism of chemical reactions was delivered by the visiting scientists who received honorary degrees yesterday at the formal opening of the building.

The lectures were based on data obtained during recent researches for the improvement of radio tubes, researches for the manufacture of nitric acid from ammonia, air and water as developed by the combatants during the war to make explosives, and researches in the practical behavior of "anti-knock" mixtures for automobile gasolines.

These practical applications were not mentioned by any of the lecturers, because the occasion was purely scientific, but they were communicated afterward by Professor Hugh S. Taylor, chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Princeton.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, associate director for research for the General Electric Company, discussed the electric properties of films of gas on the surface of tungsten filaments at low pressures and high temperatures. He repeated his previously reported discovery that a film of oxygen of atomic thickness is more strongly attached to the tungsten filament than to oxygen atoms in molecular form, and also the discovery that a film of oxygen atoms coated with caesium produced an increase ten-thousand-fold in the electronic emission from a tungsten wire. This is the discovery which, Dr. Tayler explained later, has made radio vacuum tubes better.

Dr. Max Bodenstein, director of the Physical Chemistry Institute of Berlin, speculated about the possible nature of the chemical reaction that occurs when a stream of ammonia, steam and air is passed through a platinum screen. As the stream of vapor passes through the screen nitric acid is produced. Dr. Bodenstein said his speculations seemed at some variance with the results. Dr. Taylor later said it was one of the fastest known catalytic reactions and that it was still one of the outstanding problems of the time.

Professor M. Polyani of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Berlin spoke of a simple way he had devised to measure the speed of chemical reactions. He illustrated by bringing sodium vapor and chlorine into contact in a glass tube, producing a brilliant golden light.

C. N. Hinselwood of Trinity College, Oxford, declared that the understanding of chemical reactions until recently had been confined to ordinary conditions. Now, he said, high pressures, high temperatures and high-speed reactions, which were once regarded as mysterious and catalytic, are really providing the most enlightenment concerning the mechanism of chemical reactions.

Tomorrow afternoon, after three more lectures, the conference will close with general discussion of the ideas presented during the two days.

GOEBEL WINS DERBY; BEATS ALL MEXICANS

Dole Flier Lands at Kansas City 2 Minutes Ahead of Fierro—Gains $3,000 Prize.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27 (AP).—Colonel Art Goebel, who won the Dole air race from California to Hawaii, winged his way to another long-distance victory here today, finishing ahead of other entries in the Mexico City-Kansas City air derby.

Official compilations will not be announced until later, but Goebel's known elapsed flying time between control points assures him of $3,000 first prize money. He arrived here at 8:13 o'clock from Springfield, Mo., last night's control point.

Other contestants in the race, all Mexican Army fliers, arrived here as follows:

Colonel Roberto Fierro, at 8:15 o'clock; Captain Luis Verdeja, at 8:19, and Captain Feliciana Flores, at 8:28.

Lieutenant Carlos Robiosa, delayed by a forced landing near San Antonio, Texas, Wednesday, fell behind the other derbyists but flew from San Antonio to Springfield yesterday. With Rex Purcell, the American flier who joined the racers at the border, he arrived with the regular contestants. Robiosa was delayed again today by motor trouble and arrived an hour behind the other fliers.

Officials are considering the status of Robiosa and Captain Verdeja and Colonel Fierro. The latter two pilots did not stop yesterday at Joplin, Mo., a regular control point.

One other Mexican flier, Colonel Fernando Proal, was forced down soon after leaving Tampico and withdrew from the race.

The winner of second place in the derby will receive a prize of $1,000; the flier finishing third will get $600, and fourth place honors carry a prize of $400.

MEXICO WILL HONOR FLIERS.

Sidar and Fierro Will Be First to Get New Merit Medals.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 27 (AP).—The government announced today that its five outstanding aviators, Colonel Pable Sidar and Colonel Roberto Fierro, would be the first to receive the new Aeronautical Merit Medal which President Portes Gil is to bestow in the near future.

Colonel Sidar is now touring South America and Colonel Fierro has been taking part in the Mexico City-Kansas City air derby.

It was also announced that General Juan Ascarate, chief of the Mexican Army's Air Service, would be decorated for his services in designing the Ascarate plane, the only aircraft that is being built in Mexico.

Plane Goes Off With No Pilot, Flies Five Miles and Lands

HAVRE, Mont., Sept. 27 (AP).—A small monoplane took off here without a pilot, flew five miles and broke only a propeller in landing.

Clarence Hendrickson, student pilot, had trouble starting the motor. He opened the throttle slightly, spun the propeller, and the plane started down the field. Hendrickson dashed for the cabin and in attempting to close the throttle opened it. The plane darted away, leaving the pilot sprawled on the ground.

The small craft, airport attaches said, gained altitude, flew at least five miles, making several graceful banks and landed in an open space adjacent to the airport.

The monoplane is in service again with a shining new propeller, the only evidence of its flight.

SAYS 16 IN GASTONIA WILL GET FAIR TRIAL

A. G. Hays Praises Judge and Insists There Is No Danger of a "Frame-Up."

The sixteen North Carolina textile strikers and labor agitators whose second trial begins Monday at Charlotte for the murder of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholdt of Gastonia are assured of fair treatment, Arthur Garfield Hays, a member of the defense staff in the former trial, told an assembly at the Civic Club, 18 East Tenth Street, last night.

"Any one who has any idea that this is going to be a second Sacco-Vanzetti case can have his fears answered definitely by the actions of Judge Barnhill in the first trial," said Mr. Hays. He referred to Judge M. V. Barnhill, appointed by Governor O. Max Gardner as a special jurist to hear the strikers' case.

Mr. Hays said that Judge Barnhill was the "most liberal and fair judge to be found in North Carolina."

"It is a dangerous case, however," said Mr. Hays. "The danger comes from the extreme favoritism in North Carolina toward the textile mills, from the intense hatred of the Communists and from a hatred of labor unions. I do think that the Communists' agitation has served a good purpose, however, for their charge of a 'frame-up' has focused the attention of the whole country on the case, so much so that the Governor appointed Judge Barnhill, and now an impartial hearing is assured."

Amy Schechter, one of the Gastonia defendants, who was in North Carolina as a member of the Workers' International Relief, was not as sure about a fair trial or the absence of a "frame-up" as was Mr. Hays. She declared that regardless of the outcome of the trial the National Textile Workers' Union, which led the labor revolt in Gastonia last April, was in North Carolina to stay. Miss Schechter is under bond to return to the trial Monday.

Fred Tothrow, who termed himself one of the "Gastonia strikers," appealed for funds for defense of his comrades. A collection netted a hatful of dollar bills and silver.

Other speakers were Lemuel F. Parton, who said he investigated the labor condition in North Carolina as a newspaper man, and Heywood Broun.

GASTONIA STRIKERS SUE.

Three Arrested for Plot Against Government Ask Damages.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 27 (AP).—Three of eight labor leaders and strikers arrested here Sept. 12 and charged with conspiracy to overthrow the government entered suits today for $50,000 each against Alex West, Charlotte Chief of Police, and John R. Irwin, Mecklenburg County Sheriff, charging "fictitious, trumped-up, wicked and malicious" arrest.

The suits were filed by C. D. Saylors, C. A. Lell and P. F. Shepard, all of Gastonia. Thaddeus A. Adams, attorney for the three, said the other five men would file similar suits at an early date.

When the case of the eight men was called for hearing in the Charlotte Recorder's Court it was dismissed for lack of evidence.

SAYS BANK ROBBERIES NETTED GANG $1,000,000

Lamar (Col.) Sheriff Asserts Fleagle Outlaws Admit Operations Extending Over 10 Years.

DENVER, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Fleagle gang of bank robbers, three members of which will go on trial next week for the killing of four men in the robbery of the First National Bank of Lamar, obtained more than $1,000,000 in loot from banks during ten years of operations in various parts of the United States, Sheriff L. E. Alderman of Lamar said here today.

Alderman asserted he had obtained admissions from the three prisoners, Ralph Fleagle, George J. Absher, alias Ellis Messick, and Howard Royston, which would enable authorities of Middle Western and Pacific Coast States to account for dozens of unsolved bank robberies.

Jake Fleagle, brother of Ralph Fleagle and leader of the gang, is still at large and was identified by witnesses as one of three men who yesterday held up a bank at Rodeo, Col., and escaped with $35,000 after mortally wounding Constable Arthur J. McDonald.

The Fleagles lived on a ranch near Hutchinson, Kan., and their extensive criminal operations never were suspected until Sheriff Alderman finally connected them with the Lamar robbery. They were regarded as wealthy stockmen.

Alderman said the biggest haul, next to the Lamar robbery, was the hold-up of the Ottawa (Kan.) National Bank, in which $195,000 was stolen on Nov. 3, 1926.

Engineering Woman's Club Dinner.

The Engineering Woman's Club last night gave a farewell dinner to its president, Mrs. George D. Barron, who will leave next week with the American delegation to the World's Engineering Congress in Japan in October. Among those present who will also attend the Congress were Senator Dr. Luigi Luigi of Rome, Annible Pallucchini of Venice, Dr. Guido Corbellini of Florence, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Larsen of Copenhagen, Mrs. Frank Gill and daughter of London and Mrs. H. Govett of Madrid.

TO STUDY PROBLEMS IN PSYCHOLOGY

National Institute, Formed by University Scientists, Will Have Laboratory in Capital.

WORK WILL BE COOPERATIVE

Aim Is to Promote Application of Scientific Facts to Human and Animal Welfare.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The first step toward the establishment here of a national research centre for problems in human and animal psychology has been taken by the incorporation of the National Institute of Psychology, whose membership includes fifty prominent American experimental phychologists.

The incorporators are Professor Knight Dunlap, head of the psychology department of Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, and Dr. Edwin E. Slosson.

Their aim, according to Professor Dunlap, is to found a national psychological laboratory, similar in some of its functions to the Bureau of Standards, but not under Federal control.

"Such a laboratory can be under a relatively permanent director and can undertake programs of research too long, expensive and complicated for other institutions," he said.

"In such a laboratory truly cooperative results of the highest value can be obtained. Men working in other laboratories on details of the problems undertaken in the national laboratory could arrange to transfer their work there during leave of absence or in Summers. Work done here can be subjected to criticism while in progress, instead of afterward, and the cooperative method can insure greater certainty as to conditions."

The institute will start with the following active members from the universities named:

JOHN E. ANDERSON, Minnesota.
MADISON BENTLEY, Cornell.
E. G. BORING, Harvard.
WARNER BROWN, California.
HARVEY A. CARR, Chicago.
PERCY W. COBB, Cleveland.

NAMED FRAUD PROSECUTOR.

Col. William Hayward of New York to Handle Election Cases.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP).—Colonel William Hayward of New York City today was named a Special Assistant Attorney General in charge of the prosecution of election frauds. Attorney General Hamilton Ward, in making the announcement, said Colonel Hayward would succeed George Z. Medalie, also of New York.

Colonel Hayward at his office at 551 Fifth Avenue yesterday said that he had had no official word of his appointment as Special Assistant Attorney General in charge of election frauds, but had understood that he was to be named by Attorney General Ward. He said he had no plans at present for handling the work of inspection and prosecution.

Colonel Hayward was formerly United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. He commanded the Fifteenth Infantry, a negro regiment, in the World War.

LAYS CRIME TO WET CITY.

Buffalo Judge Makes Statement After Studying Probation Reports.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP).—Declaring that it was apparent that intoxicating liquor was being sold freely in Buffalo and surrounding communities, Justice Samuel J. Harris today ascribed much of the crime in this territory to that cause.

Justice Harris had been consulting probation department reports on several prisoners arraigned before him in Supreme Court for sentence.

He suggested a change in the Baumes law whereby prisoners sent down for mandatory terms as previous offenders could be segregated in prison, preventing the merely weak from coming in contact with the vicious.

OPPOSE AUTO MONOPOLY.

Spanish Press Assails Government Plan as Trade Barrier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Sept. 27.—Opposition to the project of a government automobile monopoly has developed in the Spanish press. El Sol and other papers today attack the plan as illogical and prejudicial to Spain's own commercial interests.

Spain for years will not be in a position to manufacture automobiles of different kinds, which would only mean competing with foreign makes, it is contended. The view is expressed that if, conceding the monopoly, it produced only one make of Spanish car, and competition was suppressed, a diminution in sales would result.

Roosevelt to Visit Atlanta Fair.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Sept. 27 (AP).—Governor Roosevelt of New York today accepted an invitation to attend the Southeastern fair in Atlanta Oct. 11, which has been designated Governors' Day, and to be a guest at the North Carolina-Georgia Tech football game. The Governor's vacation will end Oct. 14, when he will return to Albany to begin work on the State budget for presentation to the Legislature.

KILLED BY POLICE BULLET.

Scranton Man Is Shot in Auto Speeding From Officers.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 27 (AP).—Peter Wetter of South Scranton died in the State Hospital early today from a bullet wound in the head, said to have been inflicted by a motorcycle policeman. Patrolman Gscheidle had fired on an automobile whose driver had tried, he said, to run down himself and Lieutenant Harry Scull. Wetter was an occupant of the automobile. Lieutenant Scull and Gscheidle received a call that suspicious persons were loitering on Orchard Street in an automobile. When the officers arrived the automobile started away and two women jumped from the car, screaming. The driver turned off the lights and speeded up the car. Patrolman Gscheidle fired several shots, but the auto disappeared. Half an hour later Wetter was taken into the State Hospital by Ted Simon, 38, of South Scranton, who was arrested later.

UNION DISPUTES McGOVERN

Denies He Pays More Than Prevailing Rate on Water Tube Job.

More than 80 per cent of the drillers' helpers and muckers who were employed on the $44,000,000 Yonkers-Brooklyn water tunnel have quit since last Tuesday because they were not receiving the union rate, according to a statement issued yesterday by John McPartlan, business agent for the Compressed Air, Foundation, Subway, Coffer-dam and Sewer Workers' Union. He said the engineers and blasters are considering a sympathy strike.

"The Patrick McGovern Construction Company has said it is paying more than the prevailing rate to the workers, but that is not the truth," Mr. McPartlan declared. "Drillers who should be getting $1.37½ an hour are getting only $1; helpers should be getting $1.12 an hour but are getting only 80 cents, while the muckers, who should be getting $1.12 an hour, are getting only 65 cents."

PARDONS ESCAPED CONVICT

Mississippi Governor Frees Man Who "Made Good" as Engineer.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 27.—A man who rose to success as a railroad engineer after escaping from the Mississippi Penitentiary, where he had been sentenced to serve four years on a charge of forging a $35 check, has won his freedom through suspension of sentence by Governor Bilbo in order to keep his twelve-year seniority with the railroad.

Ed Brewer, the engineer, had served four months of his term when he escaped in July, 1926, and went to Arkansas, where he was "lost" to prison officials for twelve years. During this time he made good as an engineer.

One of the requests for a pardon was in a letter from former Governor Terrell of Arkansas.

CALLS GANGS HERE SENILE.

Professor Threasher, in Chicago, Says Leaders Are Dead or Rich.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Gangster factions in New York City are in a state of senility and their favorite stronghold is Greenwich Village, according to Frederic M. Threasher, sociologist, of New York University. Professor Threasher is attending a congress of the Religious Education Association at the Chicago Theological Seminary here.

"Few of the great New York gang leaders are still living," he said. "Most of the rest have retired and are big business men in legitimate fields. Others have been bumped off by the police or other gangsters. The New York police are actually efficient enforcers of law and order."

COPENHAGEN WINDOWS CUT.

Miscreant Uses Diamond Damaging Shops in Night.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 27.—Following the example of vandalism set in London, a criminal, or a group of criminals, last night disfigured a large number of big shop windows with a diamond.

The police have not yet succeeded in tracking the miscreant and a big sum has been set as a reward for his identification.

The insurance companies declare they are not obliged to pay compensation for the damage, as the glass did not fall out.

UNDERWRITER ASKS LAW OBSERVANCE

R. B. Hull Tells Washington Insurance Convention Stable Government Is Essential to Business

BACKS HOOVER PROGRAM

S. T. Seaborn of Chicago Is Elected President—Meeting Next Year Will Be in Toronto.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Support for President Hoover's law observance program was urged today by Roger B. Hull managing director of the National Association of Life Underwriters in the closing hour of the latter's fortieth annual convention here.

Respect for law should be a cardinal concern of life insurance salesmen, whose business it is to insure prosperity, Mr. Hull said, commenting that without a stable government it would be impossible for the life insurance business to exist in any country.

Extension of the organization in urban and rural communities was authorized in a resolution adopted this morning to meet the criticism in some quarters that the organization claims strength only from the cities.

Officers elected by the association are:

SEABORN T. WHATLEY, Chicago, president.
C. C. DAY of Oklahoma City, ranking vice president.
GEORGE W. ATRES of Los Angeles, first vice president.
E. J. McCORMACK, Memphis, second vice president.
THOMAS M. SCOTT, Philadelphia, third vice president.
H. O. WILHOLM, Omaha, fourth vice president.
HUGH CANNELL of Montreal, honorary vice president.
ROBERT L. JONES, New York City, treasurer.

The convention will meet next year in Toronto.
